RENT POSTING URGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia tenant organizations Thursday urged immediate proclamation of a section in the new Landlord and Tenant Act that would require posting of rents and their anniversary dates in all apartment buildings.

The proposal was made to provincial rentalsman Barrie Clark, who said he would forward the request to the attorney-general.

Bruce Yorke, president of the B.C. Tenants' organization, estimated after the meeting that as many as 15 per cent of landlords may be flouting provisions of the rent stabilization act that limit rent increases to eight per cent.

He said the rentalsman also agreed to exert pressure on offending landlords even though he won't have full powers as rentalsman until Oct. 1, when the new act is scheduled to take effect.

Cyprus on Verge Of Fresh Battle

Times-News Services

Turkey landed more troops on Cyprus today and acting Cypriot president Glafkos Clerides warned that war would break out again within a few hours unless the Turks stopped violating the cease-fire.

Almost immediately mortar and machine gun fire broke out along the Green Line, patrolled by Canadian troops, separating Cyprus' Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communities. Witnesses said Greek-led national guardsmen began piling into trucks to move into position.

Cyprus, meanwhile, requested an urgent UN Security Council meeting on the alleged cease-fire violations.

A meeting at noon Victoria-time.

And, at the three-way Geneva peace talks, Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros threatened today to walk out over the violations.

"The condition for continuation of the talks is that the cease-fire is respected by the Turkish government," he told Reuters.

"I am not prepared to stay here so long as the ceasefire agreement is violated. We have encountered more than 50 violations so far from the Turkish side."

"Time is running out," Clerides told a news conference in Nicosia.

"It will be with the greatest reluctance that I will appear before the Greek people of Cyprus to invite them to fight to the last man and to the end.

"I can no longer restrain the National Guard and other forces in the republic from taking countermeasures" against Turkish advances, he said.

Asked if by "other forces" he meant Greek troops had arrived on the island, Clerides said: "No comment."

The Turkish army has mounted a major landing of supplies for its invasion force on the northern beaches of Cyprus Thursday as the leader of the Turkish Cypriot community indicated the Turks may never give back the harbor of Kyrenia to Greek-Cypriot control.

"Kyrenia is now the door and window of the Turkish community — economically, socially and humanely — and we badly need it," Rauf Denktas told a news conference.

Denktas, who was the national vice-president in the overthrown government of Archbishop Makarios, also indicated that he would not accept the return of Makarios to the island.

"Makarios is now part of a closed book," he said.

Waves of Turkish helicopters were seen flying over the Kyrenia mountains Thursday to inland landing zones.

One foreign military attache estimated that the initial Turkish force of about 6,000 men that landed Saturday may have been swelled to more than 10,000, despite the cease-fire.

In Nicosia itself it was quiet Thursday night and today apart from occasional shots across the Green Line.

Turkish-Cypriots in the Turkish quarter of Nicosia said today that they heard occasional mortar shells whistling overhead.

21 Held In Drug Raids

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two young police constables posed as drug addicts for about four months to gather evidence for police who Thursday started a major drug roundup involving about 100 suspected heroin traffickers.

As a result of evidence from the male-female undercover team, drug squad detectives swore out 101 warrants earlier this week for alleged narcotics violations.

Members of the crime prevention unit, the drug squad and some RCMP officers started the search for those wanted Thursday afternoon and by late evening at least 21 people had been arrested.

The undercover team, identified as a Constable McKeddie and Constable Jane Roberts, both in their early 20s, were recent graduates from the police academy when they started their work in March.

Inspector Sid Devries, head of the drug squad when the constables began the operation said the pair posed as drug addicts and made heroin buys from pushers.

Along with the heroin buys the young constables also made several cocaine, speed, LSD and marijuana purchases during their time on the street.

More possession charges are expected because some of those arrested Thursday were caught with narcotics in their possession. One 25-year-old woman was nabbed with 42 caps of heroin worth about $1,500.

Inspector Devries said most of the warrants were issued for regular street pushers but some "higher ups" are also being sought.

WEATHERBEATEN ROOF of Legislative Buildings will have a fresh, new look when workmen perched on scaffolding finish their task of replacing the slate blocks, the first intensive repair program to the roof undertaken since original construction. Slate was hauled from Pennsylvania, the only place that could match the original quality, at $1 per block. Work could take up to a year to complete.

WILKINSON PRISONERS BALK AGAIN

For the second time in a week prisoners awaiting trial balked at returning to their cells at Wilkinson Road jail Thursday night.

The prisoners maintained that because they had not been convicted of any crimes they should not be locked up at night or any time. But they relented and entered their cells five minutes before the 11 a.m. deadline.

Director S. A. L. Hamblin said the prisoners told the officer in charge they wanted 15 minutes longer because they were working on a set of grievances.

The officer gave them five.

Hamblin said there was no disturbance.

On July 18 prisoners in the awaiting-trial wing of the jail refused to return to their cells at night.

His Last $1.40

ABINGDON, England (UPI) — Unemployed and ill with tuberculosis, Frank Andrews was down to his last $1.40 and had to choose between saving the money for new shoes or betting it on the horses. He chose the horses, and won $120,000.

Andrews, 49, made an off-track accumulator bet on six horses and all came in at 12-1, 20-1, 10-1, 9-4, 3-1 and 7-2, with his stake and winnings increasing from one to the next.

Andrews collected his cheque Thursday. It should have been $208,000 but the Ladbroke offtrack betting organization said it limits payouts to $120,000 on this type of bet.

UVic Tests To Spot Health Risks

Some 1,000 provincial government and University of Victoria employees will be tested this summer to find out who would be a risk if they entered directly into a physical fitness program.

A $75,000 pilot project, testing will be conducted by UVic departments of physical education and biology to validate a questionnaire which will be made available to organizations across Canada.

Purpose of the questionnaire will be to screen out persons, particularly in the middle-aged bracket, who would risk their health by strenuous physical fitness exercise, said test program director Dr. Martin Collis.

Subjects will receive, free of charge, a physician's examination, blood tests, lung function assessment, various standardized measurements and resting and stress electrocardiograms.

Because of the large involvement of UVic personnel in the project, Dr. Collis said staff and faculty are invited to be tested Aug. 2, and possibly from Aug. 6 to 15, beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Lansdowne Junior High School.

Collis said the project reflects the emphasis the provincial government is placing on physical activity as a form of preventive medicine.

UVic was chosen, he said, because of its experience in fitness programs.

Nixon Now Considering Next Line of Defence

Times News Services

President Nixon apparently has written off chances of defeating an impeachment recommendation by the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee.

Aides who usually reflect Nixon's views are talking of the next line of defence — the House.

They have said publicly they expect the House to reject impeachment.

Privately the assessment of some of Nixon's top lieutenants is that he may have to stake his fight to remain in office on a trial in the Senate.

Both press secretary Ronald Ziegler and political counsellor Dean Burch have said they would not be "surprised" if the committee passes to the floor a bill of impeachment, but insist it will not be approved by the House.

Burch told reporters a few days ago that he conveyed to Nixon that "the judiciary committee is a very difficult hurdle for a Republican president and that is particularly true when you consider the make-up of the committee, where you have six to seven Democratic partisans on there who would impeach if the president got a parking ticket."

On the basis of their previously announced positions it appears certain a majority of the committee is prepared to recommend impeachment if a satisfactory article can be drafted.

It takes only a majority of the judiciary committee's 38 members ot recommend impeachment and a majority of the House to impeach.

It would require a two-thirds vote in the Senate to find the president guilty and remove him from office.

Representative Delbert Latta (Rep.—Ohio), a committee member opposed to impeachment, sees a 27-to-11 vote in favor of a recommendation that the House impeach Nixon and that a Senate trial be held to determine whether he should be removed from office.

Meanwhile, Nixon's standing in the public eye has fallen to a new low, according to a Gallup Poll published today.

A survey taken July 12-15 among 1,555 persons in more than 300 localities around the country showed that only 24 per cent approved of Nixon's conduct in office. Sixty-three per cent gave him a negative rating and 13 per cent gave no opinion.

The 24 per cent rating was only one point above the lowest ever given a president in the Gallup Polls.

That was the 23 per cent positive rating given Harry S. Truman in the fall of 1951, during the Korean war.

In a related development, presidential lawyer James St. Clair said today it is impossible to comply with Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's proposal that the White House surrender the tapes of 64 conversations relating to the Watergate political scandal in 10 days.

But he told United States

Abductor Believed B.C. Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police in Washington state are looking for a suspect believed to be from B.C. in the disappearance of six young women in Washington in the past six months.

The Vancouver Sun said Thursday in a report from a staff reporter in Seattle that King County police are almost sure that the suspect is not a local resident.

Four of the six women are college students who vanished without a trace at night, one from her house and the others from near their campus dormitories. The other two were apparently abducted during the day from a crowded state park 11 days ago.

Detective Capt. Joseph Mackie said in an interview with the reporter that the abductor is believed to be a young man with long blonde or light brown hair who approached a number of girls in Lake Samammish State Park near Issaquah, 15 miles east of Seattle.

He said the man had his arm in a sling and told the girls he hurt his arm playing racquet ball and spoke with what one of the girls said could be an English accent.

Detective Capt. Mackie said police have a good description of the man but widespread publication in King County of the description and an artist's drawing have failed to produce a response.

Because of this, and because of the man's accent and reference to racquet ball — a sport better known in Vancouver than in Seattle — police suspect he came from B.C., Mackie said.

Newcomers Increase By 72%

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration to Canada increased by a whopping 72 per cent in the first quarter of 1974 when 45,302 newcomers arrived in this country compared with 26,288 during the same period in 1973, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

During the first quarter of 1973, immigration was 12 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1972 when there were 23,567 newcomers.

Oceanic countries showed the largest percentage increase of immigrants to Canada during the first three months of 1974.

Newcomers from Oceania during this period numbered 399, more than triple the corresponding period of 1973 when the total was 23.

About 346 of the total immigrants from Oceanic countries during the early part of this year were from Fiji and 47 were from Mauritius.

Immigration from Asian countries during this period was up 88 per cent from the first three months of 1973 and immigration from North and Central American countries was up 78 per cent.

The total number of newcomers from Europe, including Britain and the Soviet Union, increased by 58 per cent in the early part of 1974 compared with the first three months of 1973.

There also were 32 per cent more immigrants from Australasian countries and 26 per cent more from African countries.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. was found guilty of conspiring to fix prices at both the wholesale and retail levels.

The award will be made to six livestock producers in California and Colorado.

The actual damages awarded by the jury totalled $10.9 million, which is automatically tripled under anti-trust law.

Hard Facts Temper Grit Joy

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Liberal members of Parliament admitted Thursday their jubilation at being returned to office with a majority has been tempered by some hard economic facts of life.

These facts were spelled out by Finance Minister John Turner at a Liberal Party caucus Wednesday. Turner's message was described as a "realistic" reappraisal of the seriousness of the economic situation confronting the Canadian government.

The numerous new spending programs announced by the government and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau during the election campaign will add considerably to proposed expenditures. Turner — if he continues in the post of finance minister — will have to take the added spending into consideration when he brings in the revised budget late in October or early in November.

The spending programs will have to be stretched over the four years or more that lie ahead of the newly-elected administration.

The finance department last May estimated the government would be required to borrow $2 billion in the present year.

A very disturbing run on Canada Savings Bonds has continued since then despite moves made in the budget — hiking the interest rate to 9 per cent — to halt the run. The government has had to pay out more than $1.1 billion since the beginning of the year.

Canadians alarmed by the rising inflation have been trading in their Canada Savings Bonds to invest in higher paying bank savings certificates and trust notes. The Canada Savings Bonds normally are redeemed at a rate of $100,000,000 per month. During May and June they were being cashed in at the surprising rate of $300,000,000 per month.

This took a substantial chunk out of the government's cash reserves.

The government will have to go to the bond market with a new issue at this time when interest rates are soaring.

The announcement by the Bank of Canada Tuesday night increasing its prime interest rate from 8¾ per cent to a record 9¾ per cent effective Wednesday stressed for government members the seriousness of the situation. It signalled even tighter credit conditions for individuals and corporations and trouble ahead for the administration.

Begging Bylaw Scrapped by City

Victoria city council decided Thursday to scrap its proposed anti-begging bylaw, after hearing that enforcement problems could well render the bylaw meaningless.

But somewhat different explanations of the difficulties came from Ald. Bill Tindall and city solicitor Jakob de Villiers.

Tindall told council he had learned from city police that they have no powers of summary arrest in enforcing municipal bylaws.

This means, he said, that if a policeman saw a beggar approaching people outside the Government Street liquor store, and the man refused to give his name and address, the officer would have to ask him to remain there while he went off to obtain a warrant from the city prosecutor's office.

The chances of the beggar complying were remote, he said, adding: "In trying to enforce this bylaw we may succeed in making city police look ludicrous, literally."

Tindall said a section of the Criminal Code prohibiting the "impeding or obstructing" of pedestrians perhaps could be used to control the begging nuisance on city streets.

In any case, said the alderman, police had indicated they were receiving "very few" complaints concerning begging. "It doesn't appear to be the major problem we thought it was."

Contradicting part of Tindall's statement, de Villiers said emphatically no one can be arrested for alleged contravention of a city bylaw, with or without a warrant.

The solicitor said the only way of proceeding against such a person is by means of a summons, and admitted that if the beggar refused to give his name and address "difficulties arise."

Score One for Hungry Teacher

A partial victory for hunger-striker Mrs. Ingrid Blanchet is seen in a decision to appoint a school financing task force.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly announced Thursday the force would be named shortly and follows an educational financing white paper which she submitted during presentation of her departmental estimates in the spring sitting of the legislature.

For two weeks toward the end of the session, Mrs. Blanchet, unemployed school teacher from West Vancouver, sat on the steps of the legislature to protest school board hiring practices and discrimination against "overqualified" personel such as herself.

Blanchet charged Lower Mainland boards with hiring less qualified teachers in preference to teachers with long experience and higher academic qualifications because the teachers with minimum credentials rate lower salaries. She called for an inquiry into the practice.

Mrs. Dailly said the current financing formula allows teacher salary and school operating costs to be presented in a single package, based on the number of instruction units in a district.

If less money is apportioned to teachers' salaries, more funds can be channelled into other uses, without departing from the formula introduced in 1969.

Prior to 1969, there had been segregation of teacher salary and other operating budgets.

The minister said members of the task force would include education department officials and others from outside the department, perhaps of the university community, teacher and school trustee organizations.

She hoped to hear by late fall interim progress made by the study group.

Mrs. Dailly did not think there would be public hearings but she said there will be an opportunity for the public to make submissions on the task force.

ZONING BY-LAW CHANGE EASES CONVERSIONS

Victoria will relax its zoning bylaw to encourage the conversion of older (pre-1931) single-family homes to duplex and apartment use.

Under current requirements a property to be accepted for conversion must have a minimum lot width of 60 feet plus site area of 6,000 square feet for a duplex or 7,200 square feet for a miltiple-dwelling conversion.

Acting on the advice of its Advisory Planning Commission Thursday, city council decided to cut this lot with requirements from an average of 60 feet to 50 feet, and set 6,000 square feet as the minimum site area for all types of vintage home conversions.

The policy is designed to encourage rehabilitation of older parts of the city such as James Bay and also to increase the city's housing stock.

Ald. Sam Bawlf noted that in such areas there are many large older homes on substantial lots which are suitable for conversion, but up to now they have been ineligible because they have only 50-foot frontages.

In other business, Ald. Alf Hood as acting mayor exercised his right under the Municipal Act to stall for 30 days the rezoning of the Moffitt House property at 512 Simcoe, which was given final approval by council July 11.

The rezoning would have allowed the former rooming house to be used commercially for housing professional offices. The applicant is lawyer William McKechnie.

After the meeting Hood would only explain his action by saying that "circumstances have apparently changed" since the rezoning approval and the matter needs to be reviewed.

NDP 'Forcing New Serfdom'

A latter-day "serfdom" system is being created by the NDP government's policy of emphasizing the co-operative housing concept to the exclusion of individual home ownership, Victoria Ald. Sam Bawlf charged Thursday.

"This approach is locking people into a peasant status indefinitely," he said. "I think we are going back 600 years or so to when people were living as tenants of the lord of the manor."

Bawlf said the fact that most co-operative schemes preclude both eventual ownership and the ability to build up equity in a home effectively renders those who occupy such housing "immobile."

"If a better job comes along, say, in Toronto in a few years' time they can't move, they can't elevate themselves, because all they can take out with them is the bare couple of thousand they paid for their initial membership share.

"They are locked into this social status of not being able to own their own house. They've built up no equity to keep abreast of inflation and meanwhile the rest of the market has moved on merrily past them," he said.

Bawlf said the people of B.C. should be vitally concerned over the economic and sociological problems inherent in the present government's "philosophical" enthusiasm for co-ops.

Public land and public money in ample quantities are being used to promote this type of housing on a large scale, apparently without proper consideration of alternatives which could still enable home ownership, he said.

Bawlf's interview comments were a more forceful repetition of concerns he expressed at a council-in-committee meeting earlier this week, when members of the Wilderness Park housing co-op outlined to council their plans for a 38-unit complex on a three-acre site at Summit and Jackson.

The land in question is being leased to the group by the provincial government at four per cent of its market value annually, spokesmen explained.

Bawlf told reporters Thursday that since the meeting he has had a better opportunity to examine the assisted home ownership porograms available under the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

He said these are so advantageous for the lower wage earner, with a substantial "forgiveness" factor on mortgage payments, that a co-operative approach based on sale-for-ownership would produce "virtually identical" monthly payments to those quoted by the Wilderness Park group — assuming continuation of the land lease from the government and based on a unit construction price of around $30,000.

Yet in that case co-op members would have the satisfaction of buying rather than leasing their homes, and being able to accumulate equity.

Bawlf theorized that the reason this concept is not being adequately explored in B.C. is because "the province is saying this (co-ops) is the kind of housing we are going to produce — take it or leave it."

Tunnel Start Set

A December start for the $3-million tunnel underneath Douglas Street at Trans-Canada Highway is the target of current planning by the provincial highways department.

Highways Minister Graham Lea said Thursday he hoped to call for tenders on the project this winter, pending solution of some minor technical problems involving the city of Victoria and approaches from Blanshard Street.

The route eventually will allow traffic on Blanshard to flow uninterrupted from a point on or near Maple in Saanich under Douglas to the Trans-Canada, and for Patricia Bay Highway traffic across over on to Douglas.

Gas Sold At 54 Cents

The Car Wash on Gorge Road sells gasoline at a discount price of 54.9 cents a gallon and a car wash is optional, manager Robert Macmillan said today.

A Times story Thursday erroneously said the wash was not optional.

Macmillan said the company offers a one-day-a-week gas special to build up its car wash business and is prepared to bring the price even lower if a price war breaks out.

Tractor Mishap

Charles Carl Gard, 72, of 934 Latoria, died Wednesday when his tractor overturned and pinned him to the ground.

Police said they believe Gard was using the tractor to pull logs out of a wooded area on his small farm.

District Judge John Sirica: "We will undertake to do it as quickly as possible."

However, Sirica told St. Clair: "I think you're making this thing more complicated than it should be."

St. Clair later agreed to surrender tapes of 20 conversations relating to the Watergate political espionage scandal by next Tuesday and to speed work on 44 others.

It was also revealed today that Nixon still had not paid by the end of June all of the delinquent taxes he promised to pay.

The judiciary committee said Nixon pledged April 3 to pay $432,787 in delinquent taxes. By June 19, he had given the Internal Revenue Service only $284,706, leaving a balance of $148,081.

According to the Washington bureau of Cox newspapers, Nixon threatened to fire former treasury secretary George Shultz if he tried to stop the White House from using the ICS for political purposes.

The threat, the story said, came during the last 17 minutes of a 50-minute meeting Sept. 15, 1972, between Nixon, his former chief of staff H R. Haldeman and counsel John Dean.

A transcript of the tape recording of the conversation was obtained by the Cox newspapers.

The story said the three were discussing the possibility that Shultz would balk at illegal use of the IRS when Nixon said:

"... I don't want George Schultz to ever raise the question because it would put me in the position of having to throw him out of the office. He didn't get to be secretary of the treasury because he has nice blue eyes. It was a goddamn favor to him to get that job."

YETI MEET CONFIRMED

KATMANDU (Reuter) — Nepalese police have confirmed evidence of an encounter between a yak herder and a yeti, the abominable snowman of the Himalayas.

The Nepalese news agency said a team of police sent to verify the story returned with photographs of footprints the young Sherpa herder said she marked with stones.

The agency said the police found the footprints at a place called Marche, situated above Periche, the last inhabited area in the Everest region. The footprints were found at an elevation of about 14,000 feet.

Lapka Sherpani, 19, said she was knocked unconscious and five of her yakes were killed by the yeti. She said the creature was covered in dark, thick hair.

The footprints were between 10 and 12 inches long and more than four inches wide, police said.

Nixon Slashes 40,000 Jobs

Cobbler practises craft as lawyer looks on

LOS ANGELES — An economic policy calling for budget cuts, a federal payroll slash of 40,000 persons and an appeal that all United States citizens salt away 15 cents for every $10 spent, was outlined by President Nixon Thursday.

Dismissing the possibility of an economic "shock treatment," Nixon said an income tax cut or a new round of wage-price controls "would be like pouring gasoline on a raging fire."

Measures to bring "short-term relief too often bring long-term grief," he told a nationally-broadcast meeting of West Coast businessmen.

Here is how Nixon summarized his approach:

"A policy to check inflation is fundamentaly a policy to curb the growth of demand relative to the growth of supply. In the short run, attention must focus on holding down the increase in demand, because with few exceptions increasing supply takes a considerable amount of time."

Repeating a pledge to balance the budget due for submission to Congress in January, Nixon also said he will try to hold spending in the current budget year, which began July 1, to close to $300 billion.

This would represent a cut of nearly $5 billion from his goal seven months ago.

"I call on state and local governments, on businesses and consumers to hold down their spending and increase their own savings as their contribution to the fight against higher prices," he said.

Cautioning that "impatience is the great enemy of a sound policy," Nixon asked consumers for "a measure of sacrifice in the short run in order to ensure stable growth in the long run."

The answer to inflation, Nixon said, "lies in choosing a sensible, realistic course and sticking to it — whatever the pressures — and that is exactly what we will do."

The tight money policy would not produce a credit crunch that would plunge the economy into a recession or worse, Nixon pledged.

COURT GOES TO COBBLER

Victoria provincial court moved lock, stock, and gavel to a small shoe repair shop on Fort Street Thursday afternoon for a first-hand lesson in shoemaking.

The court retinue — Judge William Ostler, prosecutor Peter Birkett, defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood, court officer Sgt. John Burdyny, and court clerk Art Reid — moved into the crowded confines of Gaudio Super Shoe Repairs at 772 Fort to watch Raffaele Gaudio and his son, Guy, make a shoe.

Owen-Flood had requested the visit to demonstrate the shoemakers' art.

The Gaudios had been charged with fraud. The charge was laid by a customer who spent $105 for a pair of hand-made shoes. The customer contended, however, the shoes were really machine-made and likely worth far less.

The trial began May 8 with two witnesses testifying the shoes the man had bought were mostly white navy issue dyed black — "pusseybucks" in the jargon of the service. A Victoria area shoemaker estimated them to be worth between $35 and $40.

The trial had resumed Thursday, and after a no-evidence motion by Owen-Flood failed, court moved to the shoe shop.

For four hours Ostler and the others sat or stood in a semi-circle around the shoemaker's bench watching Gaudio and his son work the leather, canvas, and felt into the shape of a shoe.

Owen-Flood had asked them to make the shoe using the same materials and tools they had used to fabricate the pair sold to the complainant.

Court sat silent, occasionally interjecting a question. The whirl of a sewing machine, the tapping of a hammer filled the workshop which was cluttered to the rafters with shoes and lasts and the tools of the trade.

Gaudio explained he made a shoe by using new materials and by taking bits and pieces from individual shoes which he bought by the hundreds from stores in the area.

He'd take a lining from one shoe, a part of a heel from another, an insole from a third, the leather of a tongue from a fourth, and so one, explained his son Guy.

When the shoe was finished, court adjourned until today for further argument.

Taking court to the scene is nothing new for Ostler's court and is favored by Owen-Flood. He requested three such moves in recent years — the others to the White Spot restaurant, 3651 Douglas, and the Coronet Theatre to view Wild Honey, the subject of an obscenity case.

Shrum Says Hydro Hike Scandalous

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rate increases announced this week by British Columbia Hydro were called "scandalous" Thursday by former Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum.

The 20 per cent increase to household users was bad enough but the 70 per cent increase on industry was much worse, he said.

"In the last financial statement over which I had responsibility (1971-72) we were almost embarrassed by a surplus that threatened to touch $27 million," Shrum added. "We cut it by prepaying some expenditures due to come up in 1972-73, and came out with a $21 million surplus."

Hydro, he said in an interview, has managed to dissipate that favorable position despite having the benefit of the prepayments.

Great Whale Watch Set

The great whale watch — in waters between Victoria and Campbell River — is on from Aug. 1 to 10.

Dr. Michael Bigg, marine mammalogist at Nanaimo's Pacific Biological Station, said Thursday he is asking for public assistance during the 10-day count of killer whales.

Boaters or people on shore between Victoria and Campbell River who spot a killer whale or a pod of whales during that time are asked to call the station collect, at any hour, 758-6432, and report their sighting.

Bigg said eight radio-equipped boats will be stationed at strategic locations and will be directed to the sightings.

Crews will then use cameras to photograph at close range the dorsal fins of the whales.

The dorsal fins of killer whales get nicked by unknown but natural causes and photos of the fins, when examined under magnification, show a distinctive pattern of nicks for each whale, Bigg said.

The technique will enable census takers to determine numbers as well as patterns of movement.

With a Carrot or a Stick?

A measure of our times may be seen in the possibility that Human Resources Minister Levi's suggestion to move welfare recipients to areas in the province where work is available will be greeted by many persons as a diabolical manoeuvre akin to forced labor. A few years ago such a move by government would have been hailed as an inspired outpouring of generous statesmanship.

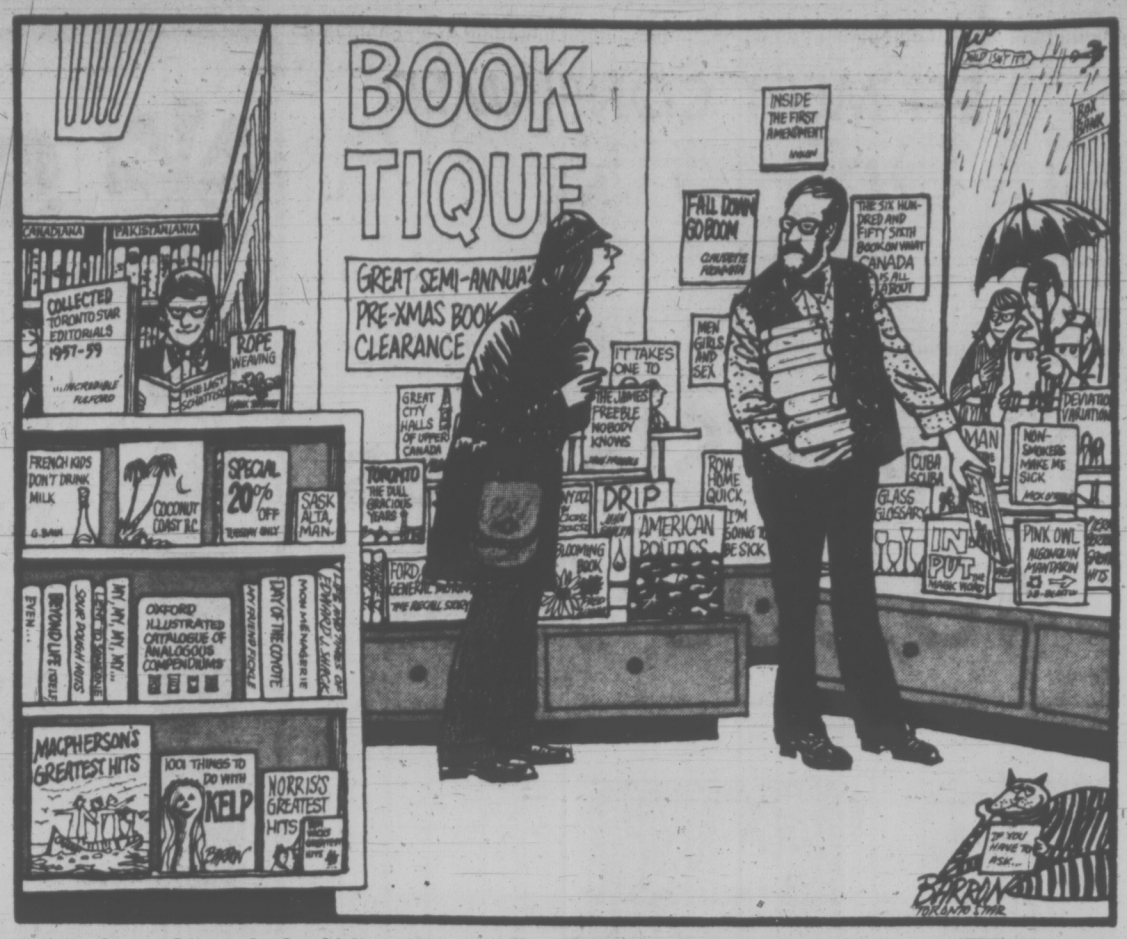
It is clear that the size and availability of welfare payments today must have a great deal to do with the altered view of work-producing policies. But there is in addition a whole new approach to the hard fact of making a living: mere self-support is no longer viewed by many persons as a worthy end in itself.

The philosophy attracts its supporters and opponents, but there is no question that many taxpayers view their mounting burden with dismay and resentment, and inevitably point to able-bodied young men and women who exist apparently indefinitely on public funds.

The problem may be only the thin edge of the wedge of the affluent, automated society that has been so long predicted, in which people will work only a few years of their lives and spend the rest in leisure or self-improvement. The interim period of such a fundamental change is bound to be beset with maladjustments.

In the meantime, however, we have the paradox of jobs here, unemployed persons there, and little attempt to merge the two. Mr. Levi's proposal, still in a very tentative form, appears designed to solve this impasse. Will it succeed on the basis of the carrot's lure of increased income, or will it require the stick of firm deprivation of public support? Will the plan really consist of the provision of opportunities that will be gladly seized, or will it be a thinly disguised work-or-starve confrontation?

Much of the public reaction will depend on how the proposition is presented. But it is obvious that the time has not yet come when individuals should be permitted to opt for a lifetime of public support, particularly in a country where many jobs are calling for men and women. Let's face it: until human beings are trained for it, the life-of-leisure philosophy is not one which many young persons can successfully manage; a workless condition will in most cases result in deterioration of the individual. It will also result in deterioration of the country and a consequent inability to support non-workers — both voluntary and involuntary — in relative comfort. Mr. Levi will have a difficult task to work out the details, but he is bound to gather a lot of support.



"... do you have a book which explains how a person can stop reading books all the time and get out there into where the action is they're always writing about ...?"

Encapsulated Corporate Thinking

Turn almost any corner in downtown Victoria these days and the way is blocked by barricades, machinery and men hard at work ripping up the streets. It almost seems to be an unwritten law that when the streets fill up with summer traffic, Hydro, B.C. Tel and the city crews trot out their machinery and tear up the pavement.

The explanation is simple, if difficult to digest for drivers who find themselves stuck in a long line of traffic trying to inch its way down Hillside, Blanshard, or a dozen other streets. Hydro, B.C. Tel and the city do not communicate with each other about their progressive plans for Victoria. With such encapsulated corporate thinking a situation could arise where B.C. Tel hacks away at Street A in 1972 only to have Hydro crews rip it up again in 1973, and finally the city has a go at the potholes in 1974. As Victoria Ald. Alf Hood has noted, the city has not appropriated much money for street repairs over the last few years and now all the roadwork is coming in a rush. Ald. Hood is right when he says this work should be spread out where possible and co-ordinated with other utilities.

Some inconvenience is unavoidable as Victoria's old sewer and water mains are replaced, new buildings requiring services are built and underground wiring progresses. But Ald. Hood should press his arguments in council for a more efficient, co-ordinated method of achieving progress on and under Victoria streets.

An Uncontrollable Echo

It is an interesting reflection on the recent Canadian federal election campaign to read that the United States government will now resort to fiscal and monetary restraint to fight inflation. Although the U.S. venture into prices and incomes control was at worst a fiasco, at best a zero effect, it was at times during the Canadian campaign referred to as a success by speakers trying to bolster Mr. Stanfield's efforts to sell the idea to this country's voters.

Apparently the experts in Washington do not agree with Mr. Stanfield. One presidential adviser, Mrs. Anne Armstrong, announces that the policy now will be to balance the budget more closely, and to "narrow the gap between the growth in the money supply and the growth in the supply of goods that money can purchase." Mrs. Armstrong adds that wage and price controls did little for consumer confidence because they were not a lasting solution and "eventually contributed to inflation."

The search for a remedy through fiscal and monetary means is what the Liberals advocated during the campaign. The Washington adviser certainly provides vindication for the Trudeau-Turner approach, and a very definite finale for Mr. Stanfield's at times almost one-man campaign for controls.

Adoptions: Parent and Child

May I straighten out some misconceptions about the work of the Family and Children's Law Commission in connection with the Adoption Act.

Our Adoption Act appears to need clarification. Section 13 as it stands now, on one interpretation, allows any one, including an adopted person, to apply either to the attorney-general or to the Supreme Court for access to his file with a view to discovering the identity of his natural parents. The act provides that notice must be given to the attorney-general and the superintendent of child welfare. But it does not say that notice must be given to the adoptive parents or to the natural parents. Nor does the act lay down any guidelines which the attorney-general or the court must consider before deciding whether or not to open the file.

A number of problems arise in this connection.

There is the question, to what extent should adoptive parents be given information about the physical characteristics and background of their adopted child's natural parents? There doesn't seem to be any uniform practice in this connection, although in recent years the trend has been to provide a full description, without of course, any disclosure of the identity of the natural parents.

Everyone seems to agree that it is essential that adequate medical and genetic information about an adopted child's natural parents should be transmitted to his adoptive parents. This is not a simple matter. How can you develop ways of transmitting such information discovered many years after the adoption has gone through?

However, it is the question of an adopted person's accessibility to information regarding the identity of his natural parents that has aroused the greatest concern. A number of proposals have been made to us, for the purpose of clarifying the legislation, including the proposal for a reunion registry. This proposal has been put forward in good faith by social workers with a good deal of experience in placement of children who had seen those same children return to them later on, as teen-agers or adults, anxious to find out the identity of their natural parents and distressed about it. We were told that in some cases it might well be essential to an adopted person's emotional wellbeing to have this information.

It is plain that it is only in a very small number of cases that adopted persons have exhibited a desire to seek out their natural parents or that it can be said that it is essential to their emotional well-being that they should be allowed to do so. Secondly, those who have put forward the proposal have said that any right conferred upon a person to seek out his natural parents should be a right that can only be exercised upon reaching the age of maturity (presumably at 19 or at some later age).

An appeal for opinions on the question of disclosure of the identity of adopted children and their natural parents.

Our commission feels obliged to consider any proposal put forward in good faith which relates to the work of our commission. That is why the commission is prepared to listen to those who have argued for some recognition of what they regard as a person's fundamental right to know who he is (in the sense of knowing who his natural parents are, and knowing who his brothers and sisters are). In the same way, our commission must consider the point of view expressed quite forcefully by adoptive parents in opposition to any kind of reunion registry. They have argued that those persons who have adopted children in the past did so on the understanding that confidentiality would be preserved, and that if any proposal for a reunion registry were to be accepted, it should not apply to past adoptions.

At the same time we have sought to persuade those groups of adoptive parents who have made their views known to us, to tell us what changes they feel should be made in the Adoption Act to clarify the situation. The act now leaves it to the attorney-general to decide, or to a supreme court judge to decide, upon such grounds as he considers adequate, whether an adopted person should have the right to find out from the file the identity of his natural parents. We have suggested that these groups ought to consider whether the attorney-general should have the power to disclose the contents of the file. True, he does not do so now. But that is a matter of policy, not of legislation, and policies may change. It may be that the attorney-general ought not to have this power. If he shouldn't have it, what about the superintendent of child welfare? Should he have the power? Should anyone in the executive branch of government have the power?

Many adoptive parents have said no to that. They have urged that only a supreme court judge should have the power to open the file. We have suggested that, if that is sound, then it should not be left to the judge to decide what the grounds ought to be, that would justify the opening of the file, but that the grounds should be clearly laid down in the act. We have asked adoptive parents to suggest what grounds they think would be adequate in an appropriate case.

Let me emphasize that, in dealing with the difficulties resulting from the way the Adoption Act now stands, we have expressed our willingness to consider all bona fide proposals. We have invited further submissions from groups of adoptive parents. This invitation extends to all who are interested in these matters, and who have not been in touch with us so far. Let us have your proposals in writing by September. Our commission has not reached any conclusions one way or the other on these matters.

Hon. Mr. Justice T. R. Berger, Chairman, Family and Children's Law Commission, Box 44, Court House, 800 West Georgia St., Vancouver, B.C. V6C 1P6.

Footnotes to Historical Hatred

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia — One can only begin to comprehend the venom that poisons Sino-Soviet relations by reading the final instalment of Nikita Khrushchev's dictated memoirs, "The Last Testament" (Little, Brown and Co.) as I have recently done on the long flight here.

Khrushchev was Russia's boss for more than a decade, during which Marxism's grand alliance broke up in rancor. Yet, despite the fact that Mr. K. lost power a decade ago and is now dead, by reading his memoirs one better appreciates why there is still so much bitterness in Peking.

Although the present Moscow regime dislikes Khrushchev even as a memory, it has obviously not managed to convince the Chinese that its policy has changed. After all, Leonid Brezhnev's predecessor threw the whole book at Mao Tse-tung — indeed, Lenin's collected works. And since Mao is still in power and revered, the insult is manifest.

Passionate Hatred

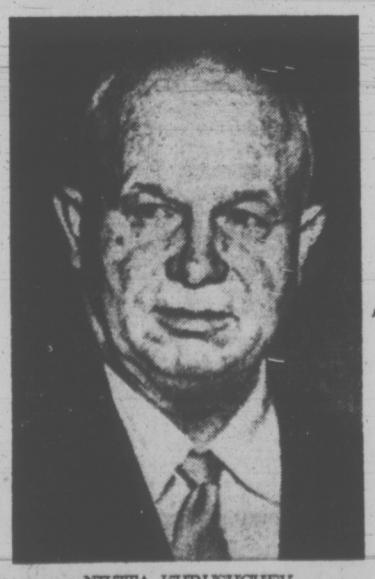
Khrushchev's hatred for Mao was passionate. He writes of his "chauvinism and arrogance." He recollects that Stalin (whom he also abhorred) once said: "What kind of a man is Mao, anyway? He calls himself a Marxist, but he doesn't understand the most elementary Marxist truths." (Khrushchev adds smugly: "I think he was justified in his doubts about Mao.")

He says: "Like Stalin, Mao was deeply suspicious." Of one Chinese leader, he recounts: "Most probably Mao had him strangled or poisoned. Mao was capable of such things, just as Stalin was." He continues: "Mao and Stalin were kindred spirits."

He insists: "Mao suffered from the same megalomania Stalin had all his life ... I remember my conversations with Mao ... I was struck by how much he sounded like Stalin ... He had nothing good to say about anyone."

According to Khrushchev, in 1957 "Mao gave a speech, the gist of which was as follows: 'We shouldn't be afraid of atomic bombs and missiles ... If the imperialists unleash war on us, we may lose more than three hundred million people. So what? War is war ...' To me his words sounded like baby talk."

He says China's unsuccessful Great Leap Forward was "the invention of Mao Tse-tung and no one else ... He wanted to impress the world — especially the Socialist world — with his genius and leadership ... Under Mao the Chinese interpret Marxism-Leninism any way they please. Instead of adhering to the scientific laws of economics, they operate on slogans — nothing but slogans."



NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV
... bitterness in Peking

Khrushchev sneers: "Mao had wanted for a long time to be recognized by his people not only as a leader but as a god ... He published excerpts from his speeches and proclaimed them as commandments which everybody is supposed to learn by heart ... Do the Chinese think Mao really has super-natural powers, and that a surgeon will be able to cure his patient if he knows Mao's sayings by heart?"

It is worth stressing that these opinions were not published in Moscow but were printed abroad from dictated tapes smuggled out of the U.S.S.R. Yet it is plain that quite apart from the violent hatred he had for Mao — as well as for Stalin, who is still venerated in China — Khrushchev mirrors a vast prejudice still clouding Sino-Soviet relations that is neither personal nor ideological but racial and national.

He accuses the Chinese of coveting Vladivostok and "a substantial area" in Soviet Central Asia. He blames them for stirring up "the trouble with India," giving the Indonesian Communist party such poor advice that it "came to a sad end," and withdrawing "experts and workers" from North Vietnam. He suspects Mao's reasons for agreeing to furnish Chinese labor to Siberia:

"What had the Chinese been up to? I'll tell you: They wanted to occupy Siberia without war. They wanted to penetrate and take over the Siberian economy ... In short, they wanted to make Siberia Chinese rather than Russian."

Inferiority Complex

Khrushchev was infuriated with Peking for all sorts of reasons including the fact that the Chinese gave him a personal inferiority complex; he even resented the way they drank tea.

As if to insure a posthumous gift of even more trouble than today exists between Moscow and Peking, he curiously adds: "After Liu (Shao-chi," who was purged before Lin Piao), our favorite Chinese leader was Chou En-lai." Poor Chou, that elegant pragmatist. No wonder he has spent weeks convalescing in a hospital. A blessing from Mr. K. was all he didn't need.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

CPR Ferries

Your June 17 news story "Lengthy Waits for Ferries" contains an erroneous reference to the situation faced by travellers with automobiles on CP Rail's service to Seattle and Port Angeles.

The article refers to people with cars having to make reservations two or three days ahead of time.

While we naturally recommend that people with cars do reserve well ahead, we have so far this season been able to accommodate all those who have reserved car spaces right up to sailing time. On only two days so far have we had to waitlist automobiles and in both cases those waitlisted were boarded.

In the interests of the travelling public, your co-operation would be appreciated in publishing this clarification. — R. A. Ferguson, Regional Manager, Public Relations and Advertising, Canadian Pacific.

More Than Willing

I am writing this letter in response to "a very concerned person's" letter of July 18, 1974. Disappointment over the fact that summer students are being forced to join unions was expressed. While I cannot speak for everyone, I am a student employed for the summer by B.C. Ferries and a new member of the Government Employees' Union, and so feel that I can reply to the concern.

Although I will only be working until September I am more than willing to join the union. In fact, I consider it an honor. I am being paid the wages which fellow workers bargained for through the union at an earlier date. I and other students are reaping the benefits of unionism and so should participate in the struggle. It is precisely because union membership is compulsory that any advancements have been made for the working class at all. Students are not scab laborers. We do not intend to threaten workers by taking their jobs. We want, at least temporarily to unite with them. Unionism affords us this educational, enlightening and inspirational experience. — Paula Davies, 3740 Craigmillar Rd.

Choosing Sides

I wish politicians would make up their minds and stop being coy.

I mean the ones who will "announce their decision in a month or two." Why don't they stand up now and be counted?

There is only one party which can rid British Columbia of the socialist-communists under whom our ancient rights are being taken away one by one.

That is the Social Credit party with a solid base in the House and twenty years of achievement behind it.

"Unity Party," "Majority Movement" are only names with no organizations behind them. Don't count on them, nor the Conservative or Liberal parties. If we split the vote three ways again, the N.D.P. will win. That's what happened in '72. It can happen again.

Don't wait until election time to let your friends and neighbors know where you stand. Do it now!—Garnet Weston, 4021 Shelbourne St.

Interpretation

Your cartoon of Robert Stanfield at the cross roads was not only cheap, it was ignorant. Your cartoonist must have mixed with too few men of principle in public life to be able to interpret this man. — Paul Nanton, 3765 Cadboro Bay Rd.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 26, 1914

VIENNA — A message from Belgrade says the orders for the mobilization of the Servian army were given at three o'clock this afternoon. The King of Servia with his court and the garrison are leaving the Servian capital. The Servian government is to be conducted from Kraguyevatz, where there is an arsenal and an arms and munitions factory. Shortly before six o'clock the Austro-Hungarian minister at Belgrade presented a note to the Servian foreign office saying that the Servian reply was unsatisfactory. The Austro-Hungarian minister and the staff of the legation left Belgrade. An extension of 48 hours in which Servia may reply to Austria's note was requested by the French and Russian governments.

Only a Real Respect for Nature Can Save Us

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

The environmentalists who suggest that the rivers, the land and the air should have the right to sue for damages are the first to recognize that the proposal is ludicrous. Taken literally, the idea that a stream might sue the owners of a polluting pulp mill, or the northern tundra seek damages for the depredations of oil exploration crews, appealing as it is, will hardly wash. Not that it would be too difficult to appoint a protector or guardian to act on behalf of a river in taking the polluter to court. One can even stretch the imagination far enough to see a court awarding substantial damages to the environment.

But, to mature, the money would be only another form of litter. Man can stop polluting and destroying. But only nature can repair the damage once it has been done. The only body of law we have, enforceable in the courts, is built around the rights of human beings, as persons, and as owners of property. If there are laws under which humanity and nature alike must live they are not man-made, or subject to human courts.

But perhaps the proponents of environmental rights, like Professors John Livingston and William Leiss of York University, have, like the best satirists, found the most effective way of making an essential point. Simply to laugh at it would be like laughing off Alice in Wonderland as just a funny, or preposterous, story. For the truth is that humanity is part of nature, not above it or apart from it, and that human civilizations can survive in the long term only where there is respect for the environmental laws that existed long before the common law, or the laws of the Medes and Persians, had even been conceived.

For thousands of years human cultures have recognized this truth and expressed it in their myths, their literature and their art, often through stories of animals or plants taking revenge on the human beings who abused them. The barren, stricken land that refuses its food to the population is a central figure in fertility rituals that are much older than Christianity. Gods taking the form of nature, often to punish mankind, are familiar in Greek mythology. The ancient civilizations of the Indus and Nile worshipped their rivers as gods. North American Indian legend is steeped in belief that the wind, the rain, the sun and the land are beings dealing with each other, and with man, as conscious beings.

The noble race of Houyhnhnms, enlightened civilized horses who rule over a contemptible human breed called Yahoos in Gulliver's Travels, are a familiar example of the frequent appearances in literature of animals that turn the tables on man. Animals are common heroes in Canadian folklore. In our own time, nature as a powerful being remains a common theme in the works of poets like Margaret Atwood. In her Progressive Insanities of a Pioneer, for example, the green ordered chaos of the forest conquers the settler who had tried to impose on nature his own alien order of square fields and rigid fences.

Just fairy tales, irrelevant to a hard-nosed scientific age? In real life the Plains Indian respected the buffalo as a benefactor who supplied his people with food, clothing and shelter. He killed only to meet his needs. And the buffalo survived. It took the whites, who saw nature as an enemy to be conquered or a hoard to be looted, to wipe them out. After which the new settlers buckled down to destroy the prairie grasses with plows and turn the plains into a dust-bowl. The land's revenge, when it came, was devastating.

Our civilization, which may be the first in human history to view the animals, the plants and the land as existing only for exploitation by man, is coming perilously close to destroying the habitability of the earth, not only for other forms of life, but for man himself. We have, as Joni Mitchell put it, paved paradise and put up a parking lot so often that we have almost paved ourselves into a corner where we can no longer grow enough to feed ourselves.

Even enlightened self-interest should now be argument enough for stopping the soiling of the waters and the rape of the land. But the record suggests that even enlightened self-interest usually takes second place when it is in conflict with the mindless form of self-interest that cannot resist an immediate opportunity to make a buck, no matter what the cost may be to the next generation.

Professors Livingston and Leiss argue wisely that the needs and rights of the environment can only be protected if they are respected for their own sake, and not merely for the impact their infringement may have on people. And in a legalistic society, in which each individual is devoted to the pursuit of his own rights and interests, they have found an effective way of making sure that their message captures the attention it deserves.

Trudeau Facing Trouble From His Women

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — An election campaign is a physical strain and an emotional jag for all those in politics, and polling day is a climax which leaves some satiated and exhausted and others strung on a high from which they find it hard to descend to routine.

Margaret Trudeau seems to be one of those on a continuing campaign high. She has caught the political fever — or perhaps in her case it is a hereditary disease—and the other day she not only turned up at her husband's press conference where she had no real business, but even gossiped with journalists about cabinet possibilities.

★ ★ ★

If she wants to try and get elected in some future election and sit with her husband in Parliament, that would be fine, and good luck to her. If there is some public office for which she is obviously qualified, I would not cry conflict of interests if the Prime Minister wanted to appoint her — although others might not be as generous. Or if she prefers to stay home and give private advice, she no doubt can be a power behind the scenes in the manner of many wives.

But if she hangs around on the public fringe of politics with interest and enthusiasm but no clearly defined role, she is going to get herself and her husband into difficulties.

The Prime Minister may also have trouble with the other women in his political entourage—the female Liberals who believe that their leader at last has the opportunity to appoint more of their sex to the cabinet.

True there are now eight women Liberal MPs from four provinces, compared with three from Quebec in the last House. But none of the newcomers may make it into the cabinet right away.

Science Minister Jeanne Sauve is the only woman in the present cabinet. She has not made a public splash with her department and, come to think of it, one does not hear much about her general effectiveness in cabinet, but presumably she will continue to be a minister. That probably rules out her sisters from Quebec, Monique Begin and Albanie Morin, because there are more senior male Liberals from the province and some regional balance has to be preserved.

The two women from Metro Toronto, Ursula Appolloni and Aideen Nicholson, may also be excluded by competition from more experienced men. Toronto already has its fair share of ministers, and if a vacancy occurs there are several pressing male candidates: John Roberts, for example, who has had experience not only in the Commons but as policy secretary to the Prime Minister.

★ ★ ★

There is a ministerial vacancy in British Columbia, where Jack Davis was defeated, and there are two women MPs. Simma Holt, elected in place of Grace MacInnis in Vancouver Kingsway, has been described as a "Mary Worth on speed," which indicated that however worthy, she may be somewhat erratic, which is not a quality which appeals to Trudeau.

The other B.C. woman is Iona Campagnola, an alderman in Prince Rupert who surprised almost everybody by beating the NDP's Frank Howard in Skeena. When Trudeau was in the riding, she made a speech which impressed at least some members of his entourage — including Mrs. Trudeau, it seems — and gives her some claim to succeed Davis as environment minister.

On the other hand, there is Len Marchand, who has been MP for Kamloops since 1968 and has even longer experience in government. He is an Indian, a minority group as deserving of special attention as women, and Trudeau must surely choose him before Ms. Campagnola.

★ ★ ★

That leaves Coline Campbell from Nova Scotia. But the province already has its quota in the cabinet with the presence of the indispensable Allan MacEachen. Anyway, Trudeau promised the Atlantic provinces he would appoint a fisheries minister, and one can hardly see a woman in that role. Or is that sexism raising its fishy head?

Trudeau's solution may be to say that new MPs need experience in the Commons before becoming ministers, which would be sensible enough, and appoint some or all of his female followers as parliamentary secretaries to established ministers.

The only woman Tory, Flora MacDonald, is said to be considering running for the leadership of her party when Robert Stanfield steps down. Certainly she ought to be a candidate, not because she could win but because she is well qualified to be a trail blazing pioneer.

She spent years as a national organizer for the Tory party and eventually was elected national secretary. She has thought deeply and written well about the political process. She advised the Royal Commission on the Status of Women about the place of women in politics and how to improve it, although her more radical ideas were not accepted. When she sought election to the Commons in 1972, she ran a model campaign which captured the Liberal seat of Kingston.

HOLT
... not his type

She could not win the leadership, I think, because she is one of those who helped Dalton Camp force a review of John Diefenbaker's leadership, so she is unacceptable to some sections of the party.

In fact, when Stanfield appointed her spokesman on Indian and northern affairs in the last House, Dief is said to have commented: "Don't the poor Indians have enough to put up with without her?"

★ ★ ★

But wouldn't it be wonderful if Flora could win the Tory leadership? All of a sudden, the party would be exciting and adventurous instead of appearing slightly quaint and musty.

A last random thought: Now that Trudeau is being modest in victory, reserved in his public comments and even polite to the press, we cannot in fairness continue to accuse him of arrogance. We need a new pejorative adjective.

How about complacent?

ULSTER'S SMALL BUSINESSMEN

A Losing Battle for Survival

By KEVIN MYERS

LISBURN, Northern Ireland — On 30 March this year Frederick McMahon arrived back from a skiing holiday and went straight to his shop in Lisburn's Bow Street. He was in time to see its interior gutted by a 400-lb. car bomb which scoured out large portions of the street and brought his total damages from Provisional IRA bombing expeditions to about $240,000.

Frederick McMahon, a twice-wounded veteran of D-day, was not unduly surprised by the damage. His shop has been blasted four times in the last three years. All around him, his neighbors have been hit by incendiaries and high explosives, and opposite, Woolworth's department store looks blindly through hardboard windows at a passing trade that will do little else for a good while to come yet.

Debts Multiply

Mr. McMahon's lot is similar to that of many Northern Ireland's small traders, particularly those in major bomb target areas, whose premises are successively devastated and rebuilt, and who live largely on the sufferance of patient bank managers. With an overdraft of $160,000 and little immediate sign of substantial compensation lifting the dreadful burden of huge debts multiplying daily with remorseless interest, Mr. McMahon runs a business that is now merely ticking over.

Since October, 1971, when his premises were first damaged by a car bomb, the McMahon drapery shop-cum-travel agency has had only 103 days normal trading out of a possible 673. That first car bomb did $17,000 worth of damage for which he has received an emergency payment of $7,500 from the government.

Tunnel to Shop

In March, 1972, shortly before the spring season and its boisterous sales arrived, a car bomb left outside the shop blasted its frontage into small pieces and its stock into valueless rags. The persevering Mr. McMahon, with 28 shop assistants and no shop, erected prefab huts on waste ground at the back of Bow Street, which his intrepid customers reached by a tunnel through the rubble.

Of Mr. McMahon's $150,000 claim for compensation following this bomb, he has only received $20,000. That cheque arrived just three weeks before another bomb was delivered to his front door.

After the second bomb, proper trading was ruled out for almost nine months, during which the lacklustre 50th anniversary of McMahon's drapery store was celebrated. The summer and autumn seasons were lost, and just before Christmas 1972, McMahon's departmental store, 28-30 Bow Street, Lisburn, reopened for normal business.

24 Days of Peace

Nine days later a car bomb 100 yards away did $1,500 worth of damage to the display windows and stock. Shortly afterwards, the shop was hit by the effects of the miners strike in Britain.

After another 24 days of normal trading, a 400-lb. car bomb left outside the shop gouged out half of the stock and most of the expensively-installed fittings in, which Mr. McMahon had invested, perhaps foolishly, the previous year. Estimated damage, $75,000.

But the new reinforced concrete and steel frontage survived, and Mr. McMahon, a stocky man with an amiable fatalism, obligingly indicates the scars of war around his shop. Two renewed slabs of tar outside reveal where the car bombs were. Sagging ceilings, cracked walls, half the shop frontage still closed and twisted light flex coiled in powerless knots show the effects of the last explosion.

"It could have been worse," he says cheerfully. "No one was hurt, and not all of our stock was damaged. We'd be in a worse position if it hadn't been for our travel agency. That was our lifeline, even when we'd lost our stock. That always kept some money flowing in."

A neighbor of Mr. McMahon's knows why Lisburn is such a popular target. "It's the army headquarters," he says. "They can't seal off the street because troops might need quick movement through the town, and the Provisionals can snub their nose at them by bombing shops just a few hundred yards from their Northern Ireland headquarters."

Living on a Prayer

Frederick McMahon is not knocking on the poorhouse door. He owns a Porsche sports car, and he is able to take holidays abroad. But his business survives on a prayer and the comforting, though temporary, absence of Micawber's doctrines of commerce concerning profit and loss. Mr. McMahon, with some $220,000 in compensation still owed to him and his business ravaged, feels he and many other traders have their backs to the wall. "We are fighting a losing battle for survival," he says.

The Weeping Romantic

By STANLEY REYNOLDS
Manchester Guardian

"He plays mostly folksongs and the others hum with him. They are like a country of dark hills that sing far down under the ground. The sound of the violin stands like a slender girl above it and is clear and alone. The voices cease and the violin continues alone. In the night it is so thin it sounds frozen. . . ."

That was on the page but all round me, like a hostile attack, is the sound of rock 'n' roll, hard rock, whatever they call it: pop music. God! I am reading "All Quiet On The Western Front" on a rock river cruise with a disco blaring away and people, young kids and thugs, dancing about like savages, doing the most lewd things with their pelvises. One lout is dancing and holding his right elbow with his left hand and dangling his right fore-arm in the most suggestive manner.

Suddenly I begin to have these flashes of understanding, insight or what have you. I understand it all, anyway. I have been reading "The Gulag Archipelago" and now I am reading "All Quiet On The Western Front" for the first time and I can see that the whole world has gone to hell and that all the old buffers were right when they said it went to hell in 1914-18 and hasn't been the same since. It's got worse. Each decade is worse than the one before. And there is no better way of studying this than studying pop music which is what everybody is listening to and must be a guide to the spiritual and aesthetic feelings of the times. This is so appalling I don't want to live any more.

"Listen," she says, "why don't you go up on top and let the air clear your head."

Well, that might be right. I had run into a couple of bad vintages of the old sneaky pete the night before, but this is an awareness of the spiritual decay of our age I am having and not just another hangover.

She cannot understand this, of course. It is truly horrible being a romantic nowadays. She said she was going on the Saturday afternoon river cruise up the Mersey and I actually had some sort of Renoir vision of accordions playing waltzes. Violins like slender girls. I would sit on deck and finish "All Quiet On the Western Front" which is just the best war book I have ever read, the only real anti-war book, and even in translation this marvellous style comes through.

"Monotonously the lorries sway, monotonously comes the calls, monotonously falls the rain. It falls on our heads and on the heads of the dead up in the line, on the body of the little recruit with the wound that is so much too big for his hip; it falls on Kemmerich's grave; it falls in our hearts."

"O dark, musty platoon huts, with the iron bedsteads, the chequered bedding, the lockers and the stools! Even you can become the object of desire; out here you have a faint resemblance to home . . ."

My eyes felt like they had been weeping reading "All Quiet." Solzhenitsyn's book is like this one, too. All the best books of our century are the same. They are all about imprisonment; the destruction of worlds, private and public. Even an old literary grandee like Nabokov, strutting down the page with a flower in his buttonhole, is a victim of a shattered world. And we, the survivors, the inheritors of the sacrifice of two generations of lost youth, what are we doing? A moron is crooning about sitting in the back row at the movies holding hands. I suppose this is a peaceful, harmless enough image. But it is crashing throughout the boat. There is no escaping it, even on the top deck with the wind picking up on the Irish Sea and whirling down the Mersey like a sword.

Solzhenitsyn loves the old dark towns full of trams; towns made for men and dogs and horses. And Erich Maria Remarque loves the Germany of beer gardens and seats under chestnut trees in the electric-light-strung evening. They are the dreams of the prisoner. "One o'clock, two o'clock, three o'clock rock!" the disco screams. But this is a nostalgic number. No one knows how to dance to it. They just pound their clogs, up and down and sway woodenly. Solzhenitsyn says a man shouldn't own anything more than he can put in a rucksack. And isn't this the ideal of this generation of youth who are dancing now with all the animation of cigar store Indians? Is it hell!

But I have to get up and dance to Rock Around The Clock because, after all, we were an appalling generation as well. Didn't I learn to jive in the whorehouses of Mexico? And at those lovely old wooden road houses, with their porches set out over the water, with the building actually going up and down, up and down, as the dancers went whirling to the polka. The Polish polka with great big Polish farm girls and mill girls dancing.

Standing between decks with the breeze coming in at me through the opened portholes and the ceiling above me vibrating with the disco clog dancers of Merseyside I feel like I am right back home 20 years ago with the polka playing and the wind coming up off the lake.

O fat, blonde, polka dancer, with your arms and elbows pumping up and down, with your big blonde laughter and beery breath! Even you can become the object of desire: out here you have a faint resemblance to sanity and quietude.

All our youths are lost. In a barrage of steel or a cacophony of kaku like this. "Hey! Rock and Roll!!"

"Go on," she said, "you might as well have one."

I said to a fellow standing at the bar, "Well," I said, "at least this rock cruise thing is only once a week."

"The hell it is," he said, "they do this every day."

Full Recreation Study In Squamish-Lillooet

A special task force of the provincial parks branch is studying the recreation and resource potential of the Squamish-Lillooet region.

The recreation and conservation department's parks long-range planning section is directing the work headed by Bill Munn, of Victoria, who was recently an Alberta provincial parks planner.

Engaged with him are University of Victoria graduate, Roy Korpess and Vancouver recreational consultant, Dougald MacDonald.

The three are gathering preliminary information to be completed with field work scheduled to begin the first week of August and lasting until about mid-September.

A three-part, in-depth look at existing recreational facilities will include interviews with resort operators, residents and tourists, the department said. The force will also examine access routes, potential recreation sites and land use conflicts.

Primary study area is the Squamish-Pemberton corridor including the lower Squamish River, Daisy, Alpha, Alta and Green Lakes, the Mount Whistler area and Pemberton.

Second study area is the Squamish River, Lillooet River, Anderson Lake, Seton Lake and Cayoosh Creek drainage basins, and the final segment for examination is the remainder of the Squamish-Lillooet-Seton and upper Pitt River drainage basins.

Co-operating in the work will be other government agencies oriented toward natural resources, such as B.C. Hydro and forestry and mines departments.

The inventory of all major outdoor recreation and conservation resources and existing facilities is of primary interest, but the task force will also examine and make recommendations for changes in park boundaries, particularly the western border of Garibaldi Park.

Park values, forest management and recreational potential would be considerations in the rationalization of boundary lines, the department said.

Finally, the force will examine and make recommendations concerning provincial outlays toward ski access roads and to assess potential impact of recreation on other land uses within the study area.

By the end of November, when the plan is expected to be ready, it will go before the provincial cabinet's land use committee for review, decision and implementation.

Elderly to Get Advice on Laws

Landlord-tenant problems and consumer legislation will be among topics to be discussed for the benefit of the elderly Tuesday at the Senior Citizens Centre, Centennial Square.

Three University of B.C. law students will also offer advice on wills and pensions through lectures and individual counselling.

The session, starting at 1:30 p.m., is open to all elderly persons.

SEALAW TEAM VISITS OILY 'SEWER'

CARACAS (CP) — Delegates to the United Nations conference on the law of the sea did not have to go far to find the effect Venezuela's oil industry has had on its environment.

Members of the 21-country conference visited Lake Maracaibo, compliments of two oil companies who have installations on the lake.

"Disgusting," said one Canadian official. "I am amazed that they have the nerve to show us this sewer."

In the areas where the lake is not black and shiny — indicative of oil slicks — it resembles a thick pea soup, green with dead algae.

The lake bed is soft, covered with six feet of muck, and 50,000 kilometres of pipeline. Almost half of the lake is dotted with oil rigs. There are more than 5,000 inoperative wells, their skeletons obscuring the horizon.

Lake Maracaibo has been killed by the thousands of barrels of oil that have been unintentionally spilled into its waters. And Lake Maracaibo flows directly into the sea.

Samples taken from every ocean of the world show a thin coating of oil, a fraction of a millimeter thick. The oil keeps a percentage of sunlight from reaching the ocean below.

More than 70 per cent of the world's oxygen supply is renewed through the biological action of plankton near the ocean's surface and on its bed.

The plankton dies when its exact quota of oxygen is not met. When it dies, so do the minute plants and animals that feed on it.

Dr. Rene van Grieken, a Belgian chemist, fears the thin film of oil also may be preventing the breaking of water bubbles that are formed due to the action of waves.

The majority of evaporation is through the breaking of these bubbles, and Dr. van Grieken looks upon recent droughts in various parts of the world as "a frightening indication that this oily film might already be interfering with the normal production of rainfall."

Points to Ponder While Serving Time

PENTICTON — A man with a total of 105 demerit points against his driving record has been sentenced to three months at Kamloops Correctional Centre after pleading guilty to driving while his licence was suspended. Patrick Cullum, 19, was also prohibited from driving for two years. Cullum has had 25 convictions in the past 24 months, most of them driving offences. He was caught driving in Surrey shortly after serving 21 days for driving while under suspension.

"I have seen some bad driving records over the years," commented Judge Ross Collver, "but none to match this one."

NEW YORK — A charge against Stephen Smith, brother-in-law of Sen. Edward Kennedy over an unpaid 60-cent taxi fare was dismissed in Manhattan Criminal Court Thursday. The prosecutor said the cab company did not wish to press charges.

NEW YORK — A 20-year-old self-confessed drug addict has been arrested for stealing a bicycle and a tennis racquet from John Kennedy Jr. in Central Park last May.

Robert Lopez turned himself in to detectives Thursday, apparently after hearing that a warrant was out for his arrest in connection with another mugging.

The suspect then took detectives to his home, where he produced the tennis racquet young Kennedy had been carrying the day of the theft.

flying over San Antonio, Tex., to land at the Mexican city of Monterrey, where they let off 102 passengers in return for $100,000 from Mexican authorities.

LAS VEGAS — Narcotics-possession charges against porno movie queen Linda Lovelace have been dismissed by a justice of the peace.

Judge Robert Legakes dropped two counts of possessing cocaine after ruling Thursday that police used an invalid search warrant when they entered Miss Lovelace's hotel room.

The 23-year-old star of Deep Throat was arrested at the Dunes Hotel last Jan. 31 with Los Angeles producer David Winter. The charges against him were dropped earlier.

VANCOUVER — Geoffrey Mott and Elsie Peskett, who wanted to marry more than a half a century ago but couldn't, will finally arrive at the altar Tuesday.

Mott, of Vancouver, was in pilot traning with the newly-formed Royal Flying Corps during the First World War when he was introduced by an aunt to Elsie in Essex, England.

She then was Elsie Mears, a 16-year-old schoolgirl. They fell in love. But, she says "my mother said Canada was a foreign country. And I was too young." Her mother forbade marriage.

At the end of the war, Mott returned to Vancouver, later married, raised a family and became a successful businessman.

Fifty-five years after they parted Mott, now a widower, wrote to resume a correspondence that had tailed off in the 1920s.

Mrs. Peskett immediately replied. She too now had been widowed. Finally, Mott suggested Elsie come to Vancouver. She agreed, and arrived two weeks ago.

KAMLOOPS — Ron Forkner, 24, was escorted Thursday to the border at Blaine, under armed guard.

Forkner was arrested July 15 in Merritt, 60 miles south of here, with his bride. He had been granted a temporary release from a reformatory in Munroe, Wash., to get married June 21. After the wedding Forkner and his bride escaped from a guard.

ST. LOUIS — Gerald Darsey, 27, and Robert Gebhart, 29, met each other at a softball game between their companies' teams.

Both players turned up winners because they discovered they were brothers who had not seen each other for 21 years.

Adopted by different families, they last met at Gebhart's eighth birthday party.

BUENOS AIRES — Two hijackers whose epic exploits captured the attention of the world in 1971 were extradicted to Mexico Thursday night.

The two are Robert Lee Jackson, 40, an American and Ligia Lucrecia Sanchez Arcilla, 27, from Guatemala.

They have been serving jail terms here for forcing a Braniff Airlines Boeing 707

Free Press Charges Dropped

WINNIPEG (CP) — Provincial Judge T. J. Lismer, Thursday dismissed six of eight charges of unfair labor practices against the Winnipeg Free Press and one of three similar charges against Publisher Richard C. Malone because a labor department inspector was not properly appointed to lay the charges.

Two charges against Malone and two charges against the newspaper of interfering with an employee's right to be represented by a guild unit will be tried Aug. 16.

Judge Lismer said the labor department official was instructed only to investigate a section of the Labor Relations Act which prohibits the employer or any person acting for the employer to interfere with the formation of a union.

The charges dismissed were filed under sections prohibiting a change of salary levels once a union as been certified as bargaining agent for the employees and employer intimidation of an employee involved in becoming a union member.

Judge Lismer ruled there is sufficient evidence before the court to establish the newspaper and its publisher to defend themselves against the four charges of interfering with employee rights to be represented by a guild unit.

Local 233 of The Newspaper Guild was certified last July as bargaining agent for employees in editorial and advertising departments and is seeking its first contract.

Buzz Off, Point Gal Tells IJC

POINT ROBERTS, Wash., (AP) — A proposed 3,000-square-mile international park that would include this tiny peninsula was overwhelmingly rejected Thursday in a poll taken during a legislative hearing on the Point's future.

"It was a very enthusiastic crowd and they don't have much support for the park idea," state Democratic Senator A. L. "Slim" Rasmussen of Tacoma, said after the first of a series of meetings on the proposal.

"I haven't made any conclusions yet, but I'm impressed with the united opposition from the public generally in this area," he said.

About 250 persons attended the hearing and, in a show of hands, only two indicated they favor the park, Rasmussen said.

The speakers Thursday included Manfred Vernon, one of the U.S. representatives on the Point Roberts Board which first proposed the huge park last year. The board is an advisory adjunct to the International Joint Commission, which includes representatives from the United States and Canada.

The proposed park would stretch from the Strait of Georgia near Nanaimo to the northern end of Whidbey Island in Washington. However approval of the two countries' national governments would be required.

Ruby White, a Point Roberts realtor and an opponent of the proposed international park, said "There was a definite trend asking the legislative committee to recommend that the International Joint Commission buzz off."

She said residents of the peninsula fear establishment of a park would deter growth of population and commerce and services at Point Roberts.

"They should stop studying us," she added. "We're a very over-studied area. If they laid all the studies end to end and waterproofed them, we could bring in water from South Seattle.

410 Tourist Cars In Northern Convoy

FORT NELSON (CP) — About 1,000 northbound tourists delayed by washouts and flooding of the Alaska Highway last week left here for Watson Lake Thursday.

The tourists, in a convoy of 410 vehicles spread out in groups at 20-mile intervals, were making the 320-mile trip under RCMP escort.

The Alaska Highway, which has been closed since last week because of numerous road and bridge washouts due to flooding, was to be opened to two-way traffic today.

Murray Stevens, of the British Columbia Emergency Programs-Organization in Prince George, said the highway was still in rough condition.

He said there are especially bad areas along the highway which should be travelled with extreme caution.

Stevens said crews would be working on the highway, with flagmen at washouts, and areas where men and equipment are working. Speed signs will be posted along the road, with the limits of 10 miles an hour at washouts.

He said an RCMP-escorted convoy of 35 vehicles which arrived here Wednesday from Liard Hot Springs, took 10 hours to make the 200-mile southbound trip.

He said the Stewart-Cassiar road, being used to get around the Alaska Highway tie-up, is also very rough.

Engineers Expect Firm Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations between the forest industry and 96 operating engineers who work in power plants of nine British Columbia mills are to continue next week.

William Kadey of the International Union of Operating Engineers, which represents the men, said there was a brief meeting Thursday and both sides are to meet next Wednesday.

He said he understands a firm offer will be put on the table one way or the other. "It looks like a stall until the International Woodworkers of America have settled," he said.

He would not predict what would happen if the offer is not acceptable to the union. "Some of our men feel pretty uptight and they feel they are getting shafted," he added.

The union has already served strike notice. Provincial mediator Ken Albertini is also involved in the talks.

VSE Faces Operations Loss

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Stock Exchange incurred a loss on operations of $25,769 in the first half of this year, compared with an excess of revenues over expenditures of $42,510 in the six months ended June 30, 1973.

Last year's figure included $23,490 of extraordinary revenues dating back to 1971 and 1972. Excluding this amount, the 1973 half-year surplus was $19,020.

Cyril White, VSE president, said Thursday the loss of operations in the latest six months was less than the exchange had budgeted for.

The bulk of the VSE's revenues comes from assessments and fees — $502,940 this year, $484,762 in the first half of 1973. However, total revenue was off slightly from last year — $601,531 against $608,177.

The exchange's total assets at June 30 amounted to $3,194,446, almost unchanged from $3,194,983 a year earlier.

White and Ernie Drake, chairman of the board of governors, said VSE member firms do not appear to be as hard-pressed financially as brokerage firms in Toronto and Montreal.

Toronto member firms have approved a proposal to impose a temporary surcharge on brokerage commissions for transactions of more than $20,000. Between this amount and $39,720 the surcharge ranges from zero to 17.5 per cent, and thereafter it is a flat 17.5 per cent.

The surcharge still needs the approval of the Ontario Securities Commission.

White said VSE members would adopt whatever surcharge becomes effective in Toronto and in Montreal, where brokers are also seeking relief. He said this would be done partly to maintain uniformity on commission rates and partly to ensure that Vancouver brokers are not placed in a less favorable position than their Toronto and Montreal counterparts.

Sony Stock Deals To Remain Secret

TORONTO (CP) — Sony Corp. of Tokyo has been given permission to list on the Toronto Stock Exchange without being required to disclose stock dealing by its corporate insiders.

Edward Royce, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission, said the Sony application would be accepted although it was a departure from accepted practice.

Sony, a billion-dollar-a-year maker of television sets, tape recorders and other electronic products, now has permission to seek listing of its American deposit receipts, each representing one Sony share, on the TSE.

It has permission to deviate from Ontario practice in financial reporting to shareholders.

And sony insiders — directors, officers and major shareholders — may continue to treat their holdings and trading of Sony stock as a strictly private matter.

Royce said such reporting is not made in Japan and nowhere in the world is Sony required to disclose such information. Sony is listed on 16 exchanges.

Ontario normally requires directors and officers of publicly traded companies and holders of more than 10-percent stock to reveal their holdings and report trading in the stock on a monthly basis. The rule is designed to expose and deter use of inside information for stock market advantage.

Johns-Manville

Canadian Johns-Manville Co. Ltd. reports earnings for the second quarter of 1974 of $17,296,000 or 94 cents a share compared with $14,490,000 or 80 cents a share in the comparable period last year.

Earnings for the six months to June 30 were $24,635,000 or $1.34 a share compared with $23,958,000 or $1.31 a share for the first half of 1973.

"Anticipated further improvement in selling prices, which benefited second quarter results, and expected increases in sales volume should have a continuing positive effect on operating results for th second half of 1974," said W. R. Goodwin, president.

M. Loeb Ltd.

M. Loeb Ltd. of Ottawa has announced it will make offers to acquire all common shares and preferred shares of National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd.

Loeb has held a controlling interest of about 52 per cent in National Drug and Chemical since 1972.

Basis of the offers is two common shares of Loeb for each common share of National Drug and Chemical and three common shares for each preferred share.

Legal Dispute Halts Payments

TORONTO (CP) — The receiver winding up the affairs of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. says in the latest annual report that the company had recovered another $10,331,481 by the end of 1973 but was unable to distribute it because of a legal dispute between two classes of noteholders over entitlement to interest payments.

Toronto-based Atlantic has been in receivership since it collapsed in 1965.

J. G. Haxton of Montreal Trust Co. says the principal remaining asset — a mortgage on the Lucayan Beach Hotel in the Bahamas — now is in default with $8,302,416 unpaid.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 63-year-old Victoria man who had two arms broken in a frenzied pipe-wielding assault told his attacker not to call police because "you are a young man . . . you have your whole life ahead of you."

James Haskell, 325 Robertson, was reported to have made the comment after being attacked by 18-year-old Robert Woolley of 3023 Donald who went to Haskell's home April 20 to retrieve a stamp collection.

The story was told in Victoria provincial court Thursday by Brian McAsey, defence lawyer for Woolley who pleaded guilty to assault causing bodily harm with intent to wound.

McAsey said Woolley had traded his stamp collection for Haskell's coin collection in February, but then had second thoughts about the transaction and returned April 20.

After a brief discussion Woolley picked up an iron bar and started beating Haskell.

The youth stopped suddenly and offered to call police but Haskell told him not to. Instead Woolley phoned Mrs. Haskell, and she called for medical help.

The accused was remanded to Aug. 22 for a presentence report and sentencing.

★ ★ ★

A 19-year-old youth who "completely disregarded" the Motor Vehicle Act was sentenced to 14 days in jail.

Richard William Jones of 2273 Bellamy, faced an eight count charge of violating the act stemming from two incidents when he was stopped by police in Saanich on June 13 and police in Victoria on July 10.

The charges included careless driving, having no insurance, misuse of licence plates, and failing to produce a driver's licence. He pleaded guilty.

Said Judge William Ostler: "I can't imagine a more wilful and contumacious violation of the law . . . he has completely disregarded the law not once but over and over again."

The youth was also charged with possession of marijuana and public mischief but pleaded not guilty and was remanded to Oct. 18 for trial.

★ ★ ★

Ostler fined Violet Markham, 55, of 1255 Queens, $300 and placed her on one-year probation after she pleaded guilty to shoplifting a pair of shoes and a purse from The Bay July 3.

The judge noting she had a prior conviction in 1972 said she was "lucky" she was not being sent to jail.

★ ★ ★

A 17-year-old youth was fined $150 for possession of marijuana after being found guilty by Judge R. B. Allan.

Victor Patrick Lamothe, of 3980 Wolfe, was charged April 29 after police stopped and searched him at Johnson and Quadra and found a hash pipe in his pocket.

★ ★ ★

In traffic court, David John Dumontier, 18, of 6677 Central Saanich, was fined a total of $625 and banned from driving for a year after pleading guilty to impaired driving, dangerous driving and driving while under suspension.

Judge Fred Green also fined Dorothy June Wescott, 36, of Brentwood Bay, $300 and John Gerard Thody, 50, of Vedder Crossing, $200, after they pleaded guilty to impaired driving offences.

City Athlete Wins $1,000

A Victoria athlete is one of five in the province who have received a $1,000 premier's athletic award.

Beverley Cox, 1622 Richmond, was named an award recipient by Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall for the B.C. physical fitness and amateur sports fund.

Thirteen other Vancouver Islanders also received athletic awards and scholarships from the fund.

Nancy Greene scholarships worth $750 were received by John Syme, 3475 Cardiff, Victoria; Yeta Dilalla, Cobble Hill; Karen Egger, 856 Rockheights, Esquimalt, and David Kirzinger, 1892 Prosser, Saanichton.

Winners of $500 athletic awards are Grant Boland, 2424 Dryfe, Victoria; John Dowling, 3215 Henderson, Victoria; Rosemary Fuller, 906 Admirals, Victoria; Elizabeth Ogden, 20 Helmcken, Victoria; Catherine Auburn, 2282 Marlene, Colwood; Douglas Manning, 17-4061 Larchwood, Saanich. Handicapped Seek Pledges

About $500,000 stands between pledges and estimated costs of a $1.3 million activity centre for the handicapped.

Joe Bourke, chairman of the finance committee of the Greater Victoria Activity Centre for the Handicapped Society, said today he hopes the cost of the centre can be trimmed by about $250,000.

Various local organizations are being approached to find the additional funds and once this has been exhausted an approach to the provincial government is likely, he said.

A total of $855,000 has been pledged with $300,000 coming from the provincial government, $200,000 from the federal government, $100,000 from municipalities and the rest from various public and service organizations and individuals.

Bourke said Saanich has paid its share and Sidney and Central Saanich part of their's.

Edith Gunning, vice-president of the handicapped society, said "we are asking municpalities to supply the money very soon."

Construction of the centre is expected to start sometime this fall, said Mrs. Gunning, although an exact date has not been set.

The centre, designed to provide social, recreational and vocational space for about 200 handicapped persons, is the second stage of a program conceived in late 1968.

Known as the Battin-Fielding memorial project, the first phase was a $1 million integrated housing development for the handicapped and aged, opened last November on a site between Darwin ad Vernon near the Saanich municpal hall.

The activity centre, announced three yeas ago, was to have cost $950,000 but costs have gone up in the meantime resulting in the need for more money, said Mrs. Gunning.

Olympic Holiday

INNSBRUCK (Reuter) — Austrian schoolchildren may get an extended holiday as a byproduct of the 1976 Winter Olympics. The reason: 250 school buses from all over Austria will be needed for transport between the various Olympic sites.

Drug Firms Prosecuted On Quality

OTTAWA (CP) — Two drug companies are being prosecuted by the federal government over three drugs that failed quality tests, the health department said today.

The companies are Pharmetics Ltd. of Pointe Claire, Que. and Barlowe Cote Laboratories of Cap Rouge, Que., the department said.

Drugs involved are Pentaerythritol Tetranitrate tablets and Tolbutamide tablets produced by Pharmetics and Methaqualone tablets manufactured by Barlow.

Pentaerythritol Tetranitrate, used to treat the heart problem angina pectoris, was more potent than acceptable, the department said.

Tolbutamide, an oral-diabetic drug, also was more potent than acceptable.

Methaqualone, a sedative, was more potent than acceptable and failed tests for disintegration time and identity.

EEC PROBES IBM

Manchester Guardian

BRUSSELS — The EEC commission's antitrust department announced Thursday it has decided to conduct a full-scale investigation into the activities of IBM, the major U.S. computer company.

Announcing this and a series of other important antitrust initiatives, Albert Borschette, the responsible commissioner, said that his officials had already collected enough information for him to consider the case to be a serious one.

However, he stressed that the commission was not in a position at this stage to pass judgment on whether or not IBM was guilty of infringing EEC rules.

The commission has yet to level any specific charge against the American company but when it does so — and Borschette made it clear that, for him, it was a matter of when rather than if — it will cite Article 86 of the treaty of Rome.

Football: It's '74 And Time for a Roar

It's no trouble, really. Last year in the West the forecast was dead on. After a couple of false starts, of course. In the East there was a bit of an upset. But that's football, and now it's here again. Did you have a good summer?

So how will the respective races in the Canadian Football League wind up this year? Very close is the best answer, but strictly for the benefit of Times readers, here's a preview. Today's unadvertised special will reveal all.

First, the East. Quickly now. Ottawa Rough Riders should be coming West for the Grey Cup final in November. You can make book on that if you throw away the book. The East normally doesn't conform to form, not in the last few years at any rate.

For instance, Ottawa won in '69, finished last in '70. Montreal won the playoffs in '70, in the basement in '71. Toronto went to the Grey Cup in '71, dropped to the cellar in '72. Hamilton won it all in '72. Yep, out of the playoffs in '73. But this year in Ottawa the pattern should change. The Riders have lost hardly anybody. Besides, they've got Jim Evenson who can play better fullback than he did last year, plus Rudy Sims and Art Green back in the fold. They had an unblemished pre-season record and should qualify as No. 1.

True, Montreal could draw similar raves. The Als were also unbeaten (and Wednesday won their home opener), but the loss of two particular players out of the five they haven't got from '73 might be enough to keep them out of the lead. Terry Evanshen, one of the best pass catchers in football, is gone, and so is fullback John Harvey. They haven't been replaced. Johnny Rodgers will do better than before and so will Jimmy Jones, but will it be enough?

Hamilton and Toronto will fight it out to stay out of the cellar and Hamilton may be a shade better. As quarterback Chuck Ealey goes, so will go the Ticats. And certainly he should have a better season than last when he couldn't master the sophomore hex. The Argos, meanwhile, have 17 new ballplayers, also a new owner, but perhaps no new dedication. (Ooops — this was before last night!)

Eagle Eyes His Best Flock

Out West is where the sun will shine, however, with Edmonton Eskimos as the team to beat, and B.C. Lions the team to beat them. It figures for the Lions this season, because their life cycle runs in "4." You remember the call' "The Lions will roar in '54. That was year one, and if they didn't exactly roar they did win the Grey Cup just 10 years later, in '64. So nothing much in between. Now it's '74, and the best team, perhaps, that coach Eagle Keys has had at his command. At least, he's been far more optimistic this time than ever before.

But Johnny Musso is out! Yes, that's a blow. Still the schedule favors the Leos early. And if they can get by that twin double against Winnipeg and Calgary, they could be made, at least, as a playoff contender. After that . . .? Because what have they lost? Not much. And what's new? Plenty. There's good Bill Baker, once known as "bad" Bill Baker, and Tony Moro, and Lanny Boleski . . . and with all-star Ray Nettles as pit boss, "defence" could be the name of their game. Besides, quarterback Don Moorhead is a year older, a year wiser, and hopefully a big step closer to the faith Keys has shown in him in the past. Add a healthy Jim Young, and a crack set of running backs and receivers — Monroe Eley, Slade Willis, Lou Harris, Brock Aynsley, later Musso, and hoo, there boy . . . easy now . . . but it does show promise.

Esks Have 'Most Valuable Leg'

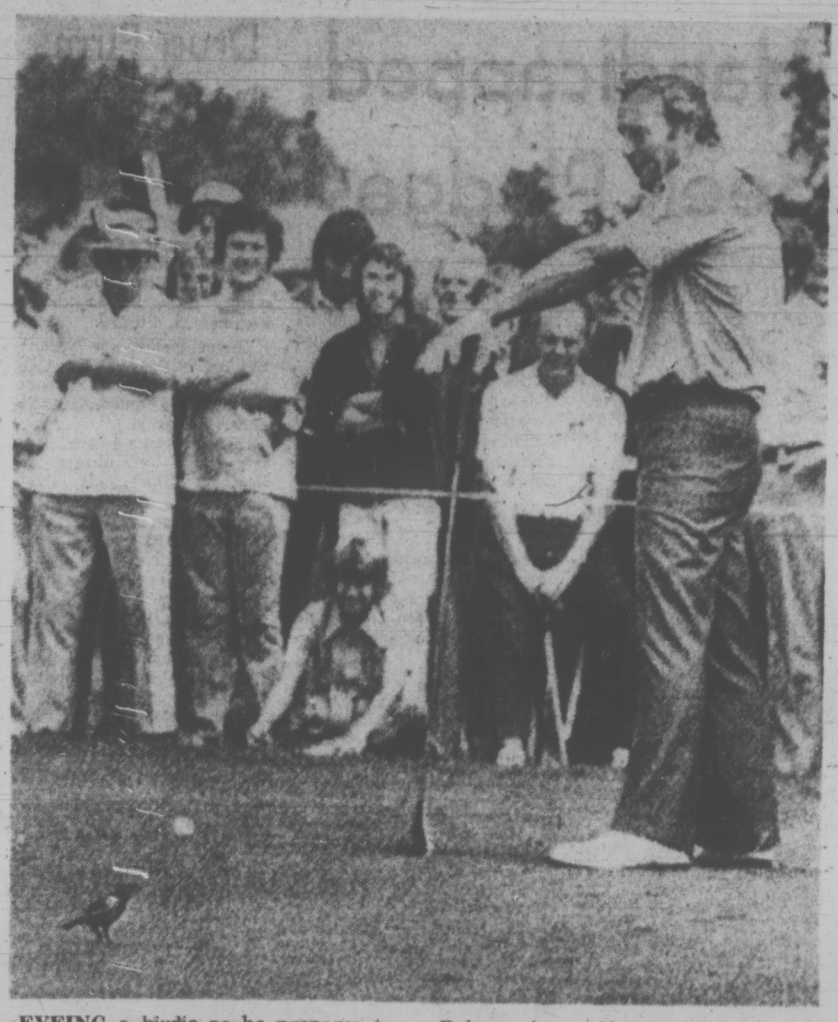
Meanwhile, beware the Eskimos! They're set with a veteran team, little changed from last year, and reportedly with a stronger bench. The double-quarterback system of Tom Wilkinson and Bruce Lemmermen, which worked so well last year, and the power running of Roy Bell, make them the odds-on choice to repeat. Then, of course, there's the most valuable leg in the backfield, the one belonging to place kicker Dave Cutler. What the others can't get done, Dave will probably do.

Where's Saskatchewan? In the middle, despite the fact that Ron Lancaster will again be directing traffic led by fullback George Reed. But now the Riders don't have Baker, Ted Dushinski is also gone. Place-kicker Jack Abendschan has been hurt; Gord Barwell and Clyde Brock have retired, and to date the Riders don't appear to have filled those holes.

Winnipeg could be a sleeper. The early part of the season will tell. The Bombers have an adequate defence, better than most, and the key might be if quarterback Don Jonas can revert to his '72 form. With help of course.

Calgary? Too bad. The Stamps, Grey Cup champs in '71, have hit rock bottom. It's a rebuilding job with many changes; and until some of the lesser-known lights have been under fire a few times, it is difficult to tell where the Stamp strength does, or doesn't, lie.

In The Grey Cup? No, you don't. Not unless the odds are right. But at least for now, you got it here first.



EYEING a birdie as he prepares to tee off in first round of Canadian Open golf championships at Mississagua, Thursday, is Arnold Palmer. Palmer shot a 69, one under par, as Ken Still took lead in 72-hole test with five-under-par 65. See story. (CP Wirephoto).

Penalty Appealed, Still Leads With 65

TORONTO (CP) — Ken Still had good reason to be happy about a two-stroke penalty withdrawn from his score Thursday, but he didn't want to talk about it.

Removal of the penalty left Still with a five-under-par 65 and a one-stroke lead going into today's second round of the $200,000 Canadian open golf championship.

In second spot were Lee Trevino and Rick Massengale, both with 66s on the 6,788-yard Mississaugua Golf Club course.

Still, 39, from Tacoma, Wash., was reluctant to discuss the penalty he received at the 14th green.

He marked the ball, thinking it was on the green. But it was about 12 feet outside the boundary, marked by a blue line.

Bob Menne of the United States and Phil Giroux of Montreal suffered the same penalty. After completing their rounds, all three appealed to the rules committee and won. Menne finished with a 73 and Giroux with a 77.

The rules committee said that since the blue lines were "not consistently visible" and some portions of the green outside the line were mowed which was confusing to the players, the penalties were rescinded "in keeping with the fairness of the game."

When asked later to give more details on the action at the 14th, Still replied that "the less said about this the better."

He two-putted from about 50 feet for a par three, not counting the penalty. Elsewhere, he had six birdies and one bogey.

Massengale, 27, younger brother of tour veteran Don Massengale, had five birdies against one bogey for his share of second place with Trevino who had four birdies.

None of the 17 Canadians in the field managed to break par. The lowest were Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, Ben Kern of London, Ont., and Dan Halldorson of Brandon, Man., all at 71. Victoria's John Morgan fired 36-38 — 74.

Canadian Team Keeps Rifle Prize

BISLEY, England (CP) — Canada has won the Overseas Challenge Cup in the annual short-range match at Bisley for the sixth successive year, setting the stage for an exciting return match against the crack Australian team at a meeting in Ottawa next month.

The match here is between overseas teams of 12, firing seven shots each at 200, 500 and 600 yards. The Canadians scored 1,172 out of a possible 1,260 to win by a four-point margin over the Australians.

The two teams clash again at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meet in August.

Jersey was third with 1,142.

Stars of the Canadian team were Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., who scored 104, dropping only a single point, and Kim Sorensen of Calgary, who had a 101.

The other individual Canadian scorers were:

J. Marshall 9; R. Best, E. Andrews, F. Lays and J. Cramer, all 98; D. Daines 97; G. Barker and J. Gibeault of Victoria 96; J. Dugas 94 and C. Tremblay 93.

The Canadian cadet force was not so fortunate in its team event, with the United Kingdom cadets beating them by four points to take the Alexander Graham Bell Trophy.

Al Smith After Win No. 5

Al Smith goes after main-event victory No. 5 Saturday night when the stock cars and claimers take over at Western Speedway.

At stake is the Roy White Memorial Trophy, which goes to the winner of the 60-lap main stock event, worth double points in the driver standings.

Smith holds down top spot with 891 points, 264 more than second-place Ray Vatcher. The race for third is close with Art Reedy at 531, Steve Kennedy at 523, Al Wade at 522 and Neil Moore at 494.

Among the claimers, Gary Madden leads with 535 points.

Time trials are at 7 p.m. with racing at 8.

Eley Super, Leos Luck Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lanky Monroe Eley of British Columbia Lions said he was "super ready for the football game" Thursday night, which was unfortunate for Calgary Stampeders.

Eley ran over, through, but mainly around the Stamps as the Lions recorded a 23-20 victory in the opening game in the Western Football Conference.

Eley ran a kickoff back for 110 yards and a touchdown, got the only other B.C. major on a six-yard spurt around right end in the opening quarter and destroyed the Stampeders with 112 yards along the ground on 20 carries.

The game featured the ground-bound heroics of Eley against the deft aerial attack of Calgary quarterback Peter Liske.

Liske was operating behind a line rapped before the game by Calgary coach Jim Wood, but Wood proved himself a master psychologist as the blockers gave the veteran Liske protection and the canny quarterback took some of the steam out of the B.C. defensive rush with some well-executed screen passes that caught the rushers out of position.

The Stamps were the authors of their own misfortune, gifting the Lons early in the game with turnovers deep in their own end. A poor punt, an interception by Barry Ardern and a fumble by Gene Thomas set up B.C. scores.

The Stamps trailed 11-1 at the end of the first quarter and 14-4 at the half. The Lions led 21-20 with 15 minutes remaining.

Besides Eley's 12 points, the Lions got 11 points from kicker Ivan MacMillan, who converted both majors added a pair of field goals and go three singles off wide field goals.

The Stamps got two touchdowns from Thomas on runs of one and eight yards after Liske had moved them in close with pin-point passes. Brian Marcil got them a two-point safety by tackling B.C. quarterback Don Moorhead in the B.C. end zone, Don Moulton kicked a single and Larry Robinson got a field goal and two converts.

Robinson's five points gave him 1,002 career points, the first Canadian Football League player to pass the 1,000 mark.

Liske, who finished with 20 completions on 35 attempts moved the Stamps downfield twice in the third quarter on marches that ended with Thomas' touchdown plunges.

The Lions hurt themselves with pass interference penalties that kept Calgary drives alive, with assistant coach Cal Murphy of the Lions taking umbrage at the officiating.

Argo Rooks Tag Riders

TORONTO (CP) — An off-season rebuilding job paid quick dividends for head coach John Rauch of Toronto Argonauts Thursday night.

With 17 newcomers in the lineup, the Argos surprised Ottawa Rough Ridrs, the stand-pat Grey Cup champions, 19-3 in the Eastern Football Conference opener for both teams.

The Argos won with rookies at such key positions as running back (Doyle Orange and Ed Shuttlesworth) and middle linebacker (Sam Cvijanovich) and quarterback (Mike Rae) who started only one game as a CFL rookie last year.

But Dave Raimey, a player Rauch said he didn't want on his team a little earlier this month took a major share of the glory in the opening upset before a CNE Stadium crowd of 32,485.

Raimey intercepted three Ottawa passes, running one of them back 37 yards, and starred at cornerback.

The Argos got touchdowns from Orange and Mike Eben. Zenon Andrusychyn kicked a 20-yard field goal, two singles and two converts. Gerry Organ's first-quarter field goal gave Ottawa its only points.

"It wasn't me, it was the defensive team," said Raimey.

During the Argo's preseason schedule, Raimey was suspended after being passed on waivers by the rest of the league and having a training camp run-in with team-mate Eric Allen.

Rauch said the CFL veteran was through as an Argo, and Raimey tried to switch to the World Football League before a series of meetings with general manager John Barrow and Rauch brought him back to a Toronto uniform.

NFL Pickets Trade Favors

By The Associated Press

There were three extra pickets walking the line Thursday outside a Lordstown, Ohio, auto assembly plant which has been struck by the United Auto Workers (UAW).

They were National Football League players Ed Podolak of Kansas City Chiefs, Gary Ballman of Minnesota Vikings and Don Diedorf of St. Louis Cardinals, and their appearance was no accident.

The football players were trading their services at the plant for a pledge of picket help by the UAW when the NFL Players Association throws its line up at Saturday's Hall of Fame Game in Canton, Ohio.

The game between the St. Louis Cardinals and Buffalo Bills will be played by rookies, free agents and non-striking veterans with the NFLPA and 150 volunteers from UAW Local 1112 picketing outside the stadium.

The Hall of Fame said it had received about 500 demands for refunds, including one from Frank Valenta, president of the 130,000-member Greater Cleveland Labor Federation.

"I'm an avid pro football fan," said Valenta, "but I refuse to be a scab football fan."

Elsewhere, a trickle of veterans continued to show up at NFL camps.

Esq-Vic West Gains Little League Final

Esquimalt-Victoria West advanced to the final of the Greater Victoria District Little League baseball championship by dropping Lake hill into the losers' bracket of the tournament 10-5 Thursday night at Allenby Park.

Esquimalt-Vic West erased a 4-3 deficit by cramming seven runs into the fifth inning after having a long shutout string snapped in the first frame. The club hadn't had a run scored against it since the start of the area tournaments.

Ben Christie hammered out a three-run homer and Lake Hill committed four errors to help the Esquimalt rally.

The double-loss elimination tourney continues at 6:30 tonight with Beacon Hill and Gordon Head meeting.

City Netters Defeated

TACOMA — Victoria's last two surviving entries went down to defeat Thursday during play in the Pacific Northwest tennis championships at Tacoma Lawn Tennis Club.

Top-seeded Lisa Schneider of Hollywood tripped Wendy Barlow of Victoria 7-5, 6-2 in the under-14 singles quarter-finals and the second-seeded pair of Lisa Beritzhoff and Diane DeMartini of California downed Wendy and her sister Lori, 6-2, 6-2 in an under-16 doubles quarter-final match.

STARS WIN FIRST ON FIELD GOAL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Soccer-style kicker Moses Lajterman, a native of Argentina, booted a 40-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter, giving New York Stars their first World Football League victory, a 17-15 decision Thursday night over Philadelphia Bell.

The Bell blew two last-ditch chances to pull the game out. A 36-yard field-goal attempt by Jack Simcsak with 2:12 remaining went wide and so did a 26-yarder by George Chatlos with one second left.

Philadelphia's King Corcoran fired touchdown passes to Levell Hill and Claude Watts while New York's majors went to Dave Richards and Bob Gladieux, both on one-yard plunges.

City Archers Win

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Two records were set in the fourth day of the Canadian Outdoor Archery championships Thursday.

Morris Elliott of Vancouver set a record in the field round of the men's professional unlimited division with 590 of a possible 600. His performance eclipsed the old mark of 580 set last year by Stewart Bowman of Cambridge, Ont.

In this division, competitors are allowed to use any artificial shooting device of their choice.

Ron Lippert of Kitchener set the other mark with 548 points out of 600 in the field round of the junior boys' freestyle event. The old record of 546 was set by Dave Mann of Vancouver in 1972.

Elliot topped Alan Wills of Victoria, who had 576 — three points better than third-place Peter Craig of Toronto.

Other Victoria archers also placed high.

Pete Muir won the men's professional limited division with 516 while Wanda Allan won the women's freestyle FIDA round with 1,190 and finished second in aggregate (hunters and field rounds) with 2,200. Lucille Lessard of Loretteville, Que., won the aggregate title with 2,330 and another Victorian, Mary Wills, was third at 2,178.

It's no trouble, really. Last year in the West the forecast was dead on. After a couple of false starts, of course. In the East there was a bit of an upset. But that's football, and now it's here again. Did you have a good summer?

So how will the respective races in the Canadian Football League wind up this year? Very close is the best answer, but strictly for the benefit of Times readers, here's a preview. Today's unadvertised special will reveal all.

First, the East. Quickly now. Ottawa Rough Riders should be coming West for the Grey Cup final in November. You can make book on that if you throw away the book. The East normally doesn't conform to form, not in the last few years at any rate.

For instance, Ottawa won in '69, finished last in '70. Montreal won the playoffs in '70, in the basement in '71. Toronto went to the Grey Cup in '71, dropped to the cellar in '72. Hamilton won it all in '72. Yep, out of the playoffs in '73. But this year in Ottawa the pattern should change. The Riders have lost hardly anybody. Besides, they've got Jim Evenson who can play better fullback than he did last year, plus Rudy Sims and Art Green back in the fold. They had an unblemished pre-season record and should qualify as No. 1.

True, Montreal could draw similar raves. The Als were also unbeaten (and Wednesday won their home opener), but the loss of two particular players out of the five they haven't got from '73 might be enough to keep them out of the lead. Terry Evanshen, one of the best pass catchers in football, is gone, and so is fullback John Harvey. They haven't been replaced. Johnny Rodgers will do better than before and so will Jimmy Jones, but will it be enough?

Hamilton and Toronto will fight it out to stay out of the cellar and Hamilton may be a shade better. As quarterback Chuck Ealey goes, so will go the Ticats. And certainly he should have a better season than last when he couldn't master the sophomore hex. The Argos, meanwhile, have 17 new ballplayers, also a new owner, but perhaps no new dedication. (Ooops — this was before last night!)

Eagle Eyes His Best Flock

Out West is where the sun will shine, however, with Edmonton Eskimos as the team to beat, and B.C. Lions the team to beat them. It figures for the Lions this season, because their life cycle runs in "4." You remember the call' "The Lions will roar in '54. That was year one, and if they didn't exactly roar they did win the Grey Cup just 10 years later, in '64. So nothing much in between. Now it's '74, and the best team, perhaps, that coach Eagle Keys has had at his command. At least, he's been far more optimistic this time than ever before.

But Johnny Musso is out! Yes, that's a blow. Still the schedule favors the Leos early. And if they can get by that twin double against Winnipeg and Calgary, they could be made, at least, as a playoff contender. After that . . .? Because what have they lost? Not much. And what's new? Plenty. There's good Bill Baker, once known as "bad" Bill Baker, and Tony Moro, and Lanny Boleski . . . and with all-star Ray Nettles as pit boss, "defence" could be the name of their game. Besides, quarterback Don Moorhead is a year older, a year wiser, and hopefully a big step closer to the faith Keys has shown in him in the past. Add a healthy Jim Young, and a crack set of running backs and receivers — Monroe Eley, Slade Willis, Lou Harris, Brock Aynsley, later Musso, and hoo, there boy . . . easy now . . . but it does show promise.

Esks Have 'Most Valuable Leg'

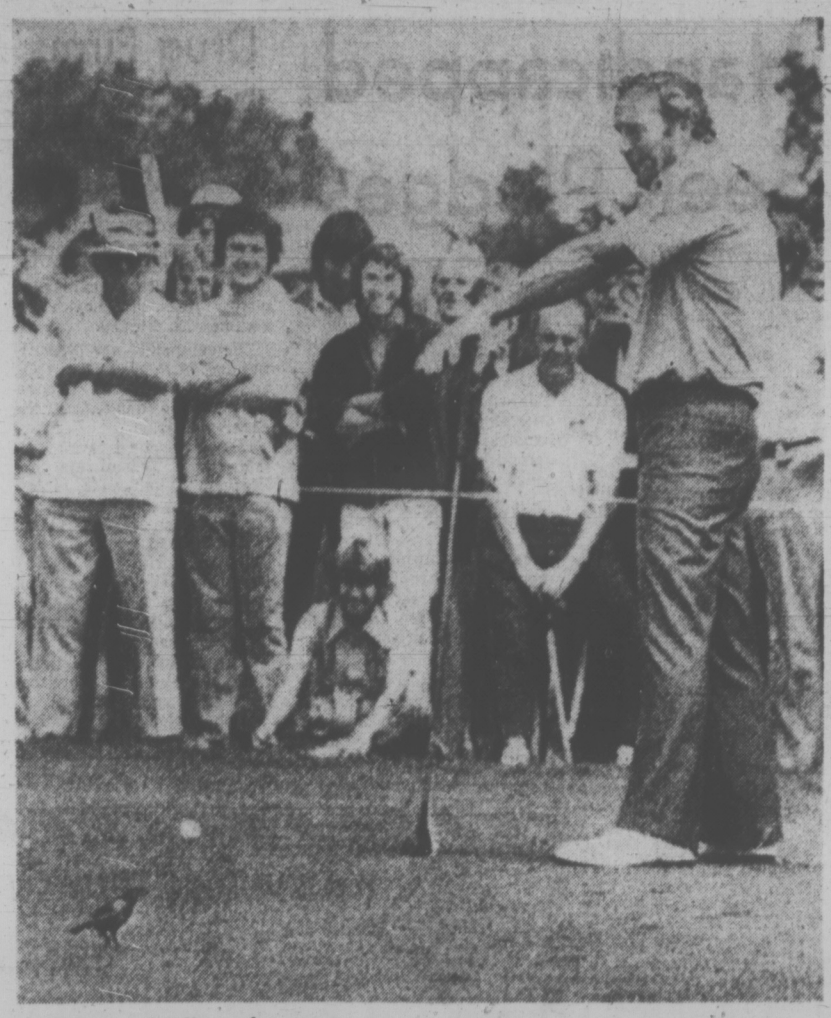
Meanwhile, beware the Eskimos! They're set with a veteran team, little changed from last year, and reportedly with a stronger bench. The double-quarterback system of Tom Wilkinson and Bruce Lemmermen, which worked so well last year, and the power running of Roy Bell, make them the odds-on choice to repeat. Then, of course, there's the most valuable leg in the backfield, the one belonging to place kicker Dave Cutler. What the others can't get done, Dave will probably do.

Where's Saskatchewan? In the middle, despite the fact that Ron Lancaster will again be directing traffic led by fullback George Reed. But now the Riders don't have Baker. Ted Dushinski is also gone. Place-kicker Jack Abendschan has been hurt; Gord Barwell and Clyde Brock have retired, and to date the Riders don't appear to have filled those holes.

Winnipeg could be a sleeper. The early part of the season will tell. The Bombers have an adequate defence, better than most, and the key might be if quarterback Don Jonas can revert to his '72 form. With help of course.

Calgary? Too bad. The Stamps, Grey Cup champs in '71, have hit rock bottom. It's a rebuilding job with many changes; and until some of the lesser-known lights have been under fire a few times, it is difficult to tell where the Stamp strength does, or doesn't, lie.

In The Grey Cup? No, you don't. Not unless the odds are right. But at least for now, you got it here first.



EYEING a birdie as he prepares to tee off in first round of Canadian Open golf championships at Mississagua, Thursday, is Arnold Palmer. Palmer shot a 69, one under par, as Ken Still took lead in 72-hole test with five-under-par 65. See story. (CP Wirephoto).

Penalty Appealed, Still Leads With 65

TORONTO (CP) — Ken Still had good reason to be happy about a two-stroke penalty withdrawn from his score Thursday, but he didn't want to talk about it.

Removal of the penalty left Still with a five-under-par 65 and a one-stroke lead going into today's second round of the $200,000 Canadian open golf championship.

In second spot were Lee Trevino and Rick Massengale, both with 66s on the 6,788-yard Mississaugua Golf Club course.

Still, 39, from Tacoma, Wash., was reluctant to discuss the penalty he received at the 14th green.

He marked the ball, thinking it was on the green. But it was about 12 feet outside the boundary, marked by a blue line.

Bob Menne of the United States and Phil Giroux of Montreal suffered the same penalty. After completing their rounds, all three appealed to the rules committee and won. Menne finished with a 73 and Giroux with a 77.

The rules committee said that since the blue lines were "not consistently visible" and some portions of the green outside the line were mowed which was confusing to the players, the penalties were rescinded "in keeping with the fairness of the game."

When asked later to give more details on the action at the 14th, Still replied that "the less said about this the better."

He two-putted from about 50 feet for a par three, not counting the penalty. Elsewhere, he had six birdies and one bogey.

Massengale, 27, younger brother of tour veteran Don Massengale, had five birdies against one bogey for his share of second place with Trevino who had four birdies.

None of the 17 Canadians in the field managed to break par. The lowest were Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, Ben Kern of London, Ont., and Dan Halldorson of Brandon, Man., all at 71. Victoria's John Morgan fired 36-38 — 74.

Canadian Team Keeps Rifle Prize

BISLEY, England (CP) — Canada has won the Overseas Challenge Cup in the annual short-range match at Bisley for the sixth successive year, setting the stage for an exciting return match against the crack Australian team at a meeting in Ottawa next month.

The match here is between overseas teams of 12, firing seven shots each at 200, 500 and 600 yards. The Canadians scored 1,172 out of a possible 1,260 to win by a four-point margin over the Australians.

The two teams clash again at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meet in August.

Jersey was third with 1,142.

Stars of the Canadian team were Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., who scored 104, dropping only a single point, and Kim Sorensen of Calgary, who had a 101.

The other individual Canadian scorers were:

J. Marshall 9; R. Best, E. Andrews, F. Lays and J. Cramer, all 98; D. Daines 97; G. Barker and J. Gibeault of Victoria 96; J. Dugas 94 and C. Tremblay 93.

The Canadian cadet force was not so fortunate in its team event, with the United Kingdom cadets beating them by four points to take the Alexander Graham Bell Trophy.

Al Smith goes after main-event victory No. 5 Saturday night when the stock cars and claimers take over at Western Speedway.

Smith holds down top spot with 891 points, 264 more than second-place Ray Vatcher. The race for third is close with Art Reedy at 531, Steve Kennedy at 523, Al Wade at 522 and Neil Moore at 494.

Among the claimers, Gary Madden leads with 535 points.

Ben Christie hammered out a three-run homer and Lake Hill committed four errors to help the Esquimalt rally.

The double-loss elimination tourney continues at 6:30 tonight with Beacon Hill and Gordon Head meeting.

City Netters Defeated

TACOMA — Victoria's last two surviving entries went down to defeat Thursday during play in the Pacific Northwest tennis championships at Tacoma Lawn Tennis Club.

Top-seeded Lisa Schneider of Hollywood tripped Wendy Barlow of Victoria 7-5, 6-2 in the under-14 singles quarter-finals and the second-seeded pair of Lisa Beritzhoff and Diane DeMartini of California downed Wendy and her sister Lori, 6-2, 6-2 in an under-16 doubles quarter-final match.

STARS WIN FIRST ON FIELD GOAL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Soccer-style kicker Moses Lajterman, a native of Argentina, booted a 40-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter, giving New York Stars their first World Football League victory, a 17-15 decision Thursday night over Philadelphia Bell.

The Bell blew two last-ditch chances to pull the game out. A 36-yard field-goal attempt by Jack Simcsak with 2:12 remaining went wide and so did a 26-yarder by George Chatlos with one second left.

Philadelphia's King Corcoran fired touchdown passes to Levell Hill and Claude Watts while New York's majors went to Dave Richards and Bob Gladieux, both on one-yard plunges.

Eley Super, Leos Luck Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lanky Monroe Eley of British Columbia Lions said he was "super ready for the football game" Thursday night, which was unfortunate for Calgary Stampeders.

Eley ran over, through, but mainly around the Stamps as the Lions recorded a 23-20 victory in the opening game in the Western Football Conference.

Eley ran a kickoff back for 110 yards and a touchdown, got the only other B.C. major on a six-yard spurt around right end in the opening quarter and destroyed the Stampeders with 112 yards along the ground on 20 carries.

The game featured the ground-bound heroics of Eley against the deft aerial attack of Calgary quarterback Peter Liske.

Liske was operating behind a line rapped before the game by Calgary coach Jim Wood, but Wood proved himself a master psychologist as the blockers gave the veteran Liske protection and the canny quarterback took some of the steam out of the B.C. defensive rush with some well-executed screen passes that caught the rushers out of position.

The Stamps were the authors of their own misfortune, gifting the Lons early in the game with turnovers deep in their own end. A poor punt, an interception by Barry Ardern and a fumble by Gene Thomas set up B.C. scores.

The Stamps trailed 11-1 at the end of the first quarter and 14-4 at the half. The Lions led 21-20 with 15 minutes remaining.

Besides Eley's 12 points, the Lions got 11 points from kicker Ivan MacMillan, who converted both majors added a pair of field goals and go three singles off wide field goals.

The Stamps got two touchdowns from Thomas on runs of one and eight yards after Liske had moved them in close with pin-point passes. Brian Marcil got them a two-point safety by tackling B.C. quarterback Don Moorhead in the B.C. end zone, Don Moulton kicked a single and Larry Robinson got a field goal and two converts.

Robinson's five points gave him 1,002 career points, the first Canadian Football League player to pass the 1,000 mark.

Liske, who finished with 20 completions on 35 attempts moved the Stamps downfield twice in the third quarter on marches that ended with Thomas' touchdown plunges.

The Lions hurt themselves with pass interference penalties that kept Calgary drives alive, with assistant coach Cal Murphy of the Lions taking umbrage at the officiating.

Argo Rooks Tag Riders

TORONTO (CP) — An off-season rebuilding job paid quick dividends for head coach John Rauch of Toronto Argonauts Thursday night.

With 17 newcomers in the lineup, the Argos surprised Ottawa Rough Ridrs, the stand-pat Grey Cup champions, 19-3 in the Eastern Football Conference opener for both teams.

The Argos won with rookies at such key positions as running back (Doyle Orange and Ed Shuttlesworth) and middle linebacker (Sam Cvijanovich) and quarterback (Mike Rae) who started only one game as a CFL rookie last year.

But Dave Raimey, a player Rauch said he didn't want on his team a little earlier this month took a major share of the glory in the opening upset before a CNE Stadium crowd of 32,485.

Raimey intercepted three Ottawa passes, running one of them back 37 yards, and starred at cornerback.

The Argos got touchdowns from Orange and Mike Eben. Zenon Andrusychyn kicked a 20-yard field goal, two singles and two converts. Gerry Organ's first-quarter field goal gave Ottawa its only points.

"It wasn't me, it was the defensive team," said Raimey.

During the Argo's preseason schedule, Raimey was suspended after being passed on waivers by the rest of the league and having a training camp run-in with team-mate Eric Allen.

Rauch said the CFL veteran was through as an Argo, and Raimey tried to switch to the World Football League before a series of meetings with general manager John Barrow and Rauch brought him back to a Toronto uniform.

NFL Pickets Trade Favors

By The Associated Press

There were three extra pickets walking the line Thursday outside a Lordstown, Ohio, auto assembly plant which has been struck by the United Auto Workers (UAW).

They were National Football League players Ed Podolak of Kansas City Chiefs, Gary Ballman of Minnesota Vikings and Don Diedorf of St. Louis Cardinals, and their appearance was no accident.

The football players were trading their services at the plant for a pledge of picket help by the UAW when the NFL Players Association throws its line up at Saturday's Hall of Fame Game in Canton, Ohio.

The game between the St. Louis Cardinals and Buffalo Bills will be played by rookies, free agents and non-striking veterans with the NFLPA and 150 volunteers from UAW Local 1112 picketing outside the stadium.

The Hall of Fame said it had received about 500 demands for refunds, including one from Frank Valenta, president of the 130,000-member Greater Cleveland Labor Federation.

"I'm an avid pro football fan," said Valenta, "but I refuse to be a scab football fan."

Elsewhere, a trickle of veterans continued to show up at NFL camps.

In Green Bay, about 20 striking Green Bay Packer and Chicago Bear players were arrested after ignoring a court order restraining them from picketing Lambeau Field.

City Archers Win

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Two records were set in the fourth day of the Canadian Outdoor Archery championships Thursday.

Morris Elliott of Vancouver set a record in the field round of the men's professional unlimited division with 590 of a possible 600. His performance eclipsed the old mark of 580 set last year by Stewart Bowman of Cambridge, Ont.

In this division, competitors are allowed to use any artificial shooting device of their choice.

Ron Lippert of Kitchener set the other mark with 548 points out of 600 in the field round of the junior boys' freestyle event. The old record of 546 was set by Dave Mann of Vancouver in 1972.

Elliot topped Alan Wills of Victoria, who had 576 three points better than third-place Peter Craig of Toronto.

Other Victoria archers also placed high.

Pete Muir won the men's professional limited division with 516 while Wanda Allan won the women's freestyle FIDA round with 1,190 and finished second in aggregate (hunters and field rounds) with 2,200. Lucille Lessard of Loretteville, Que., won the aggregate title with 2,330 and another Victorian, Mary Wills, was third at 2,178.

Good Spots Taper Off Poorer Ones Pick Up

Salmon fishermen around Vancouver Island are finding spots that were good last week seem to be tapering off while formerly poor waters are improving.

George Hall reports that Finlayson Arm waters have picked up considerably and William Dobell isn't about to disagree with that diagnosis.

Dobell landed a 43 pound, five-ounce chinook on Monday while trolling strip on 75 feet of line with a pound of weight near Goldstream Island.

Although the majority of the catch consists of chinooks, the odd coho up to four pounds has been taken on deep lines.

Chinooks nearing the 10-pound mark and coho up to four form part of an improving pattern in Coles Bay and off Bamberton. Early morning fishermen going down about 50 feet with strip or minnow are having the most luck.

Buzz-bombers are landing similar coho catches in Satellite Channel and trollers working deep off Wain Rock are boating fair catches of chinooks.

Strip appears to be the best producer off Trial Island, where chinooks averaging 15 pounds and some good catches of cod have been landed.

Coho up to nine pounds and chinooks slightly over 17 are being picked up off the kelp bed around Bentinck Island. Again, strip is the prefered bait.

A few similar-sized coho and chinooks topping 35 pounds are being hauled in from the 30 to 80-foot depth near Beechey Head and Alldridge Point.

Secretary Island and Otter Point waters are yielding chinooks weighing as much as 30 pounds but no coho have been showing. Best bet is to troll from 100 to 125 feet in depth with strip or a five-inch minnow.

Likewise, coho are missing from the catch off Port Renfrew although chinooks up to 30 pounds are being landed in the mouth of the bay.

Back on the east side of the Island, moochers are landing a few coho up to eight pounds along with a lot of bass in Sansum Narrows and chinooks up to 20 pounds are turning up from the vicinity of Separation and Skinner points.

Action has slowed down a little off Nanaimo — except for anyone crazy enough to want to catch dogfish.

Jack's Point is producing the odd chinook, but it's still a little early for those tyee-sized fish, and "fantastic" returns of coho are reported from Nanoose Harbour as well as (to a lesser extent) around Lasqueti Island.

Various bays around the entrance to Alberni Inlet are still yielding chinooks to 18 pounds on fairly deep lines and strip, while other fishermen using flashtail are landing coho up to seven pounds.

Bucktails, flashtails and small plugs are pulling in coho up to eight pounds from all depths off Bates Beach, Comox Bar and Palliser Rock.

Fishermen trolling a bucktail or flashtail right in the wake during the evening or a little deeper during the day are landing coho up to 8½ pounds near Cortes Island, the Bell Buoy, Francisco Point and Quathiaski Cove.

The Government Wharf, Tyee Pool, Frenchman's Pool, Duncan Bay, Brown's Bay and Menzies Bay waters contain chinooks up to 35 pounds. Strip, minnow, hootchies and octopus lures have been the best producers.

Freshwater anglers are picking up trout in Fairy Lake, Cowichan Lake, Cowichan River, at the mouth of the Koksilah (sea-run cutthroat), Cameron Lake and Upper Campbell Lake.

Some of the pools on the San Juan River are reported to contain summer-run steelhead.

NIBBLES: Ross Rose outfished his father Sunday to win the monthly Chinook Club sunburn derby in Saanich Inlet . . . He landed a 22:02-pounder for first prize, Gary Vaughan took second with a 9:05 catch and Michael Rose, the father, was third at 9:00 . . . Hidden weight winners were Frank Jenvey, Ron Perks and Bert Braidwood.

A parting thought . . . It might be best to get your fishing in off the Sooke to Pedder Bay shoreline this weekend . . . An almost solid wall of nets is expected to go up across Juan de Fuca Strait at 6:30 p.m. Sunday to harvest the sockeye runs . . . Approximately 350 gillnetters will be working the waters between Sherringham Point sports fishing boundary and an area off Port Renfrew.

FERGUSON JENKINS
. . . picks up No. 13

Jenkins Has One Interest

By Associated Press

When Ferguson Jenkins of Texas Rangers is pitching, he doesn't worry about who is pitching against him.

The Chatham, Ont., native didn't worry about facing Wilbur Wood, who leads pitchers in baseball's American League in wins. Instead he beat Chicago White Sox 4-1 with a seven-hitter.

"I don't think much about matchups," Jenkins said. "All I want is wins. The more wins, the more money I make."

Jenkins got his 13th victory with infielder Jim Fregosi's two-run homer.

"My curve was excellent and that was the pitch that got me out of a lot of jams," Jenkins said. "It was a strange game for me in a way. Normally I throw at least 20 sliders a game.

"But I threw almost all curves and fastballs. I threw only a couple of changeups and sliders tonight."

In other AL games Thursday, New York Yankees beat Milwaukee Brewers 1-0, Boston Red Sox routed Detroit Tigers 12-4, Cleveland Indians beat Baltimore Orioles 8-7 and 5-4 in 13 innings, Oakland A's trimmed Minnesota Twins 5-1, and Kansas City Royals nipped California Angels 2-1.

Fregosi's fourth-inning homer followed a walk to Lenny Randle and gave the Rangers a 3-1 lead against Wood, 16-12.

Jenkins, 13-9 and winner of six of his last seven decisions, walked none and struck out four in posting his 17th complete game in 25 starts.

Rico Petrocelli, Carl Yastrzemski and Tommy Harper blasted home runs, helping Boston rout Detroit. The Red Sox riddled Mickey Lolich for 11 hits and eight runs in the first three innings to hand the Tigers their 14th loss in 16 games.

In the National League, new managers enjoyed varying success. Jim Marshall, taking over as Chicago's field boss, saw his Cubs bombed 10-2 by Philadelphia Phillies while Clyde King, taking his first step as Atlanta's pilot, emerged with a smile as the Braves edged San Diego Padres in 10 innings.

Montreal Expos split a twin-bill with Pittsburgh Pirates but lost ground in the Eastern Division as the result of the Phils' victory and St. Louis Cardinans' 4-3 and 4-1 sweep over New York Mets.

Expos beat the Pirates 10-5 but lost the second game 3-2. Elsewhere, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Houston Astros 11-3 and 2-0 and Cincinnati Reds swept San Francisco Giants 14-13 and 5-0.

Royal Oak's Hopes Fading

An interference call during the fifth inning Thursday night might have ruined Royal Oak Sporting Goods' chances of gaining a playoff berth in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

Labatts scored three runs in that frame en route to a 5-2 victory which dropped Royal Oak to three games behind Sooke Merchants, who hold down the final playoff spot.

With one out in the fifth, Ernie Holness walked and advanced to second on an infield out. Jack White then cracked out a grounder to Royal Oak shortstop Mike Wallace, who collided with Holness while trying for the ball.

Obstruction was called against Wallace and Holness proceeded to third base while White took first. With two away, Gary Clark singled to score Holness and Bob McFarland followed with a triple to score both both White and Clarke.

Top Billing for the Men Likely in Weekend Track

For the first time in many years, it appears the female athletes may rate second billing to male stars in the B.C. Junior Olympic track and field championships Saturday and Sunday at Centennial Stadium.

Most of the top female competitors are currently touring Europe and only a few may be able to make it back by the weekend. This leaves the field open for local favourites Kathy Welch, Cheryl Blevins, Karen Eggar, Gail Gummer, Bev Cox, and Nicki Webb as well as Vancouverites Jean Sparling and Tinker Robinson.

Event by event, the battle in the men's division should shape up as follows:

Tim Page of Victoria and Andy Bone of Vancouver, who have both turned in times of 10.9 seconds in the 100 metres, will be vying with each other and a group of four runners who have turned in 11-second clockings in the same event.

Page (at 22.3 seconds) and Tom Mitchell, also of Victoria, will be struggling against Dudley Horner and Harold Lockwood of Vancouver, who both have turned in times within tenths of the second, in the 200 metres.

Victoria's Tom Mitchell is favored for his fast time of 49.4 seconds in the 400 metres.

Tom Griffin of Victoria and Vancouver's Ivor Day and Dexter Asoon will be top choices to win the 800-metre championship while Bill Smart of Vancouver, who ran in the Munich Olympics is favored to take the senior category in the same event.

Greg Joy of Vancouver, the sensation who just cleared seven feet two inches at a meet in Athens, is entered in the high jump.

Ken Wenman of Vancouver, who cleared 16 feet, 1 inch in Europe recently with the Canadian team, highlights the junior pole vault competition while Allan Kane of Vancouver (16'9") is favored in the senior event.

Murray Keating of Victoria will have some tough competition from Vancouverites Scott Neilson and Gary Salmond in the hammer throw while Phil Olson of Nanaimo, who hurled the javelin 255 feet, 8 inches in Europe, will be back to give Victorians a look at one of our best hopes for the Montreal Olympics in 1976.

Events in the Royal Bank sponsored meet will begin at 1 p.m. each day.

Juniors will be competing for championships and berths on a provincial team which will compete in the Canadian junior Olympic championships in Edmonton early next month. Seniors will be trying for spots on a B.C. team scheduled to meet Washington State in a dual meeet Aug. 10.

WELCOME MAT YANKED BY SAN DIEGO COUNCIL

SAN DIEGO (AP) — City council rejected Thursday a three-year lease San Diego Mariners of the World Hockey Association had signed with the San Diego Sports Arena, leaving the team with no place to play.

The 5-2 vote came after council members criticized Mariners' owner Joseph Schwartz, a Baltimore builder.

"It is up to the World Hockey Association now and the WHA owners to decide what to do," said Mayor Pete Wilson. "The league is not unwelcome in San Diego but Joe Schwartz is."

Schwartz was a key witness for the prosecution in a trial which sent Vincent Teresa, who wrote the book "My Life in the Mafia." to prison. Schwartz was not charged with any crime.

Sallaway's Dual Role Helps Topple Gorge

Tom Sallaway's strong two-way performance Thursday night led Farmer Construction to a 4-2 victory over Gorge Hotel in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game at Lambrick Park.

Sallaway picked up the pitching win while striking out nine batters and scored the winning run on a single by league-leading hitter John Yankoski after doubling in the fourth inning.

UNBEATEN TRAIL WINS RUTH TITLE

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Trail has taken the provincial Babe Ruth baseball championship for 14- and 15-year-olds, winning 3-2 Thursday night over North Vancouver in a game forced into extra innings when the teams were tied 2-2 at the end of regulation time.

Trail loaded the bases in the bottom of the ninth and losing pitcher John Mitchell walked home the winning run.

Vicettes Facing Tough First Act

Canadian champion Vancouver Green and Louie will form the opposition tonight at 8:30 as Victoria CJVI Vicettes enter the three-team, double-loss elimination B.C. senior "A" women's softball championship tournament at Vancouver's South Hill Memorial Park.

Green and Louie tripped Vancouver Totem Mercurys 3-1 in the opening game of the tourney earlier this week.

Vicettes warmed up for the tourney by tripping Stockers North Americans 9-6 in a Victoria Senior Women's League game Thursday at Hyacinth Park.

Seaboard Construction hammered View Royal 20-12 in the only other game of the night.

'New Breed' of Teachers Trained on the Job

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The teacher internship program designed to boost a lagging roster of teachers in B.C. could revolutionize teacher training in the province, program co-ordinator Dr. Bruce Andres said Thursday.

The provincial government-sponsored program will send 104 secondary school teacher interns to 10 regions in B.C. — excluding Vancouver and Victoria — to teach on a half-time basis under supervision.

The "new breed" is studying academic requirements during the four summer months on campus at University of Victoria and the "university views it as an alternative that offers useful potential for the future," said Andrews.

"It holds the opportunity for the entire educational community to assume responsibility for training a teacher.

"We need between 2,500 and 3,000 secondary school teachers within the next two or three years to handle the serious shortage and reduce the teacher-pupil ratio," said Andrews.

"Of the teachers that graduate from the regular program at UVic some 50 per cent never go into the classrooms; they get married or for other reasons there is just a significant percentage that just don't wind up teaching."

The alternative — internship — offers a mature person who has worked at other jobs "an opportunity to enter the profession with a minimum amount of fuss and bother and he will also receive financial aid." The on-campus part of the program, which runs from May to August, offers a $500 provincial incentive grant to help cover the cost of tuition and books.

What is envisioned is having students out learning and teaching during the winter session and taking their academic requirements during the summer.

Andrews said the obvious benefit is that a student will have the equivalent of a half-year of practical experience where he is now receiving about 10 weeks, before the teaching certificate is obtained.

An added advantage is it will ease difficulties in recruiting teachers for the more remote areas of the province. "One way we could deal with that problem is to get the student teachers into those areas to dispel the myths about teaching there," he said.

Andrews agreed some negative feedback about the program had been voiced, "but it's because of a lack of understanding."

"Those who think that the interns will be used to take the place of certified teachers do not understand.

"Interns will augment teaching ranks rather than take jobs away from other teachers. And we're not pretending that this isn't learning experience."

University education faculty supervisors will visit the 10 teaching intern regions, and interns also will be adequately supervised by teachers at the school, he said.

The current class of interns range in age from mid-20s to mid-50s and all possess a minimum of four years in university, according to assistant co-ordinator Richard Pearce.

Andrews does not expect the internship — which will be assessed next spring by the provincial department of education — will take away from enrolment of the regular teaching program.

"If anything it will probably increase the ranks. "A good majority of the 500 who applied for the internship program and could not be accommodated have applied for the regular program," said Andrews.

Earlier, Education Minister Eileen Dailly said she had received some mail from teachers "accusing me of a crash program that will put inferior teachers in our classroom."

She described the program as "excellent" and told interns they "will be teachers who are properly trained."

Nurses Should Enrol Early

Registered nurses who plan to attend the University of Victoria's school of nursing when it opens in September, 1975, are being urged to enrol this term as part-time students to get a head start on their degree program.

UVic acting nursing consultant Mary Richmond said the two-year program will include courses from other departments such as sociology, psychology and political science and that prospective candidates should take one or two courses this term.

Miss Richmond asks those interested to contact her before registering for courses.

The nursing program, which will offer a Bachelor of Nursing, is for registered nurses only, and can be completed in two years of full-time study or in up to six years of part-time study.

The school is being developed to improve nursing and meet a recognized need in the province and community.

"Expectations are that the graduate should be prepared to provide personal health care to people in all age groups, working interdependently with others in a variety of community settings within the total health maintenance system.

"The better one understands the patient and his background the more one is able to communicate with him and help him," she said.

Miss Richmond joined the university July 1 and is acting as consultant until a school director is appointed.

Housing Crisis Puts Pinch on Students

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Victoria's critical housing shortage could force out-of-town students to cancel their enrolment at the University of Victoria in September.

"The students come down here and look for a place to live and sleep and eat and study. If they can't find anything at all then I guess they will have to reconsider whether or not they can go to university this year," Shirley Baker, the university's housing manager, said today.

"I can foresee this being a reality. We've never faced a shortage like this before and I don't even like to contemplate the results," she said.

The university has placed advertisements in newspapers and on radio looking for accommodations of any kind for the more than 700 students who will need a place to live.

"This is the first time we have placed ads of this kind, the first time we've been forced to, and we're looking for every kind of accommodation," Mrs. Baker said.

The 600 beds available in the university residences have been filled for months and the housing office is no longer putting names on the waiting list "because it gives the students a false sense of hope," Mrs. Baker said.

The office now has less than 100 listings in its index file and "there are dozens of students coming through here every day looking.

"In other years we always worried that we wouldn't have enough places, but we usually got by.

"I hope these ads we've placed have the phones ringing off the wall."

CPR Fouled Order: Recyclers

Regional Recycle officials today accused Canadian Pacific Railway of fouling up a railcar order to move old tin cans to a total reclamation plant in Seattle.

Don Sher and Mike Romano told a press conference this morning a railcar was ordered in late June but the order was lost and a gondola car one-third smaller than ordered was provided.

"The situation was rather tight and there was no alternative but to accept this smaller car which carried with it the same minimum weight charge as the large car," they said.

Then, they said, they were told to load the gondola even with the top of the sides. This was done but later they were told the old cans should be eight inches below the top of the sides, requiring the removal of two of the 15 tons.

Regional Recycle staff took off one ton but were told that wasn't enough, they said.

Romano and Sher, who admitted that nothing is in writing in the arrangements with Canadian Pacific, said "we cannot get them to co-operate at all wifh us.

"They are trying to charge $100 more for the haul than was originally agreed to and it was only because of a $100 lower cost factor that we shipped with them in the first place.

"It's amazing that they can think that we can be strong-armed in such a high-handed manner. Why should we be charged for their mistakes?"

A Canadian Pacific spokesman said in answer to the charges that while the recycle people "have reason to be unhappy it's not really our doing. We've done our best to assist them."

Bill Grant of CPR's marketing and sales division said there is no record of Regional Recycle placing an order in June.

There were discussions and "each time I stressed to order the car well in advance because we have to bring it in. They were told the car supply was critical."

The only gondola car CPR could come up with quickly was a 52-foot one whereas Regional Recycle wanted a 65-foot car.

Grant admitted the smaller gondola "certainly was not suitable for their volume and we said we couldn't tell them when we could get a 65-foot gondola."

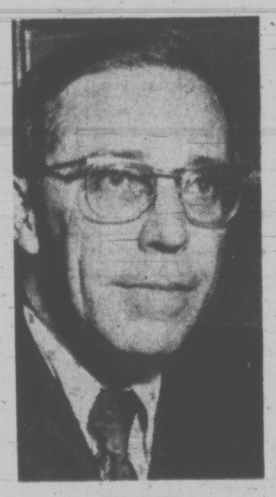
The recycle people then said they couldn't use the smaller gondola, but despite this they went ahead and loaded it up, said Grant.

Normally, a gondola can be loaded to the height of the sides "but no one foresaw that empty cans slide around like greased articles so when we came to move the car the cans were skidding over the side."

Because the gondola was in an unsafe condition, the height of the cans had to be lowered.

Grant said it is "unfortunate" that the recycle people are not experienced shippers. There was a rate increase during the order and loading time but railway companies under the law must "protect the new rates."

Keeper of the Treasures Calls B.C. Trove Tops



TURNER
. . . archivist

B.C.'s new provincial archivist is people-oriented.

Allan R. Turner, who is keeper of B.C.'s art treasurers, historical documents and records, believes in encouraging people to use the archives and in schools and universities making use of its varied material.

A native of Ontario but educated in Saskatchewan, Turner, 50, was Saskatchewan archivist for 11 years before coming to Victoria earlier this month to take over his present job.

He noted that the provincial archives has a collection of paintings, prints and books on the history of the Pacific northwest "equal if not superior to all other provinces."

"In these areas, you are certainly ahead of Saskatchewan," he said.

"The more we can do to advance the use of this material in schools and universities, the better," he said.

While the purpose of an archives is to preserve such historical material, he said kits of copies of paintings, prints or historical documents could be made up for school programs.

"Teachers should make more use of material available in the archives," he added.

Turner also said he hopes to extend the opening hours of the archives for people interested in research work.

Thus a part-time historian who works during the day would be allowed in the archives after hours for research.

Turner established such a system in Saskatchewan.

CRASH KNOCKS POWER OFF

A pick-up truck was demolished early this morning when the driver swerved to avoid hitting an animal and sheered off a hydro pole at East Saanich and Island View.

Power was knocked out in the area for more than three hours.

Central Saanich police said the driver, Ken Fox, 21, of Shady Creek Lane, was uninjured in the mishap.

A spokesman for B.C. Hydro said employees worked through the night to restore power. The pole will be replaced later today.

Ship History on Display

A concentrated history of shipbuilding in British Columbia from its earliest times is being presented for the first time by the Provincial Museum in an exhibit lasting through Sept. 15.

Museum director Bristol Foster said the display in which the B.C. Maritime Museum and Vancouver Maritime Museum are co-operating, represents one of the temporary segments of the museum's permanent historical exhibition.

To keep signs and placards explaining the material to a minimum, the museum has printed a large pamphlet entitled Slipways, containing an abridged history of shipbuilding from the year 1788 when B.C.'s first locally-built vessel was launched at Nootka Sound — the 40-ton schooner Northwest America.

The publication classifies the displays in seven sections: Wood, Canvas and Steam 1788-1880; Sternwheelers of the Interior 1880-1912; Sophistication 1913 Style; Old Ways and New 1914-1928; St. Roch and the Northwest Passage 1928; Steel Ships — Repairs and Conversion 1928-1942; Of Wars and Industry 1942-1947.

There are photos of such ships as the full-rigged, wooden-hulled Mabel Brown, a schooner typical of those in the foreign trade and fitted with diesel engine auxiliaries at the time of the First World War.

In the exhibit hall are scale models, ships' instruments marine architect's drawings, shipbuilder's tools and artifacts like CPR playing cards and a stateroom key.

Foster said it is the museum's intention to keep the permanent exhibits turning over to maintain interest.

He said that although the museum caters to a large number of tourists who make one visit a year, local residents who are frequent visitors are also considered.

During the summer when tours bring thousands of additional visitors to the museum, diversions have been created to prevent traffic jams. For instance between June 30 and Sept. 1 the Newcombe Auditorium is showing films from the television series on the History of Civilization each afternoon at 2:30.

Other temporary exhibits in the permanent historical display are planned for the fall. One will be entitled Distant Empires and relates the Chinese presence in British Columbia from the 1780s to the 1970s. Another will feature the architecture of Samuel Maclure, and a third will display a piece of moon rock picked up by an extra-terrestrial geological foray.

'Greedy Frog' Now Provides Scenic Trails

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

When the world was younger and rivers were crystal clear, a giant frog lived on Salt Spring Island, according to a Cowichan Indian legend.

He was the father of all frogs — the wood frog, the pickerel frog, the treefrog and the bullfrog.

The story tells how the massive creature acquired land facing Sansum Narrows from the One Who Dwells Above, but with the proviso that he diet only on insects.

But the frog tired of bugs, switched to dining on birds winging between Salt Spring and Vancouver Island.

He swallowed them by the thousands, taking such an enormous toll of ducks, geese and swans that Indians feared for their extinction.

His croaking was equally disturbing. The sound vibrated from Albert Head to Cape Scott and was blamed for many disorders among the Indian people.

One day the Transformer, "the man who shaped the world," passed by, and was so angered by the disobedience and greed of the frog, that he promptly turned him into stone.

The Indians say the giant frog can be seen today in the form of Mount Maxwell, the highest mountain on Salt Spring Island — 1,931 feet.

A visit to this 160-acre park, established in 1938, is well worthwhile. From its summit there are superb views of Burgoyne Bay, Sansum Narrows, Maple Bay and the surrounding countryside.

A half-mile trail skirts the spectacular cliffs. There are other footpaths through the wooded area of the park, one nearly a mile long.

Most people are unaware of the trails. They are missing something if they don't walk the skyline trail. But it's no place for young children unless they are watched closely.

To get to Maxwell, take the Fulford Harbor ferry from Swartz Bay. From Fulford drive eight miles on Fulford Road and turn left on Maxwell Road. The road to the top is mostly unpaved.

The mountain actually has two names. A Royal Navy surveying party in 1859 named it Baynes Mountain, after an admiral, but later it became locally known as Maxwell after a family living on the island.

In 1912 the Canadian Geographic Board wanted to reinstate the name of Baynes, but members of the Maxwell family and friends objected. A compromise was reached. The top was named Baynes Peak, and the rest Maxwell.

But it seems strange that while this squabbling was going on, the Geographic Board ignored its Indian name. It is obviously an Indian landmark.

It is called Hyas Wakik — Big Frog.

Safer Pacemaker Installed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 60-year-old Vancouver businessman is sporting technology's latest version of the cardiac pacemaker — a cigarette lighter-sized pack containing lithium iodide.

Carl Chrismas was one of the first three Canadians to receive the new power pack, which the doctor who installed it says may turn out to be the pacemaker of the future.

"It's safer than the old mercury pack which has a life expectancy of about two years and is much cheaper than the atomic pacemaker," Dr. Ian Munro said in an interview.

The mercury pacemaker costs about $1,000. The lithium iodide model costs $1,600 and is expected to operate for more than seven years.

Munro said a patient using an atomic pacemaker will be able to carry it for 12 to 15 years before replacement. But that model costs about $5,000.

"One disadvantage of the mercury model is that it produces hydrogen gas," Munro said. "In order to rid it of this gas a small hole is made. Through this same opening body fluids may enter the pack."

He said the risk is small, but it might impair maximum efficiency of the device.

"The second problem with the mercury battery is that it has an alkaline-corrosive material which can lead to early deterioration of the power pack."

It has been reported that some mercury pacemakers had to be replaced within three to six months.

"The lithium pack has neither the alkaline component nor does it give off this hydrogen gas."

And Munro said the effects of slight radiation from the nuclear pacemaker are still unknown. No adverse effects have yet been reported.

Since Munro installed Chrismas's pack, nearly 60 other such pacemakers have been implanted in patients throughout Canada.

Chrismas said he never felt better and was working harder than ever.

He travels across the country carrying a portable monitor through which, with the aid of telephone, he can send an electro-cardiogram recording to Vancouver General Hospital's cardiac division. Experts can then interpret the reading rapidly to determine whether the pacemaker is functioning properly.

Ottawa Produces List Of Harmful Teethers

Herb Gray, Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, has released the names of fluid filled baby teething rings tested to date by the department which do not comply with regulations established under the Hazardous Products Act.

These regulations prohibit the advertisement, sale and importation of baby products that are put in the mouth when used, such as teethers, soothers and pacifiers, which have a filling containing harmful micro-organisms.

Departmental inspectors have been seizing those teething rings found on retail shelves which do not comply with these regulations. In a press release, Gray said that stores should remove immediately from their shelves the products named in this release.

With reference to teething rings that consumers already have in their home, Gray said that departmental officials advise that, depending on the heat resistance of the plastic materials used in construction of the teething rings, some may be sterilized by boiling for 10 to 15 minutes. In the event that the plastic teething ring doesn't withstand the boiling procedure, that is the ring opens at the seams or falls apart, the minister urges that such teething rings in the home be thrown out and not used anymore.

Fluid-filled teething rings found to be contaminated are models 3300, 3303, 3331 and 3332 made by Bedford Industries of Montreal; model 138 made by Chantex Inc., Montreal; the Kool Duck W.P. 156 made by Westland Plastics of Newbury Park, Calif., and distributed by Changex Inc., Montreal, Norman Wholesale, Vancouver, and Drug Distributing of Montreal.

PIONEER BUTCHER CONTINUES TRADE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Andrew Rennie, 87, is probably the oldest active butcher in Vancouver.

He has been selling meat for more than 70 years. He was going to retire, but at the last moment found he couldn't sell his store, Andy's Sanitary Meat Market, where he has been selling groceries and cutting meat for 30 years.

He opened his first store in the late 1800s, with sawdust on the floor and he cut up carcasses by hand with a knife and handsaw.

"Butchers don't know how to cut meat any more," said Mr. Rennie. "I'm one of the last of the ones who can take a whole carcass and butcher it. Today it's all done by machine."

He was about 15 when he left home in Dundee, Scotland, and shipped to Halifax. He stayed in Vancouver with a friend and started work at the old Vancouver-Kamloops Meat Company.

"We hauled the meat in off trucks and we learned everything there was to know about cutting it," he recalled. "Hours were long—we started at six in the morning and finished at eight o'clock at night. A big wage in those days was $3 a day."

He thinks today's astronomical meat prices are silly.

"We made more money out of the business in the old days when prices were low and the money went further."

Driving Her Crazy

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and Bill is 21 and we're getting married soon. My problem is my mother. She doesn't drive, and she is always offering Bill's driving services to her friends without asking Bill first. She just calls him and tells him to pick up so and so. She also asks him to drive her around and do different errands for her. She has never offered to put any gas in Bill's car and with gas so high, it makes a difference.

Bill isn't dumb. He knows he's being taken advantage of, but he's such a nice guy he never says "no" to her.

I've asked Mom not to take advantage of Bill this way, but it hasn't helped. Any suggestions? —Bill's Girl

DEAR GIRL: Tell Bill that when your mother's requests are an imposition to tell her in a nice way that he can't accommodate her. People who let others take advantage of them can expect to go through life being used and inconvenienced. They may be known as "nice guys," but they're also known as "suckers."

DEAR ABBY: It's 4:30 a.m. and I'm so mad I can't go back to sleep. It seems my brother-in-law, Joe, is making a habit of spending the night on our couch.

His reason for staying here is that he is too drunk to drive home. He totaled his pickup two months ago after one of his drinking sprees.

My husband thinks I'm selfish for not wanting Joe here. I disagree. I feel this house is half mine and I should be able to get up and go into the living room in the middle of the night without worrying about someone seeing me half nude. I'm eight months pregnant, so I get up a lot, and I don't like to put on my robe each time.

I think if Joe wants to get plastered he should make other sleeping arrangements (Like a motel.) What should I do? Grin and bear it for my husband's sake? Or tell Joe how I feel? I'm afraid if Joe killed himself driving home, my husband would blame me. —Had it with Joe.

DEAR HAD IT: If Joe comes to your house plastered, ask your husband to escort him home. Drunk drivers kill not only themselves — they kill innocent people.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FATIMA" NUDELMAN: Stay with those belly dancing lessons, Granny. You'll lose the blues and your caboose.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

I just read an article about an able marriage counsellor with the American Institute of Family Relations, Los Angeles, Calif., Dr. Robert Hicks, who has been impressed with the large number of marriages that are wrecked by the nagging of either the wife or the husband.

I, too, have been impressed with this problem in marriages, as I have talked with hundreds of patients whose main "illness" is due to unhappiness at home. I had to be a sort of marriage counsellor in order to help them, so they could go home relieved of some of their symptoms.

For example, I have heard many a time how some of my women patients have driven their husband out of their bed, and sometimes even out of the home by nagging. Perhaps the wife kept telling her husband how to run his office, and how to discipline his employees.

As some of the husbands have said to me, "I keep reminding my wife that I can't be as stupid as she thinks I am because I have built a fine big business, and always, every month, I have given her a big allowance. For years I have kept begging her to permit me to run the business in my own way."

The other day I saw a man who was tempted to divorce his wife, the daughter of a minister, because so often she nags at him for hours at a time because he won't go to church with her twice every Sunday. When eventually she succeeded in alienating her once loving and kindly husband, and was then lonely for the affection he had once shown her, she admitted that she had been a fool.

Women aren't the only ones who are guilty of nagging. Sometimes it has been the husband who had this fault. I have mentioned here before the man who married a fine woman because of her great ability to share in his business with him and work alongside him. When one day I learned that their marriage was going on the rocks, I was very concerned, because I knew that they were well suited for one another and loved each other.

In talking with them, I could see that the source of the trouble was that he kept nagging at her because he thought she was not keeping the house as clean and neat as he would like it to be, and she resented his complaining. I liked them so much that I took him aside, and asked him if he was not paying too high a price for a neat house, the cost was the loss of his wife's affection. He thought awhile, and then he admitted that he probably was foolish. That was many years ago, and recently the couple happily celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Interestingly, sometimes the nagging person needs to only have the bad habit pointed out to him or her to stop doing it, while others cannot seem to control the tendency, and hence they continue to make themselves and their mates miserable.

The most wonderful persons in marriage are those who are easy to live with — who are "as comfortable as an old shoe." Such people are not likely to take offence at some small thing or to be critical of what others around them say or do.

As a wife said to me recently, "It is true my husband is a trial to me in a few trivial ways, as when he is dropping cigar ashes all over the house, but I forgive him gladly because he is so generous, and he always encourages me to do things that I enjoy. He never questions what I do, why I went into the city or why I got home late. He never complains; he never upsets me by hurrying me, and when I want to be alone, he respects my need for privacy."

I often marvel at the way in which a man or woman, married to a nagging or fault-finding spouse, learns to say nothing when a "storm" breaks. I was amused one day while travelling on a train, watching the old couple across from me. The man asked his wife where his reading glasses were, and she answered that she didn't know. He said, angrily, "But you should know; you packed the bags." She said again that she couldn't remember which one of the three bags contained the glasses.

Her husband started going through one bag after the other, becoming angrier and angrier all the time, and growling more and more at his wife, who sat like a Buddha, looking out of the window and not saying a word. Finally, what nearly convulsed me was that the man growled, "Now, let's not get into a row about this thing!"

If you know how to care for your fine furniture, you can maintain its good looks for many years.

A helpful 6-page bilingual folder warns never to use beeswax on furniture. This wax never really hardens and tends to collect dust. Neither should you use polish which contains beeswax. It, too, is too soft and therefore easily marked.

The folder also warns against the use of linseed oil on furniture because it darkens with age.

For proper maintenance of all furniture the folder recommends pure lemon oil because it restores the natural moisture of wood.

Whatever you do, never wash fine or antique furniture with water or a damp cloth. Water is wood's worst enemy.

The folder also tells you how to remove white rings from polished furniture. Simpley squeeze some ordinary toothpaste on a damp cloth and rub over the area till the white ring disappears. Wipe clean and repolish with pure lemon oil.

Black rings are marks in the wood and require refinishing. There are directions for obtaining professional results from do-it-yourself refinishing.

Ask for: "18th Century Antique and Fine Furniture Refinishing Products." With your request please enclose a long (No. 10) self-addressed, stamped envelope and send it to: Hallmark Supply Company, 55 Fieldway Road, Toronto, Ontario M8Z 2L4. Please allow 2-3 weeks for delivery.

LAMAZE: A Labor of Love

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

After Heather Hestler had her second baby, she lay in the hospital one night and heard the screams of a woman in labor at the other end of the ward.

"It doesn't have to be that way," she said to herself. She had found that out the hard way, with deliveries which left bad memories the first time and good ones the second.

The difference had been something called Lamaze.

Kathy Gilchrist is a registered nurse from California with a special interest in obstetrics. She says more than half the women who come to the delivery room at Victoria General Hospital are now accompanied by their partners.

Lamaze again has been one big reason.

The Lamaze method of preparing for childbirth, named for its French physician founder, has been taught in Victoria for several years. But of late it's becoming increasingly popular.

Kathy and Heather, who now lead the classes, describe Lamaze as essentially a preparation of the mother and father-to-be — both physically and mentally — for what they will experience in the hours of labor leading to the ultimate moment when their baby is born.

In six classes held weekly towards the end of pregnancy the women, with their partners in the role of "coach," learn what's going to happen — the stages of childbirth in the labor room and the delivery room, how labor pains rise and fall and how they can be countered with different rhythms in breathing.

Couples in the classes also visit the maternity ward in the hospital, see an up-to-date film on Lamaze, have a chance to hear and question a doctor as well as talk to a couple (with their baby) who have been through both Lamaze and childbirth.

The teachers say the object of Lamaze is — to have a healthy baby, a safe delivery and a good experience for the couple during birth.

Heather believes so strongly that no woman should go through childbirth alone that she has "coached" a number of single girls through their labor. The Lamaze method prepares fathers to accompany mothers right into the delivery room and during the hours of labor gives them plenty to do.

The classes begin with instruction in exercises, to strengthen and tone muscles used in labor. They teach women how to use their energy economically and how to relax because the more tense the mother, the more intense the labor pains.

A good deal of time is devoted to instruction on five different rhythms for breathing as labor progresses.

The "coach is taught to watch for signs of tension, how he can help with back and stomach massage, by monitoring his partner's breathing patterns, reminding her if she becomes confused, supporting her shoulders during the pushing involved in contractions.

Couples are taught what hyperventilation is and what to do about it, how the baby moves in stages towards birth, what a posterior delivery means and why back pain can be expected with it.

They learn that x-rays are sometimes needed during labor, what a fetal monitor does and what induced labor means. Births don't always follow the same pattern so they are told, in effect, to "stay flexible."

Heather says childbirth is a time when a woman can feel isolated and frightened. Education helps overcome the fear and the moral and physical support of her partner can make the birth a powerful shared experience, drawing them closer.

"I can see by watching couples come into the delivery room the difference it makes," says Kathy. "It really works."

Heather and Kathy say that time and again in classes they have seen expectant fathers change their attitude — to say later the birth of their baby was an experience they're glad they didn't miss.

"It gets the family away to a good start," Kathy says.

The Lamaze course is held Thursday nights from 8 to 10 p.m., in the student nurses' residence alongside Victoria General. There is a $25 charge per couple but no one has been turned away for not being able to afford it.

Those interested in registering can phone Heather at 598-1629 or Kathy at 382-3829.

The teachers prefer eight to ten couples per class but the numbers enrolling have been climbing so they are considering the need for two courses running at the same time.

PRACTISING PANTING at the "first level" is Kathy Downard, accompanied by her husband Vic. In six classes held weekly towards the end of pregnancy the women in the Lamaze class run by Heather Hestler and Kathy Gilchrist, with their partners, in the role of "coach," learn both physically and mentally what they will experience in the labor leading to the moment of the birth of their own infant.

EXPECTANT fathers who have taken the Lamaze course often say the birth of their baby was an experience they wouldn't miss and that for the woman the moral and physical support of her partner can make the birth a powerful shared experience, drawing them closer says instructor Hestler.

Salt Water Gases May Fuel Autos

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP)—A Virginia Beach contractor says he is about to perfect a process that will run automobiles and home-heating systems on gases produced by salt water.

Edward Leitz and his two sons have been experimenting with the process for the last year, using the well-known technique of utilizing electricity to produce hydrogen and oxygen from salt water.

The gas produced from the water is funnelled into the carburetor of a 1974 four-cylinder car parked in Leitz' garage.

And the car engine runs on the gas.

"What we hope to do is develop a system that will work with no alterations on the cars now coming out of Detroit," Leitz said.

Although the process has been known for years and other investors have experimented with hydrogen-fuelled automobiles, Leitz says a patent search has shown that no other process actually allows salt water to be placed in the automobile for generation of gas inside the engine.

The carburetor of Leitz's car is attached by hoses to gas-collecting devices in small vats of salt water at the side of the vehicle.

Outlet for Local Talent Goal of Folklore Folk

By LON WOOD
Times Staff

There are hundreds or possibly thousands of Victorians who own banjos, guitars, zithers or violins — but few of them will likely ever book into the Memorial Arena or any of the area's night spots to share their talents.

"Of all these people who play and sing, so far we're aware of about 25 acts willing and able to entertain on a professional level without making it a full time thing," says Steve Saba, resident guitar maker at Victoria's Folklore Centre. "We'd like to know of more."

Saba and colleagues Denis Donnelly and Dave and Marjorie Cahill want to work as "catalysts for good entertainment and positive feedback for the musicians," says Donnelly.

The four have rented Norway House on Hillside for a triple-bill concert at 8 p.m. this Saturday, July 27 as a pilot project they hope will lead to year-round concerts and hootenannies.

Space asked us to put on a concert in June with local people," said Saba. "We got three acts with seven people and it was really successful — but Open Space didn't have any space for the project to continue."

Saba said continuation of the project will be on a non-profit basis with admission charged to cover rentals and payment of musicians.

"We are interested in accoustic music as opposed to electric — people on stringed instruments, in the full range of blues, folk, bluegrass, traditional, ragtime and contemporary."

Saba admits, however, the quartet will make some judgement of talent to be aired.

"We have to set ourselves up in the tyrannical position of saying who can play and who can't. In the past there has been a lot of amateur stuff — we can't pay someone $20 to $30 an hour just to play C chord."

Saturday's show will include the five-member Redwing group and guitar-picking balladeer Benny Heywood of Victoria, and Don Audet and Richard Baker of Galiano, who give blues, ragtime and original material on guitar, harmonica and vocal.

BRINGING TO MIND an incident which occurred during construction of Christ Church Cathedral, this arrangement sits beneath a pillar in the cathedral on which a bird and nest are sculptured. Word has it construction workers found a nest full of eggs on the site and built around it until the eggs hatched and the bird's brood was old enough to fly off. The arrangement is part of the weekend Festival of Flowers at the cathedral. (John McKay photo.)

Bomber Left Blood

MONTREAL (CP) — A bomb which exploded prematurely early today at the rear of the home of Melvyn Dobrin, president of Steinberg's Ltd., caused little structural damage to the house but may have injured the bomber, police said.

Detectives combing the vicinity of the house in Town of Mount Royal, a Montreal suburb, found a blood-stained glove with one finger missing and a large pool of blood.

Earlier reports that two human fingers, a timing device and a bloodstained tie were found were denied by police.

"We found no human parts near the scene of the bombing," a police spokesman said. "In fact, we hope to find the culprit in one piece."

Five members of Dobrin's family were in the house at the time of the explosion, but no one was injured.

Kitchen windows were shattered and the porch patio was slightly damaged by the blast.

Police said no motive for the bombing has been established yet.

Steinberg's Ltd. is a major food and dry goods retailer in Eastern Canada.

Coal Power for Hydro?

Resources Minister Bob Williams says B.C. Hydro could save hundreds of millions of dollars by turning to coal instead of hydro-electricity for a source of new electric power.

Williams said Thursday the crown corporation could save on capital construction costs during the next decade by turning to coal.

He said "there is a very real possibility" a thermal generating station using coal will be built in or near Hat Creek coalfields in the central interior during the next few years.

Williams said Hydro has begun test drilling on reserves near the coalfields, and the question of further studies and plans will be raised at Hydro board meetings in the near future.

The minister said the biggest advantage of the coal plant over hydroelectricity is its much lower capital cost. With interest rates as high as they are — 10 per cent to 12 per cent for Hydro — hundreds of millions of dollars could be saved by developing the coal plant, he added.

The coal plant would have a shorter life than a hydroelectric plant, he said. Most coal plants in Britain last about 25 years, compared with about 30 to 50 years for a hydroelectric plant.

But in times of high interest rates, "the value of the future is destroyed by the costs of the present," he said.

He said the B.C. plant could probably find a market for the ash created by burning coal. In England, the ash is used in bricks and as a foundation for roadbeds.

Strike, Lockout Time Losses Up

Time lost through strikes and lockouts in British Columbia in the first half of this year is up substantially from the same period last year.

Preliminary estimates from the labor department show there were 77 disputes involving 78,671 workers with a time loss of 1,886,977 work days.

This compares with 67 disputes, 18,112 workers and 202,352 work days in the corresponding period last year.

In the first half of 1972, when many of the contracts being renegotiated this year were signed, there were 64 disputes involving 86,050 workers with a time loss of 1,390,817 work days.

The labor department's monthly bulletin said the figures are "understandably" higher than those for the past year "and reflect the intensity of this year's bargaining activity where to date, a total of 228 major collective agreements covering 119,002 employees have expired."

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you information you give are the have to offer; the details and most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call:

AirWest Asks STOL Strip

AirWest Airlines of Vancouver will ask the Ministry of Transport to consider building landing strips for short take-off and landing craft in downtown Victoria and Vancouver.

An AirWest spokesman in Vancouver said today an application could be submitted "within a couple of days" but that it would likely be a request only to take a look at the possibility of establishing the 2,000-foot airstrips.

Possible locations along Victoria's Inner Harbor have been looked at by MoT and AirWest officials, Jim Sutherland, AirWest marketing and administration manager, said.

AirWest has an option to buy a 48-passenger De Havilland Dash 7, a STOL, but "won't exercise its option unless the government builds the STOL strips," AirWest owner Norman Gold says.

The federal government will consider building the airstrips if B.C. airlines apply, an MoT spokesman says.

It would take about two years to build a terminal and runway, Erik Anderson, MoT airport planning manager, said.

Since the De Havilland STOLs are not scheduled to be ready for service until 1978, AirWest would use a twin-engined Otter on the inter-city flight if airstrips are built before that time, Sutherland said.

Gold said earlier this week AirWest could provide 35-minute service between downtown Victoria and downtown Vancouver and central Seattle using the landing strips.

Language Bill Closure

QUEBEC (CP) — The Liberal government made official Thursday its intention to invoke closure on the debate on its official language bill, a move that means the controversial bill will probably be passed by the assembly by the middle of next week.

The government gave notice Thursday of a motion that will end clause-by-clause study of the legislation making French Quebec's official language by 6 p.m. tonight.

The assembly's education committee has been studying the bill since July 16 but thanks to a steadfast filibuster by six Parti Quebecois members of the assembly, the committee is still on the second of the 130 articles in the legislation.

Wharf St. Freeze Thaw Felt

A slight thaw has been permitted by the provincial government in its development freeze along the Wharf Street waterfront, stretching from the Causeway to Johnson Street Bridge.

Developer Hans Hartwig said Thursday he has received government approval to carry out the restoration and refurbishing of the historic Finlayson block, 1202-1214 Wharf, and he will soon request a building permit from the city.

Hartwig's original plan was to incorporate the old building in a new waterfront development that was to include offices and retail space, but until the freeze is lifted he cannot undertake any new construction.

The restrictions, imposed by the cabinet last April, say no one may "locate, erect, alter, extend or demolish" any building or structure within the designated area.

The Finlayson block adjoins the former Reid Centre site, now under provincial ownership.

'Colored' Policy Collapses

Manchester Guardian

CAPE TOWN — The South African government's policy towards the two million "colored" people of mixed-race descent is in a state of collapse following the Colored Persons Representative Council's rejection by 29-25 of the official program of "separate development."

The council is to seek an urgent interview with the minister of colored relations to ask him where they go from here. The majority of council members now want direct representation in the South African parliament from which they were excluded 20 years ago. A demand has been made for 60 seats in the 171-member House of Assembly.

The council, which was created by the government as a colored "parliament," in effect has passed a motion of confidence in itself.

Members of the ruling Federal Party, which has collaborated with the government over the official policy of separate development, defected to the opposition Labor Party when opposition leader Sonny Leon put the following motion: "This council has no confidence in separate development and all its institutions, including the colored representative council."

Prime Minister John Vorster has admitted in the past that he has no longterm policy for the colored people who live mainly in Cape Province. In an unprecedented rebuke, one of his own newspapers, Die Vaderland, ascribes the debacle in the council to years of "lack of policy."

Vorster's views that the official policy towards the coloreds must be left to future generations of South Africans to decide.

Unlike the 16 million black Africans, who have "homelands," the colored people have no territorial base. Yet they are expected to "develop separately" from whites. Colored leaders protest that the colored community is being kept in limbo.

FIR Chief Hits Wildcats, Rivalry

VANCOUVER (CP) — Inter-union rivalry and wildcat strikes are two labor relations problems that have yet to be successfully dealt with under the British Columbia labor code, the president of Forest Industrial Relations said Thursday.

Don Lanskail, also president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, told a service club meeting there have been success and failures under the NDP government legislation and it is too early to give a "considered" verdict on the code.

He said basic scheme of the legislation is to liberate the bargaining process and leave the responsibility for success or failure on the shoulders of the parties involved.

"To those who believe — and I am one who does — that free collective bargainjng with all of its obvious defects is still the best system for resolving labor-management problems, the code is not a failure in this regard."

Lanskail maintained the principal reason for the high incidence of strikes is instability brought about by inflation.

He said performance and make-up of the Labor Relations Board is an area where there has been improvement. He also praised the board's policy of bringing down written decisions, a departure from the way the previous board handled matters.

On inter-union rivalry, he said:

"Industry — and the community — pay a heavy price because of this deplorable situation which not only is beyond their control, but also is almost impossible to resolve through normal collective bargaining procedures."

He said the code did recognize the problem to a degree by providing for the formation of trade union councils to bargain jointly with employers.

Lanskail said this could reduce the problem.

"Unfortunately, however, several unions, notably those in construction, have stated that this provision is totally unacceptable to them and it has not been proclaimed by the government. Presumably, the construction unions in particular are more concerned about retaining the right to play one-upmanship with each other, even if it is at the cost of continued strikes."

Lanskail also criticized the high incidence of wildcat strikes.

2-YEAR PAY FREEZE ENDS IN BRITAIN

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain returned to free wage bargaining at midnight Thursday night after nearly two years of statutory controls.

The pay board set up by the previous Conservative government and presided over by 64-year-old Sir Frank Figgures ceases to exist following Parliamentary approval of a Labor government order to abolish it.

The only restraint in future wage bargaining between unions and employers is the minority Labor administrations's social contract with the unions, based on an appeal for fairness in society and a combined effort to contain inflation.

Belfast 'Proxy Bombs'

DUBLIN (AP) — Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave of the Irish republic renewed Dublin's pledge Thursday to help stamp out terrorism in Northern Ireland.

"With the evidence so clearly before us of the pain and destruction caused by violence in the north, we will adhere to the policy of helping to contain it . . . and of seeking progress by discussion and consent," he said.

Cosgrave made his remarks in parliament during a state-of-the-nation speech.

In Northern Ireland, guerrilla bombers sent six "proxy bombs" into downtown Belfast, bringing chaos during the city's evening rush hour. The bombs were placed on vehicles seized by the guerrillas, who had previously kidnapped relatives of the drivers and forced them to deliver the deadly loads, police said.

One bomb, estimated to contain about 500 pounds of explosives, wrecked the entrance of the Europa Hotel, which has already suffered $2.4 million in bomb damage in 20 months.

Unionist, Ex-MLA Dies at 93

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Henry (Harry) Neelands, a former Vancouver union leader and MLA, has died at the age of 93.

Neelands, longtime secretary of the Vancouver Typographical Union, Local 226, also served on the Vancouver School Board, Vancouver Police Commission and University of B.C. board of governors.

Born in Chatsworth, Ont., Neelands came to B.C. in 1891, settling in Victoria. He worked there as a printer before coming to the Vancouver area in 1905, working briefly for the Columbian, then for the Province.

He became secretary of the Typographical Union in 1909 and worked full time at this position from 1911 to 1954.

He was a member of the South Vancouver School Board from 1912 to 1918 and South Vancouver Labor MLA from 1920 to 1928. After leaving the legislature, Neelands was a member of the Vancouver Police Commission in 1929 and 1930 and a Vancouver school trustee from 1932 to 1942. He was a member of the UBC board of governors from 1942 to 1954.

This Job's Just A Drag

DALLAS (UPI) — A policewoman who spends her working time imitating a prostitute says her assignment is boring.

"I expected it to be a lot of things, but boredom never entered my mind," she said.

"The policewoman's job is to sit in bars and wait for men to offer her money for her sexual favors. When he names an amount, she leaves him, and two policemen come on the scene and arrest the man.

"Really, the men are for the most part very average and dull," she said. "It's all those long conversations that are so boring. Believe me, there's nothing glamourous."

She said she has only been offended once, and that was when someone offered her $5.

"My God, my makeup costs more than that," she said.

She said the first man who tried to pick her up talked for 45 minutes.

"It's a pattern I've found. The men all talk first. Then they feel they know the girl and that somehow justifies what they are doing."

Canada Booming, U.S. Says

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States commerce department shares an optimistic view of Canada's economic prospects this year.

"The Canadians appear to have ample justification for their belief that their real growth will exceed that of any other developed nation in 1974," the department's monthly Commerce Today reports.

The magazine cites current estimates that the gross national product in Canada this year will increase to about $130 billion from $118 billion in 1973, and that the "elements which fuelled the 1973 boom are still operative, relatively undaunted by problems of fuel supply and commodity shortages which beset most other nations of the world."

The analysis is part of a country-by-country look at American trade prospects this year.

It says the "opportunities for American exporters are almost unlimited in Canada this year," with significant gains in the first quarter for such exports as automotive parts, communications equipment, steel plate and capital equipment.

The Allotment Garden: Pollen Spoiled by Water

A week of sunnier days, slightly higher temperatures and no significant showers (when I write these notes Wednesday evening) all adds up to watering likely to be the most important job for allotment gardeners this weekend.

One root watering of established vegetables will last for several days, but if you haven't been practising this habit, try it now and see the improvement in the plants. Sprinkling is only for seed rows and seedlings, and they need this often.

Looking at some plots, I feel that lack of moisture in the root area is the cause of poor growth. We know that good soil does not nourish plants without moisture being present to make a solution of the nutrients in the soil. And no amount of additional (dry) fertilizer will make an improvement.

Often in gardens we notice seedling vegetables remain small until the first heavy fall rain, then everything goes ahead.

★

It is the deep penetration of water which carries the fertilizer within reach of the roots that results in this sudden improvement in growth. Unfortunately, it is too late in the season for some crops.

Don't let that happen to you. There are five weeks yet before September. With careful watering you will be harvesting many more of your splendid vegetables in these weeks.

A few cautions in watering. Don't spray water over corn plants once the pollen stem and the tassels are to be seen — pollination is by wind from the pollen stem at the top across the rows to the tassels of other plants where the cobs are formed. If the pollen is dampened every day or so by a spray of water it cannot be dry enough to become windborne. Result: few cobs of corn, or, imperfections in the cobs.

Pollen on the male blossoms of squash plants can be spoiled by too frequent overhead water spraying, resulting in poor pollination of female (fruit bearing) flowers. Since more female flowers are produced as the daylight hours shorten from now through August, it is poor policy to continue overhead watering and thus spoil the chance of having plenty of fruits.

★

This warning applies to marrows, pumpkins, melons and cucumbers, all members of the cucurbit family.

The plants need water at the roots to increase the size of the fruits as they swell, not over the flowers and foliage.

Tomatoes need the same cultural handling.

Watering at the soil level so that moisture goes down to where the roots are busily looking for food is the answer to growing and ripening tomatoes on the plants.

An additional aid in setting fruit (tomatoes) is to tap the stems sharply whenever you happen to be near them on dry warm days and you notice that tomato flowers are open.

Little attentions like these are worth writing in your personal allotment garden calendar.

Next year you won't be starting from scratch, you'll be carrying on, backed by this year's experience.

SOLUTION MONDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal we have a good example of how an optimistic attitude can result in a needless defeat. The hand is not a difficult one to play properly. Yet the fact is that our South declarer played it exactly as presented. Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

♣ K Q

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	1 ♠	2 ♣	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

After West has opened the spade King, South properly felt that the fulfillment of the three-notrump contract figured to be a cinch. All that was required was that the five adversely held clubs be divided 3-2 (a 68 per cent chance) In this case, the king, queen, and ace of clubs would gather in the outstanding clubs. And six club tricks would then be there for the taking.

So South won the opening spade lead with his ace, after which he chased the king of clubs. Next came the queen of clubs—and West discarded a diamond.

The queen of clubs was overtaken by dummy's ace, and the ten of clubs led next, East's jack winning. East returned a spade, and declarer played the nine, hoping that East posessed the ten. But West had the ten, and he proceeded to rake in four spade tricks, thus sending declarer down to a one-trick defeat.

Actually, declarer was unlucky in finding the five outstanding clubs divided 4-1, rather than 3-2. But his defeat was strictly his own fault.

All declarer had to do to assure the making of his contract was to have allowed West's spade king to capture the opening lead. If West then led another spade, he would give declarer a present of a trick, since South's A-J would now win two tricks.

If, at trick two, West elected to lead the heart queen (the normal lead), South would capture it with his king. Next would come the king of clubs, and this would be followed by the overtaking of the club queen with dummy's ace. The ten of clubs would then be given away to East's jack.

Whatever East now played back, declarer would have his contract, with an overtrick: one spade, two hearts, two diamonds, and five clubs. But, as has been observed, South played too hurridly to the first trick.

RENT POSTING URGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia tenant organizations Thursday urged immediate proclamation of a section in the new Landlord and Tenant Act that would require posting of rents and their anniversary dates in all apartment buildings.

The proposal was made to provincial rentalsman Barrie Clark, who said he would forward the request to the attorney-general.

Bruce Yorke, president of the B.C. Tenants' organization, estimated after the meeting that as many as 15 per cent of landlords may be flouting provisions of the rent stabilization act that limit rent increases to eight per cent.

He said the rentalsman also agreed to exert pressure on offending landlords even though he won't have full powers as rentalsman until Oct. 1, when the new act is scheduled to take effect.

Cyprus on Verge Of Fresh Battle

Times News Services

Turkey landed more troops on Cyprus today and acting Cypriot president Glafkos Clerides warned that war would break out again within a few hours unless the Turks stopped violating the cease-fire.

Almost immediately mortar and machine gun fire broke out along the Green Line, patrolled by Canadian troops, separating Cyprus' Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communities. Witnesses said Greek-led national guardsmen began piling into trucks to move into position.

Cyprus, meanwhile, requested an urgent UN Security Council meeting on the alleged cease-fire violations.

A meeting was scheduled to begin at noon Vicroria-time.

And, at the three-way Geneva peace talks, Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros threatened today to walk out over the violations.

"The condition for continuation of the talks is that the cease-fire is respected by the Turkish government," he told Reuters.

"I am not prepared to stay here so long as the ceasefire agreement is violated. We have encountered more than 50 violations so far from the Turkish side."

"Time is running out," Clerides told a news conference in Nicosia.

"It will be with the greatest reluctance that I will appear before the Greek people of Cyprus to invite them to fight to the last man and to the end.

"I can no longer restrain the National Guard and other forces in the republic from taking countermeasures" against Turkish advances, he said.

Asked if by "other forces" he meant Greek troops had arrived on the island, Clerides said: "No comment."

The Turkish army has mounted a major landing of supplies for its invasion force on the northern beaches of Cyprus Thursday as the leader of the Turkish Cypriot community indicated the Turks may never give back the harbor of Kyrenia to Greek-Cypriot control.

"Kyrenia is now the door and window of the Turkish community — economically, socially and humanely — and we badly need it," Rauf Denktas told a news conference.

Denktas, who was the national vice-president in the overthrown government of Archbishop Makarios, also indicated that he would not accept the return of Makarios to the island.

"Makarios is now part of a closed book," he said.

Waves of Turkish helicopters were seen flying over the Kyrenia mountains Thursday to inland landing zones.

One foreign military attache estimated that the initial Turkish force of about 6,000 men that landed Saturday may have been swelled to more than 10,000, despite the ceasefire.

In Nicosia itself it was quiet Thursday night and today apart from occasional shots across the Green Line.

Turkish-Cypriots in the Turkish quarter of Nicosia said today that they heard occasional mortar shells whistling overhead.

His Last $1.40

ABINGDON, England (UPI) — Unemployed and ill with tuberculosis, Frank Andrews was down to his last $1.40 and had to choose between saving the money for new shoes or betting it on the horses. He chose the horses, and won $120,000.

Andrews, 49, made an off-track accumulator bet on six horses and all came in—at 12-1, 20-1, 10-1, 9-4, 3-1 and 7-2, with his stake and winnings increasing from one to the next.

Andrews collected his cheque Thursday. It should have been $208,000 but the Ladbroke offtrack betting organization said it limits payouts to $120,000 on this type of bet.

21 Held In Drug Raids

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two young police constables posed as drug addicts for about four months to gather evidence for police who Thursday started a major drug roundup involving about 100 suspected heroin traffickers.

As a result of evidence from the male-female undercover team, drug squad detectives swore out 101 warrants earlier this week for alleged narcotics violations.

Members of the crime prevention unit, the drug squad and some RCMP officers started the search for those wanted Thursday afternoon and by late evening at least 21 people had been arrested.

The undercover team, identified as a Constable McKeddie and Constable Jane Roberts, both in their early 20s, were recent graduates from the police academy when they started their work in March.

Inspector Sid Devries, head of the drug squad when the constables began the operation said the pair posed as drug addicts and made heroin buys from pushers.

Along with the heroin buys the young constables also made several cocaine, speed, LSD and marijuana purchases during their time on the street.

More possession charges are expected because some of those arrested Thursday were caught with narcotics in their possession. One 25-year-old woman was nabbed with 42 caps of heroin worth about $1,500.

Inspector Devries said most of the warrants were issued for regular street pushers but some "higher-ups" are also being sought.

WILKINSON PRISONERS BALK AGAIN

For the second time in a week prisoners awaiting trial balked at returning to their cells at Wilkinson Road jail Thursday night.

The prisoners, who maintained that because they had not been convicted of any crimes should not be locked up at night or any time. But they relented and entered their cells five minutes before the 11 a.m. deadline.

Director S. A. L. Hamblin said the prisoners told the officer in charge they wanted 15 minutes longer because they were working on a set of grievances.

The officer gave them five.

Hamblin said there was no disturbance.

On July 18 prisoners in the awaiting-trial wing of the jail refused to return to their cells at night.

UVic Tests To Spot Health Risks

Some 1,000 provincial government and University of Victoria employees will be tested this summer to find out who would be a risk if they entered directly into a physical fitness program.

A $75,000 pilot project, testing will be conducted by UVic departments of physical education and biology to validate a questionnaire which will be made available to organizations across Canada.

Purpose of the questionnaire will be to screen out persons, particularly in the middle-aged bracket, who would risk their health by strenuous physical fitness exercise, said test program director Dr. Martin Collis.

Subjects will receive, free of charge, a physician's examination, blood tests, lung function assessment, various standardized measurements and resting and stress electrocardiograms.

Because of the large involvement of UVic personnel in the project, Dr. Collis said staff and faculty are invited to be tested Aug. 2, and possibly from Aug. 6 to 15, beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Lansdowne Junior High School.

Collis said the project reflects the emphasis the provincial government is placing on physical activity as a form of preventive medicine.

UVic was chosen, he said, because of its experience in fitness programs.

Nixon Now Considering Next Line of Defence

Times News Services

President Nixon apparently has written off chances of defeating an impeachment recommendation by the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee.

Aides who usually reflect Nixon's views are talking of the next line of defence — the House.

They have said publicly they expect the House to reject impeachment.

Privately the assessment of some of Nixon's top lieutenants is that he may have to stake his fight to remain in office on a trial in the Senate.

Both press secretary Ronald Ziegler and political counsellor Dean Burch have said they would not be "surprised" if the committee passes to the floor a bill of impeachment, but insist it will not be approved by the House.

Burch told reporters a few days ago that he conveyed to Nixon that "the judiciary committee is a very difficult hurdle for a Republican president and that is particularly true when you consider the make-up of the committee, where you have six to seven Democratic partisans on there who would impeach if the president got a parking ticket."

On the basis of their previously announced positions it appears certain a majority of the committee is prepared to recommend impeachment if a satisfactory article can be drafted.

It takes only a majority of the judiciary committee's 38 members ot recommend impeachment and a majority of the House to impeach.

It would require a two-thirds vote in the Senate to find the president guilty and remove him from office.

Representative Delbert Latta (Rep.—Ohio), a committee member opposed to impeachment, sees a 27-to-11 vote in favor of a recommendation that the House impeach Nixon and that a Senate trial be held to determine whether he should be removed from office.

Meanshile, Nixon's standing in the public eye has fallen to a new low, according to a Gallup Poll published today.

A survey taken July 12-15 among 1,555 persons in more than 300 localities around the country showed that only 24 per cent approved of Nixon's conduct in office. Sixty-three per cent gave him a negative rating and 13 per cent gave no opinion.

The 24 per cent rating was only one point above the lowest ever given a president in the Gallup Polls.

That was the 23 per cent positive rating given Harry S. Truman in the fall of 1951, during the Korean war.

In a related development, presidential lawyer James St. Clair said today it is impossible to comply with Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's proposal that the White House surrender the tapes of 64 conversations relating to the Watergate political scandal in 10 days.

But he told United States

Abductor Believed B.C. Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police in Washington state are looking for a suspect believed to be from B.C. in the disappearance of six young women in Washington in the past six months.

The Vancouver Sun said Thursday in a report from a staff reporter in Seattle that King County police are almost sure that the suspect is not a local resident.

Four of the six women are college students who vanished without a trace at night, one from her house and the others from near their campus dormitories. The other two were apparently abducted during the day from a crowded state park 11 days ago.

Detective Capt. Joseph Mackie said in an interview with the reporter that the abductor is believed to be a young man with long blonde or light brown hair who approached a number of girls in Lake Samammish State Park near Issaquah, 15 miles east of Seattle.

He said the man had his arm in a sling and told the girls he hurt his arm playing racquet ball and spoke with what one of the girls said could be an English accent.

Detective Capt. Mackie said police have a good description of the man but widespread publication in King County of the description and an artist's drawing have failed to produce a response.

Because of this, and because of the man's accent and reference to racquet ball — a sport better known in Vancouver than in Seattle — police suspect he came from B.C., Mackie said.

Newcomers Increase By 72%

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration to Canada increased by a whopping 72 per cent in the first quarter of 1974 when 45,302 newcomers arrived in this country compared with 26,288 during the same period in 1973, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

During the first quarter of 1973, immigration was 12 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1972 when there were 23,567 newcomers.

Oceanic countries showed the largest percentage increase of immigrants to Canada during the first three months of 1974.

Newcomers from Oceania during this period numbered 399, more than triple the corresponding period of 1973 when the total was 23.

About 346 of the total immigrants from Oceanic countries during the early part of this year were from Fiji and 47 were from Mauritius.

Immigration also jumped dramatically in the early part of 1974, bringing 2,981 newcomers to Canada compared with 1,189 during the same period last year.

Immigration from Asian countries during this period was up 88 per cent from the first three months of 1973 and immigration from North and Central American countries was up 78 per cent.

The total number of newcomers from Europe, including Britain and the Soviet Union, increased by 58 per cent in the early part of 1974 compared with the first three months of 1973.

There also were 32 per cent more immigrants from Australasian countries and 26 per cent more from African countries.

U.S. FOOD CHAIN LOSES $32M SUIT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A United States federal jury found the A and P supermarket chain guilty of fixing prices in buying fresh meat and assessed the giant company $32.7 million Thursday. The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. was found guilty of conspiring to fix prices at both the wholesale and retail levels.

The award will be made to six livestock producers in California and Colorado.

The actual damages awarded by the jury totalled $10.9 million, which is automatically tripled under anti-trust law.

Hard Facts Temper Grit Joy

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Liberal members of Parliament admitted Thursday their jubilation at being returned to office with a majority has been tempered by some hard economic facts of life.

These facts were spelled out by Finance Minister John Turner at a Liberal Party caucus Wednesday. Turner's message was described as a "realistic" reappraisal of the seriousness of the economic situation confronting the Canadian government.

The numerous new spending programs announced by the government and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau during the election campaign will add considerably to proposed expenditures. Turner — if he continues in the post of finance minister — will have to take the added spending into consideration when he brings in the revised budget late in October or early in November.

The spending programs will have to be stretched over the four years or more that lie ahead of the newly-elected administration.

The finance department last May estimated the government would be required to borrow $2 billion in the present year.

A very disturbing run on Canada Savings Bonds has continued since then despite moves made in the budget — hiking the interest rate to 9 per cent — to halt the run. The government has had to pay out more than $1.1 billion since the beginning of the year.

Canadians alarmed by the rising inflation have been trading in their Canada Savings Bonds to invest in higher paying bank savings certificates and trust notes. The Canada Savings Bonds normally are redeemed at a rate of $100,000,000 per month. During May and June they were being cashed in at the surprising rate of $300,000,000 per month.

This took a substantial chunk out of the governments cash reserves.

The government will have to go to the bond market with a new issue at this time when interest rates are soaring.

The announcement by the Bank of Canada Tuesday night increasing its prime interest rate from 8¾ per cent to a record 9¾ per cent effective Wednesday stressed for government members the seriousness of the situation. It signalled even tighter credit conditions for individuals and corporations and trouble ahead for the administration.

Begging Bylaw Scrapped by City

Victoria city council decided Thursday to scrap its proposed anti-begging bylaw, after hearing that enforcement problems could well render the bylaw meaningless.

But somewhat different explanations of the difficulties came from Ald. Bill Tindall and city solicitor Jakob de Villiers.

Tindall told council he had learned from city police that they have no powers of summary arrest in enforcing municipal bylaws.

This means, he said, that if a policeman saw a beggar approaching people outside the Government Street liquor store, and the man refused to give his name and address, the officer would have to ask him to remain there while he went off to obtain a warrant from the city prosecutor's office.

The chances of the beggar complying were remote, he said, adding: "In trying to enforce this bylaw we may succeed in making city police look ludicrous, literally."

Tindall said a section of the Criminal Code prohibiting the "impeding or obstructing" of pedestrians perhaps could be used to control the begging nuisance on city streets.

In any case, said the alderman, police had indicated they were receiving "very few" complaints concerning begging. "It doesn't appear to be the major problem we thought it was."

Contradicting part of Tindall's statement, de Villiers said emphatically no one can be arrested for alleged contravention of a city bylaw, with or without a warrant.

The solicitor said the only way of proceeding against such a person is by means of a summons, and admitted that if the beggar refused to give his name and address "difficulties arise."

The

'New Breed' of Teachers Trained on the Job

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The teacher internship program designed to boost a lagging roster of teachers in B.C. could revolutionize teacher training in the province, program co-ordinator Dr. Bruce Andres said Thursday.

The provincial government sponsored program will send 104 secondary school teacher interns to 10 regions in B.C. — excluding Vancouver and Victoria — to teach on a half-time basis under supervision.

The "new breed" is studying academic requirements during the four summer months on campus at University of Victoria and the "university views it as an alternative that offers useful potential for the future," said Andrews.

"It holds the opportunity for the entire educational community to assume responsibility for training a teacher.

"We need between 2,500 and 3,000 secondary school teachers within the next two or three years to handle the serious shortage and reduce the teacher-pupil ratio," said Andrews.

"Of the teachers that graduate from the regular program at UVic some 50 per cent never go into the classrooms; they get married or for other reasons there is just a significant percentage that just don't wind up teaching."

The alternative — internship — offers a mature person who has worked at other jobs "an opportunity to enter the profession with a minimum amount of fuss and bother and he will also receive financial aid." The on-campus part of the program, which runs from May to August, offers a $500 provincial incentive grant to help cover the cost of tuition and books.

What is envisioned is having students out learning and teaching during the winter session and taking their academic requirements during the summer.

Andrews said the obvious benefit is that a student will have the equivalent of a half-year of practical experience where he is now receiving about 10 weeks, before the teaching certificate is obtained.

An added advantage is it will ease difficulties in recruiting teachers for the more remote areas of the province. "One way we could deal with that problem is to get the student teachers into those areas to dispel the myths about teaching there," he said.

Andrews agreed some negative feedback about the program had been voiced, "but it's because of a lack of understanding."

"Those who think that the interns will be used to take the place of certified teachers do not understand.

"Interns will augment teaching ranks rather than take jobs away from other teachers. And we're not pretending that this isn't learning experience."

University education faculty supervisors will visit the 10 teaching intern regions, and interns also will be adequately supervised by teachers at the school, he said.

The current class of interns range in age from mid-20s to mid-50s and all possess a minimum of four years in university, according to assistant co-ordinator Richard Pearce.

Andrews does not expect the internship — which will be assessed next spring by the provincial department of education — will take away from enrolment of the regular teaching program.

"If anything it will probably increase the ranks. "A good majority of the 500 who applied for the internship program and could not be accommodated have applied for the regular program," said Andrews.

Earlier, Education Minister Eileen Dailly said she had received some mail from teachers "accusing me of a crash program that will put inferior teachers in our classroom."

She described the program as "excellent" and told interns they "will be teachers who are properly trained."

Nurses Should Enrol Early

Registered nurses who plan to attend the University of Victoria's school of nursing when it opens in September, 1975, are being urged to enrol this term as part-time students to get a head start on their degree program.

UVic acting nursing consultant Mary Richmond said the two-year program will include courses from other departments such as sociology, psychology and political science and that prospective candidates should take one or two courses this term.

Miss Richmond asks those interested to contact her before registering for courses.

The nursing program, which will offer a Bachelor of Nursing, is for registered nurses only, and can be completed in two years of full-time study or in up to six years of part-time study.

The school is being developed to improve nursing and meet a recognized need in the province and community.

"Expectations are that the graduate should be prepared to provide personal health care to people in all age groups, working interdependently with others in a variety of community settings within the total health maintenance system.

"The better one understands the patient and his background the more one is able to communicate with him and help him," she said.

Miss Richmond joined the university July 1 and is acting as consultant until a school director is appointed.

Housing Crisis Puts Pinch on Students

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Victoria's critical housing shortage could force out-of-town students to cancel their enrolment at the University of Victoria in September.

"The students come down here and look for a place to live and sleep and eat and study. If they can't find anything at all then I guess they will have to reconsider whether or not they can go to university this year," Shirley Baker, the university's housing manager said today.

"I can forsee this being a reality. We've never faced a shortage like this before and I don't even like to contemplate the results," she said.

The university has placed advertisements in newspapers and on radio looking for accommodations of any kind for the more than 700 students who will need a place to live.

"This is the first time we have placed ads of this kind, the first time we've been forced to, and we're looking for every kind of accommodation," Mrs. Baker said.

The 600 beds available in the university residences have been filled for months and the housing office is no longer putting names on the waiting list, "because it gives the students a false sense of hope," Mrs. Baker said.

The office now has less than 100 listings in its index file and "there are dozens of students coming through here every day looking.

"In other years we always worried that we wouldn't have enough places, but we usually got by.

"I hope these ads we've placed have the phones ringing off the wall."

CPR Fouled Order: Recyclers

Regional Recycle officials today accused Canadian Pacific Railway of fouling up a railcar order to move old tin cans to a total reclamation plant in Seattle.

Don Sher and Mike Romano told a press conference this morning a railcar was ordered in late June but the order was lost and a gondola car one-third smaller than ordered was provided.

"The situation was rather tight and there was no alternative but to accept this smaller car which carried with it the same minimum weight charge as the large car," they said.

Then, they said, they were told to load the gondola even with the top of the sides. This was done but later they were told the old cans should be eight inches below the top of the sides, requiring the removal of two of the 15 tons.

Regional Recycle staff took off one ton but were told that wasn't enough, they said.

Romano and Sher, who admitted that nothing is in writing in the arrangements with Canadian Pacific, said "we cannot get them to co-operate at all with us.

"They are trying to charge $100 more for the haul than was originally agreed to and it was only because of a $100 lower cost factor that we shipped with them in the first place.

"It's amazing that they can think that we can be strong-armed in such a high-handed manner. Why should we be charged for their mistakes?"

A Canadian Pacific spokesman said in answer to the charges that while the recycle people "have reason to be unhappy it's not really our doing. We've done our best to assist them."

Bill Grant of CPR's marketing and sales division said there is no record of Regional Recycle placing an order in June.

There were discussions and "each time I stressed to order the car well in advance because we have to bring it in. They were told the car supply was critical."

The only gondola car CPR could come up with quickly was a 52-foot one whereas Regional Recycle wanted a 65-foot car.

Grant admitted the smaller gondola "certainly was not suitable for their volume and we said we couldn't tell them when we could get a 65-foot gondola."

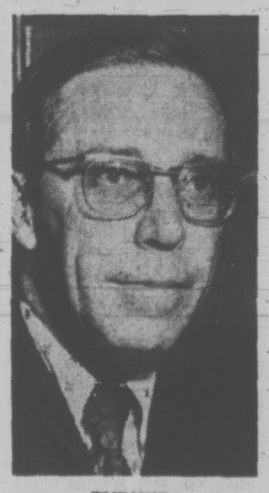
The recycle people then said they couldn't use the smaller gondola, but despite this they went ahead and loaded it up, said Grant.

Normally, a gondola can be loaded to the height of the sides "but no one foresaw that empty cans slide around like greased artjeles so when we came to move the car the cans were skidding over the side."

Because the gondola was in an unsafe condition, the height of the cans had to be lowered.

Grant said it is "unfortunate" that the recycle people are not experienced shippers. There was a rate increase during the order and loading time but railway companies under the law, must "protect the new rates."

Keeper of the Treasures Calls B.C. Trove Tops



TURNER
. . . archivist

B.C.'s new provincial archivist is people-oriented.

Allan R. Turner, who is keeper of B.C.'s art treasurers, historical documents and records, believes in encouraging people to use the archives and in schools and universities making use of its varied material.

A native of Ontario but educated in Saskatchewan, Turner, 50, was Saskatchewan archivist for 11 years before coming to Victoria earlier this month to take over his present job.

He noted that the provincial archives has a collection of paintings, prints and books on the history of the Pacific northwest "equal if not superior to all other provinces."

"In these areas, you are certainly ahead of Saskatchewan," he said.

"The more we can do to advance the use of this material in schools and universities, the better," he said.

While the purpose of an archives is to preserve such historical material, he said kits of copies of paintings, prints or historical documents could be made up for school programs.

"Teachers should make more use of material available in the archives," he added.

Turner also said he hopes to extend the opening hours of the archives for people interested in research work.

Thus a part-time historian who works during the day would be allowed in the archives after hours for research.

Turner established such a system in Saskatchewan.

CRASH KNOCKS POWER OFF

A pick-up truck was demolished early this morning when the driver swerved to avoid hitting an animal and sheered off a hydro pole at East Saanich and Island View.

Power was knocked out in the area for more than three hours.

Central Saanich police said the driver, Ken Fox, 21, of Shady Creek Lane, was uninjured in the mishap.

A spokesman for B.C. Hydro said employees worked through the night to restore power. The pole will be replaced later today.

Ship History on Display

A concentrated history of shipbuilding in British Columbia from its earliest times is being presented for the first time by the Provincial Museum in an exhibit lasting through Sept. 15.

Museum director Bristol Foster said the display in which the B.C. Maritime Museum and Vancouver Maritime Museum are co-operating, represents one of the temporary segments of the museum's permanent historical exhibition.

To keep signs and placards explaining the material to a minimum, the museum has printed a large pamphlet entitled Slipways, containing an abridged history of shipbuilding from the year 1788 when B.C.'s first locally-built vessel was launched at Nootka Sound — the 40-ton schooner Northwest America.

The publication classifies the displays in seven sections: Wood, Canvas and Steam 1788-1880; Sternwheelers of the Interior 1880-1912; Sophistication 1913 Style; Old Ways and New 1914-1928; St. Roch and the Northwest Passage 1928; Steel Ships — Repairs and Conversion 1928-1942; Of Wars and Industry 1942-1947.

There are photos of such ships as the full-rigged, wooden-hulled Mabel Brown, a schooner typical of those in the foreign trade and fitted with diesel engine auxiliaries at the time of the First World War.

In the exhibit hall are scale models, ships' instruments marine architect's drawings, shipbuilder's tools and artifacts like CPR playing cards and a stateroom key.

Foster said it is the museum's intention to keep the permanent exhibits turning over to maintain interest.

He said that although the museum caters to a large number of tourists who make one visit a year, local residents who are frequent visitors are also considered.

During the summer when tours bring thousands of additional visitors to the museum, diversions have been cerated to prevent traffic jams. For instance between June 30 and Sept. 1 the Newcomb Auditorium is showing films from the television series on the History of Civilization each afternoon at 2:30.

Other temporary exhibits in the permanent historical display are planned for the fall. One will be entitled Distant Empires and relates the Chinese presence in British Columbia from the 1780s to the 1970s. Another will feature the architecture of Samuel Maclure, and a third will display a piece of moon rock picked up by an extra-terrestrial geological foray.

'Greedy Frog' Now Provides Scenic Trails

By HUMPHREY DAVY
Times Staff

When the world was younger and rivers were crystal clear, a giant frog lived on Salt Spring Island, according to a Cowichan Indian legend.

He was the father of all frogs — the wood frog, the pickerel frog, the treefrog and the bullfrog.

The story tells how the massive creature acquired land facing Sansum Narrows from the One Who Dwells Above, but with the proviso that he diet only on insects.

But the frog tired of bugs, switched to dining on birds winging between Salt Spring and Vancouver Island.

He swallowed them by the thousands, taking such an enormous toll of ducks, geese and swans that Indians feared for their extinction.

His croaking was equally disturbing. The sound vibrated from Albert Head to Cape Scott and was blamed for many disorders among the Indian people.

One day the Transformer, "the man who shaped the world," passed by, and was so angered by the disobedience and greed of the frog, that he promptly turned him into stone.

The Indians say the giant frog can be seen today in the form of Mount Maxwell, the highest mountain on Salt Spring Island — 1,931 feet.

A visit to this 160-acre park, established in 1938, is well worthwhile. From its summit there are superb views of Burgoyne Bay, Sansum Narrows, Maple Bay and the surrounding countryside.

A half-mile trail skirts the spectacular cliffs. There are other footpaths through the wooded area of the park, one nearly a mile long.

Most people are unaware of the trails. They are missing something if they don't walk the skyline trail. But it's no place for young children unless they are watched closely.

To get to Maxwell, take the Fulford Harbor ferry from Swartz Bay. From Fulford drive eight miles on Fulford Road and turn left on Maxwell Road. The road to the top is mostly unpaved.

The mountain actually has two names. A Royal Navy surveying party in 1859 named it Baynes Mountain, after an admiral, but later it became locally known as Maxwell after a family living on the island.

In 1912 the Canadian Geographic Board wanted to reinstate the name of Baynes, but members of the Maxwell family and friends objected. A compromise was reached. The top was named Baynes Peak, and the rest Maxwell.

But it seems strange that while this squabbling was going on, the Geographic Board ignored its Indian name. It is obviously an Indian landmark.

It is called Hyas Wakik — Big Frog.

RENT POSTING URGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia tenant organizations Thursday urged immediate proclamation of a section in the new Landlord and Tenant Act that would require posting of rents and their anniversary dates in all apartment buildings.

The proposal was made to provincial rentalsman Barrie Clark, who said he would forward the request to the attorney-general.

Bruce Yorke, president of the B.C. Tenants' organization, estimated after the meeting that as many as 15 per cent of landlords may be flouting provisions of the rent stabilization act that limit rent increases to eight per cent.

He said the rentalsman also agreed to exert pressure on offending landlords even though he won't have full powers as rentalsman until Oct. 1, when the new act is scheduled to take effect.

Cyprus on Verge Of Fresh Battle

Times News Services

Turkey landed more troops on Cyprus today and acting Cypriot president Glafkos Clerides warned that war would break out again within a few hours unless the Turks stopped violating the cease-fire.

Almost immediately mortar and machine gun fire broke out along the Green Line, patrolled by Canadian troops, separating Cyprus' Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communities. Witnesses said Greek-led national guardsmen began piling into trucks to move into position.

Cyprus, meanwhile, requested an urgent UN Security Council meeting on the alleged cease-fire violations.

A meeting at noon Victoria-time.

And, at the three-way Geneva peace talks, Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros threatened today to walk out over the violations.

"The condition for continuation of the talks is that the cease-fire is respected by the Turkish government," he told Reuters.

"I am not prepared to stay here so long as the ceasefire agreement is violated. We have encountered more than 50 violations so far from the Turkish side."

"Time is running out," Clerides told a news conference in Nicosia.

"It will be with the greatest reluctance that I will appear before the Greek people of Cyprus to invite them to fight to the last man and to the end.

"I can no longer restrain the National Guard and other forces in the republic from taking countermeasures" against Turkish advances, he said.

Asked if by "other forces" he meant Greek troops had arrived on the island, Clerides said: "No comment."

The Turkish army has mounted a major landing of supplies for its invasion force on the northern beaches of Cyprus Thursday as the leader of the Turkish Cypriot community indicated the Turks may never give back the harbor of Kyrenia to Greek-Cypriot control.

"Kyrenia is now the door and window of the Turkish community — economically, socially and humanely — and we badly need it," Rauf Denktas told a news conference.

Denktas, who was the national vice-president in the overthrown government of Archbishop Makarios, also indicated that he would not accept the return of Makarios to the island.

"Makarios is now part of a closed book," he said.

Waves of Turkish helicopters were seen flying over the Kyrenia mountains Thursday to inland landing zones.

One foreign military attache estimated that the initial Turkish force of about 6,000 men that landed Saturday may have been swelled to more than 10,000, despite the cease-fire.

In Nicosia itself it was quiet Thursday night and today apart from occasional shots across the Green Line.

Turkish-Cypriots in the Turkish quarter of Nicosia said today that they heard occasional mortar shells whistling overhead.

His Last $1.40

ABINGDON, England (UPI) — Unemployed and ill with tuberculosis, Frank Andrews was down to his last $1.40 and had to choose between saving the money for new shoes or betting it on the horses. He chose the horses, and won $120,000.

Andrews, 49, made an off-track accumulator bet on six horses and all came in—at 12-1, 20-1, 10-1, 9-4, 3-1 and 7-2, with his stake and winnings increasing from one to the next.

Andrews collected his cheque Thursday. It should have been $208,000 but the Ladbroke offtrack betting organization said it limits payouts to $120,000 on this type of bet.

21 Held In Drug Raids

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two young police constables posed as drug addicts for about four months to gather evidence for police who Thursday started a major drug roundup involving about 100 suspected heroin traffickers.

As a result of evidence from the male-female undercover team, drug squad detectives swore out 101 warrants earlier this week for alleged narcotics violations.

Members of the crime prevention unit, the drug squad and some RCMP officers started the search for those wanted Thursday afternoon and by late evening at least 21 people had been arrested.

The undercover team, identified as a Constable McKeddie and Constable Jane Roberts, both in their early 20s, were recent graduates from the police academy when they started their work in March.

Inspector Sid Devries, head of the drug squad when the constables began the operation said the pair posed as drug addicts and made heroin buys from pushers.

Along with the heroin buys the young constables also made several cocaine, speed, LSD and marijuana purchases during their time on the street.

More possession charges are expected because some of those arrested Thursday were caught with narcotics in their possession. One 25-year-old woman was nabbed with 42 caps of heroin worth about $1,500.

Inspector Devries said most of the warrants were issued for regular street pushers but some "higher ups" are also being sought.

WILKINSON PRISONERS BALK AGAIN

For the second time in a week prisoners awaiting trial balked at returning to their cells at Wilkinson Road jail Thursday night.

The prisoners maintained that because they had not been convicted of any crimes they should not be locked up at night or any time. But they relented and entered their cells five minutes before the 11 a.m. deadline.

Director S. A. L. Hamblin said the prisoners told the officer in charge they wanted 15 minutes longer because they were working on a set of grievances.

The officer gave them five.

Hamblin said there was no disturbance.

On July 18 prisoners in the awaiting-trial wing of the jail refused to return to their cells at night.

UVic Tests To Spot Health Risks

Some 1,000 provincial government and University of Victoria employees will be tested this summer to find out who would be a risk if they entered directly into a physical fitness program.

A $75,000 pilot project, testing will be conducted by UVic departments of physical education and biology to validate a questionnaire which will be made available to organizations across Canada.

Purpose of the questionnaire will be to screen out persons, particularly in the middle-aged bracket, who would risk their health by strenuous physical fitness exercise, said test program director Dr. Martin Collis.

Subjects will receive, free of charge, a physician's examination, blood tests, lung function assessment, various standardized measurements and resting and stress electrocardiograms.

Because of the large involvement of UVic personnel in the project, Dr. Collis said staff and faculty are invited to be tested Aug. 2, and possibly from Aug. 6 to 15, beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Lansdowne Junior High School.

Collis said the project reflects the emphasis the provincial government is placing on physical activity as a form of preventive medicine.

UVic was chosen, he said, because of its experience in fitness programs.

Nixon Now Considering Next Line of Defence

NEWS BRIEFS

Times News Services

President Nixon apparently has written off chances of defeating an impeachment recommendation by the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee.

Aides who usually reflect Nixon's views are talking of the next line of defence — the House.

They have said publicly they expect the House to reject impeachment.

Privately the assessment of some of Nixon's top lieutenants is that he may have to stake his fight to remain in office on a trial in the Senate.

Both press secretary Ronald Ziegler and political counsellor Dean Burch have said they would not be "surprised" if the committee passes to the floor a bill of impeachment, but insist it will not be approved by the House.

Burch told reporters a few days ago that he conveyed to Nixon that "the judiciary committee is a very difficult hurdle for a Republican president and that is particularly true when you consider the make-up of the committee, where you have six to seven Democratic partisans on there who would impeach if the president got a parking ticket."

On the basis of their previously announced positions it appears certain a majority of the committee is prepared to recommend impeachment if a satisfactory article can be drafted.

It takes only a majority of the judiciary committee's 38 members ot recommend impeachment and a majority of the House to impeach.

It would require a two-thirds vote in the Senate to find the president guilty and remove him from office.

Representative Delbert Latta (Rep.—Ohio), a committee member opposed to impeachment, sees a 27-to-11 vote in favor of a recommendation that the House impeach Nixon and that a Senate trial be held to determine whether he should be removed from office.

Meanwhile, Nixon's standing in the public eye has fallen to a new low, according to a Gallup Poll published today.

A survey taken July 12-15 among 1,555 persons in more than 300 localities around the country showed that only 24 per cent approved of Nixon's conduct in office. Sixty-three per cent gave him a negative rating and 13 per cent gave no opinion.

The 24 per cent rating was only one point above the lowest ever given a president in the Gallup Polls.

That was the 23 per cent positive rating given Harry S. Truman in the fall of 1951, during the Korean war.

In a related development, presidential lawyer James St. Clair said today it is impossible to comply with Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's proposal that the White House surrender the tapes of 64 conversations relating to the Watergate political scandal in 10 days.

But he told United States

Abductor Believed B.C. Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police in Washington state are looking for a suspect believed to be from B.C. in the disappearance of six young women in Washington in the past six months.

The Vancouver Sun said Thursday in a report from a staff reporter in Seattle that King County police are almost sure that the suspect is not a local resident.

Four of the six women are college students who vanished without a trace at night, one from her house and the others from near their campus dormitories. The other two were apparently abducted during the day from a crowded state park 11 days ago.

Detective Capt. Joseph Mackie said in an interview with the reporter that the abductor is believed to be a young man with long blonde or light brown hair who approached a number of girls in Lake Samammish State Park near Issaquah, 15 miles east of Seattle.

He said the man had his arm in a sling and told the girls he hurt his arm playing racquet ball and spoke with what one of the girls said could be an English accent.

Detective Capt. Mackie said police have a good description of the man but widespread publication in King County of the description and an artist's drawing have failed to produce a response.

Because of this, and because of the man's accent and reference to racquet ball — a sport better known in Vancouver than in Seattle — police suspect he came from B.C., Mackie said.

Newcomers Increase By 72%

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration to Canada increased by a whopping 72 per cent in the first quarter of 1974 when 45,302 newcomers arrived in this country compared with 26,288 during the same period in 1973, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

During the first quarter of 1973, immigration was 12 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1972 when there were 23,567 newcomers.

Oceanic countries showed the largest percentage increase of immigrants to Canada during the first three months of 1974.

Newcomers from Oceania during this period numbered 399, more than triple the corresponding period of 1973 when the total was 23.

About 346 of the total immigrants from Oceanic countries during the early part of this year were from Fiji and 47 were from Mauritius.

Immigration from Asian countries during this period was up 88 per cent from the first three months of 1973 and immigration from North and Central American countries was up 78 per cent.

The total number of newcomers from Europe, including Britain and the Soviet Union, increased by 58 per cent in the early part of 1974 compared with the first three months of 1973.

There also were 32 per cent more immigrants from Australasian countries and 26 per cent more from African countries.

Hard Facts Temper Grit Joy

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Liberal members of Parliament admitted Thursday their jubilation at being returned to office with a majority has been tempered by some hard economic facts of life.

These facts were spelled out by Finance Minister John Turner at a Liberal Party caucus Wednesday. Turner's message was described as a "realistic" reappraisal of the seriousness of the economic situation confronting the Canadian government.

The numerous new spending programs announced by the government and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau during the election campaign will add considerably to proposed expenditures. Turner — if he continues in the post of finance minister — will have to take the added spending into consideration when he brings in the revised budget late in October or early in November.

The spending programs will have to be stretched over the four years or more that lie ahead of the newly-elected administration.

The finance department last May estimated the government would be required to borrow $2 billion in the present year.

A very disturbing run on Canada Savings Bonds has continued since then despite moves made in the budget — hiking the interest rate to 9 per cent — to halt the run. The government has had to pay out more than $1.1 billion since the beginning of the year.

Canadians alarmed by the rising inflation have been trading in their Canada Savings Bonds to invest in higher paying bank savings certificates and trust notes. The Canada Savings Bonds normally are redeemed at a rate of $100,000,000 per month. During May and June they were being cashed in at the surprising rate of $300,000,000 per month.

This took a substantial chunk out of the government's cash reserves.

The government will have to go to the bond market with a new issue at this time when interest rates are soaring.

The announcement by the Bank of Canada Tuesday night increasing its prime interest rate from 8¾ per cent to a record 9¾ per cent effective Wednesday stressed for government members the seriousness of the situation. It signalled even tighter credit conditions for individuals and corporations and trouble ahead for the administration.

Begging Bylaw Scrapped by City

Victoria city council decided Thursday to scrap its proposed anti-begging bylaw, after hearing that enforcement problems could well render the bylaw meaningless.

But somewhat different explanations of the difficulties came from Ald. Bill Tindall and city solicitor Jakob de Villiers.

Tindall told council he had learned from city police that they have no powers of summary arrest in enforcing municipal bylaws.

This means, he said, that if a policeman saw a beggar approaching people outside the Government Street liquor store, and the man refused to give his name and address, the officer would have to ask him to remain there while he went off to obtain a warrant from the city prosecutor's office.

The chances of the beggar complying were remote, he said, adding: "In trying to enforce this bylaw we may succeed in making city police look ludicrous, literally."

Tindall said a section of the Criminal Code prohibiting the "impeding or obstructing" of pedestrians perhaps could be used to control the begging nuisance on city streets.

In any case, said the alderman, police had indicated they were receiving "very few" complaints concerning begging. "It doesn't appear to be the major problem we thought it was."

Contradicting part of Tindall's statement, de Villiers said emphatically no one can be arrested for alleged contravention of a city bylaw, with or without a warrant.

The solicitor said the only way of proceeding against such a person is by means of a summons, and admitted that if the beggar refused to give his name and address "difficulties arise."

RENT POSTING URGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia tenant organizations Thursday urged immediate proclamation of a section in the new Landlord and Tenant Act that would require posting of rents and their anniversary dates in all apartment buildings.

The proposal was made to provincial rentalsman Barrie Clark, who said he would forward the request to the attorney-general.

Bruce Yorke, president of the B.C. Tenants' organization, estimated after the meeting that as many as 15 per cent of landlords may be flouting provisions of the rent stabilization act that limit rent increases to eight per cent.

He said the rentalsman also agreed to exert pressure on offending landlords even though he won't have full powers as rentalsman until Oct. 1, when the new act is scheduled to take effect.

Cyprus on Verge Of Fresh Battle

Times News Services

Turkey landed more troops on Cyprus today and acting Cypriot president Glafkos Clerides warned that war would break out again within a few hours unless the Turks stopped violating the cease-fire.

Almost immediately mortar and machine gun fire broke out along the Green Line, patrolled by Canadian troops, separating Cyprus' Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communities. Witnesses said Greek-led national guardsmen began piling into trucks to move into position.

Cyprus, meanwhile, requested an urgent UN Security Council meeting on the alleged cease-fire violations.

A meeting at noon Victoria-time.

And, at the three-way Geneva peace talks, Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros threatened today to walk out over the violations.

"The condition for continuation of the talks is that the cease-fire is respected by the Turkish government," he told Reuters.

"I am not prepared to stay here so long as the ceasefire agreement is violated. We have encountered more than 50 violations so far from the Turkish side."

"Time is running out," Clerides told a news conference in Nicosia.

"It will be with the greatest reluctance that I will appear before the Greek people of Cyprus to invite them to fight to the last man and to the end.

"I can no longer restrain the National Guard and other forces in the republic from taking countermeasures" against Turkish advances, he said.

Asked if by "other forces" he meant Greek troops had arrived on the island, Clerides said: "No comment."

The Turkish army has mounted a major landing of supplies for its invasion force on the northern beaches of Cyprus Thursday as the leader of the Turkish Cypriot community indicated the Turks may never give back the harbor of Kyrenia to Greek-Cypriot control.

"Kyrenia is now the door and window of the Turkish community — economically, socially and humanely — and we badly need it," Rauf Denktas told a news conference.

Denktas, who was the natural vice-president in the overthrown government of Archbishop Makarios, also indicated that he would not accept the return of Makarios to the island.

"Makarios is now part of a closed book," he said.

Waves of Turkish helicopters were seen flying over the Kyrenia mountains Thursday to inland landing zones.

One foreign military attache estimated that the initial Turkish force of about 6,000 men that landed Saturday may have been swelled to more than 10,000, despite the ceasefire.

In Nicosia itself it was quiet Thursday night and today apart from occasional shots across the Green Line.

Turkish-Cypriots in the Turkish quarter of Nicosia said today that they heard occasional mortar shells whistling overhead.

His Last $1.40

ABINGDON, England (UPI) — Unemployed and ill with tuberculosis, Frank Andrews was down to his last $1.40 and had to choose between saving the money for new shoes or betting it on the horses. He chose the horses, and won $120,000.

Andrews, 49, made an off-track accumulator bet on six horses and all came in—at 12-1, 20-1, 10-1, 9-4, 3-1 and 7-2, with his stake and winnings increasing from one to the next.

Andrews collected his cheque Thursday. It should have been $208,000 but the Ladbroke offtrack betting organization said it limits payouts to $120,000 on this type of bet.

21 Held In Drug Raids

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two young police constables posed as drug addicts for about four months to gather evidence for police who Thursday started a major drug roundup involving about 100 suspected heroin traffickers.

As a result of evidence from the male-female undercover team, drug squad detectives swore out 101 warrants earlier this week for alleged narcotics violations.

Members of the crime prevention unit, the drug squad and some RCMP officers started the search for those wanted Thursday afternoon and by late evening at least 21 people had been arrested.

The undercover team, identified as a Constable McKeddie and Constable Jane Roberts, both in their early 20s, were recent graduates from the police academy when they started their work in March.

Inspector Sid Devries, head of the drug squad when the constables began the operation said the pair posed as drug addicts and made heroin buys from pushers.

Along with the heroin buys the young constables also made several cocaine, speed, LSD and marijuana purchases during their time on the street.

More possession charges are expected because some of those arrested Thursday were caught with narcotics in their possession. One 25-year-old woman was nabbed with 42 caps of heroin worth about $1,500.

Inspector Devries said most of the warrants were issued for regular street pushers but some "higher ups" are also being sought.

WEATHERBEATEN ROOF of Legislative Buildings will have a fresh, new look when workmen perched on scaffolding finish their task of replacing the slate blocks, the first intensive repair program to the roof undertaken since original construction. Slate was hauled from Pennsylvania, the only place that could match the original quality, at $1 per block. Work could take up to a year to complete.

WILKINSON PRISONERS BALK AGAIN

For the second time in a week prisoners awaiting trial balked at returning to their cells at Wilkinson Road jail Thursday night.

The prisoners maintained that because they had not been convicted of any crimes they should not be locked up at night or any time. But they relented and entered their cells five minutes before the 11 a.m. deadline.

Director S. A. L. Hamblin said the prisoners told the officer in charge they wanted 15 minutes longer because they were working on a set of grievances.

The officer gave them five.

Hamblin said there was no disturbance.

On July 18 prisoners in the awaiting-trial wing of the jail refused to return to their cells at night.

UVic Tests To Spot Health Risks

Some 1,000 provincial government and University of Victoria employees will be tested this summer to find out who would be a risk if they entered directly into a physical fitness program.

A $75,000 pilot project, testing will be conducted by UVic departments of physical education and biology to validate a questionnaire which will be made available to organizations across Canada.

Purpose of the questionnaire will be to screen out persons, particularly in the middle-aged bracket, who would risk their health by strenuous physical fitness exercise, said test program director Dr. Martin Collis.

Subjects will receive, free of charge, a physician's examination, blood tests, lung function assessment, various standardized measurements and resting and stress electrocardiograms.

Because of the large involvement of UVic personnel in the project, Dr. Collis said staff and faculty are invited to be tested Aug. 2, and possibly from Aug. 6 to 15, beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Lansdowne Junior High School.

Collis said the project reflects the emphasis the provincial government is placing on physical activity as a form of preventive medicine.

UVic was chosen, he said, because of its experience in fitness programs.

Nixon Now Considering Next Line of Defence

Times News Services

President Nixon apparently has written off chances of defeating an impeachment recommendation by the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee.

Aides who usually reflect Nixon's views are talking of the next line of defence — the House.

They have said publicly they expect the House to reject impeachment.

Privately the assessment of some of Nixon's top lieutenants is that he may have to stake his fight to remain in office on a trial in the Senate.

Both press secretary Ronald Ziegler and political counsellor Dean Burch have said they would not be "surprised" if the committee passes to the floor a bill of impeachment, but insist it will not be approved by the House.

Burch told reporters a few days ago that he conveyed to Nixon that "the judiciary committee is a very difficult hurdle for a Republican president and that is particularly true when you consider the make-up of the committee, where you have six to seven Democratic partisans on there who would impeach if the president got a parking ticket."

On the basis of their previously announced positions it appears certain a majority of the committee is prepared to recommend impeachment if a satisfactory article can be drafted.

It takes only a majority of the judiciary committee's 38 members to recommend impeachment and a majority of the House to impeach.

It would require a two-thirds vote in the Senate to find the president guilty and remove him from office.

Representative Delbert Latta (Rep.-Ohio), a committee member opposed to impeachment, sees a 27-to-11 vote in favor of a recommendation that the House impeach Nixon and that a Senate trial be held to determine whether he should be removed from office.

Meanwhile, Nixon's standing in the public eye has fallen to a new low, according to a Gallup Poll published today.

A survey taken July 12-15 among 1,555 persons in more than 300 localities around the country showed that only 24 per cent approved of Nixon's conduct in office. Sixty-three per cent gave him a negative rating and 13 per cent gave no opinion.

The 24 per cent rating was only one point above the lowest ever given a president in the Gallup Polls.

That was the 23 per cent positive rating given Harry S. Truman in the fall of 1951, during the Korean war.

In a related development, presidential lawyer James St. Clair said today it is impossible to comply with Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's proposal that the White House surrender the tapes of 64 conversations relating to the Watergate political scandal in 10 days.

But he told United States

Abductor Believed B.C. Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police in Washington state are looking for a suspect believed to be from B.C. in the disappearance of six young women in Washington in the past six months.

The Vancouver Sun said Thursday in a report from a staff reporter in Seattle that King County police are almost sure that the suspect is not a local resident.

Four of the six women are college students who vanished without a trace at night, one from her house and the others from near their campus dormitories. The other two were apparently abducted during the day from a crowded state park 11 days ago.

Detective Capt. Joseph Mackie said in an interview with the reporter that the abductor is believed to be a young man with long blonde or light brown hair who approached a number of girls in Lake Samammish State Park near Issaquah, 15 miles east of Seattle.

He said the man had his arm in a sling and told the girls he hurt his arm playing racquet ball and spoke with what one of the girls said could be an English accent.

Detective Capt. Mackie said police have a good description of the man but widespread publication in King County of the description and an artist's drawing have failed to produce a response.

Because of this, and because of the man's accent and reference to racquet ball — a sport better known in Vancouver than in Seattle — police suspect he came from B.C., Mackie said.

Newcomers Increase By 72%

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration to Canada increased by a whopping 72 per cent in the first quarter of 1974 when 45,302 newcomers arrived in this country compared with 26,288 during the same period in 1973, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

During the first quarter of 1973, immigration was 12 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1972 when there were 23,567 newcomers.

Oceanic countries showed the largest percentage increase of immigrants to Canada during the first three months of 1974.

Newcomers from Oceania during this period numbered 399, more than triple the corresponding period of 1973 when the total was 23.

About 346 of the total immigrants from Oceanic countries during the early part of this year were from Fiji and 47 were from Mauritius.

Immigration from Asian countries during this period was up 88 per cent from the first three months of 1973 and immigration from North and Central American countries was up 78 per cent.

The total number of newcomers from Europe, including Britain and the Soviet Union, increased by 58 per cent in the early part of 1974 compared with the first three months of 1973.

The award will be made to six livestock producers in California and Colorado.

The actual damages awarded by the jury totalled $10.9 million, which is automatically tripled under anti-trust law.

Hard Facts Temper Grit Joy

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Liberal members of Parliament admitted Thursday their jubilation at being returned to office with a majority has been tempered by some hard economic facts of life.

These facts were spelled out by Finance Minister John Turner at a Liberal Party caucus Wednesday. Turner's message was described as a "realistic" reappraisal of the seriousness of the economic situation confronting the Canadian government.

The numerous new spending programs announced by the government and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau during the election campaign will add considerably to proposed expenditures. Turner — if he continues in the post of finance minister — will have to take the added spending into consideration when he brings in the revised budget late in October or early in November.

The spending programs will have to be stretched over the four years or more that lie ahead of the newly-elected administration.

The finance department last May estimated the government would be required to borrow $2 billion in the present year.

A very disturbing run on Canada Savings Bonds has continued since then despite moves made in the budget — hiking the interest rate to 9 per cent — to halt the run. The government has had to pay out more than $1.1 billion since the beginning of the year.

Canadians alarmed by the rising inflation have been trading in their Canada Savings Bonds to invest in higher paying bank savings certificates and trust notes. The Canada Savings Bonds normally are redeemed at a rate of $100,000,000 per month. During May and June they were being cashed in at the surprising rate of $300,000,000 per month.

This took a substantial chunk out of the government's cash reserves.

The government will have to go to the bond market with a new issue at this time when interest rates are soaring.

The announcement by the Bank of Canada Tuesday night increasing its prime interest rate from 8¾ per cent to a record 9¾ per cent effective Wednesday stressed for government members the seriousness of the situation. It signalled even tighter credit conditions for individuals and corporations and trouble ahead for the administration.

Begging Bylaw Scrapped by City

Victoria city council decided Thursday to scrap its proposed anti-begging bylaw, after hearing that enforcement problems could well render the bylaw meaningless.

But somewhat different explanations of the difficulties came from Ald. Bill Tindall and city solicitor Jakob de Villiers.

Tindall told council he had learned from city police that they have no powers of summary arrest in enforcing municipal bylaws.

This means, he said, that if a policeman saw a beggar approaching people outside the Government Street liquor store, and the man refused to give his name and address, the officer would have to ask him to remain there while he went off to obtain a warrant from the city prosecutor's office.

The chances of the beggar complying were remote, he said, adding: "In trying to enforce this bylaw we may succeed in making city police look ludicrous, literally."

Tindall said a section of the Criminal Code prohibiting the "impeding or obstructing" of pedestrians perhaps could be used to control the begging nuisance on city streets.

In any case, said the alderman, police had indicated they were receiving "very few" complaints concerning begging. "It doesn't appear to be the major problem we thought it was."

Contradicting part of Tindall's statement, de Villiers said emphatically no one can be arrested for alleged contravention of a city bylaw, with or without a warrant.

The solicitor said the only way of proceeding against such a person is by means of a summons, and admitted that if the beggar refused to give his name and address "difficulties arise."

Movies

It's a Wonderful Life (xxx), on 13 at 1. A charming 1946 comedy-drama about a man given a second chance at making a good life, starring James Stewart, Donna Reed and Lionel Barrymore.

Harry Black and the Tiger (xx), on 7 at 2. Exciting action photography highlights this otherwise routine 1958 adventure-drama about a man who stalks dangerous jungle beasts for profit and thrills, starring Stewart Granger and Barbara Rush.

Zorro Rides Again (x), on 11 at 2. A 1937 costume adventure starring John Carroll.

Adventures of Captain Fabian (xx), on 13 at 3. Errol Flynn wrote the script and starred in this 1951 drama about adventure and romance in old New Orleans.

Arizona Bushwackers (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Routine 1968 western highlighted by a good cast of veterans (Howard Keel, Yvonne De Carlo, Scott Brady, Brian Donlevy and John Ireland) who struggle vainly with an awful script. In case you think the voice of the narrator sounds familiar, it should — it's James Cagney.

The Big Broadcast of 1938 (xxx), on 11 at 4. W. C. Fields' golf game and billiards routines and Bob Hope and Shirley Ross singing Thanks for the Memories are all this 1938 musical comedy have to offer — but it's quite enough. Recommended for a nostalgic rainy Saturday.

Hard Contract (xxx), on 8 at 9. Beautiful on-location filming in Tangier, Brussels, Madrid and the Costa del Sol and an excellent cast (James Coburn, Lee Remick, Lilli Palmer and Burgess Meredith) highlight this 1968 film about a hired assassin determined to carry out his assignment — until he meets a beautiful member of the jet set.

Gammera (xx), on 13 at 9. A 1966 Japanese-American sci-fi thriller about a huge fire-eating turtle.

The Enforcer (xxx), on 11 at 10. Humphrey Bogart stars in this violent, but well-done 1951 semi-documentary about the smashing of Murder Inc. by an assistant district-attorney. Factual and absorbing, with an excellent supporting cast that includes Zero Mostel and Everett Sloane.

The Family Kovack, on 7 at 11. A 1974 TV pilot for a proposed series about a close-knit family trying to prove the eldest son innocent of a criminal charge. Filmed with a cast of newcomers.

GLENDA JACKSON
. . . on 2 at 11:40

Captain Eddie (xxx), on 12 at 11. Fred MacMurray, Lynn Bari, Charles Bickford and Thomas Mitchell star in this 1945 biography of First World War flying ace and Second World War hero Eddie Rickenbacker.

The Human Monster, on 13 at 11. No rating available on this 1939 English-made thriller starring Bela Lugosi.

Bedazzled (xxx), on 5 at 11:15. A stimulating 1967 English-made comedy based on the Faustian legend of the seven deadly sins, starring Peter Cook, Dudley Moore, Eleanor Bron and Raquel Welch. It doesn't all work, but the jokes both visual and verbal, are hurled at a rapid nonstop pace, and enough of them are sufficiently inventive and outrageous to reward any enterprising viewer. There's also a closing scene on a trampoline that is one of the funniest sequences ever put on film. Recommended.

Hard Contract (xxx), on 6 at 11:15. (See earlier for details on this movie).

Negatives (xxx), on 2 at 11:40. A macabre, offbeat 1968 English-made drama which might not be everyone's cup of tea. It's a tale about a couple who thrive on charades for sexual stimulation and their fateful meeting with a glamorous photographer who has an equally warped sense of bedroom play. The cast (Glenda Jackson, Peter McEnery and Diane Cilento) and the direction is excellent.

Tycoon (xx), on 4 at 11:45. John Wayne and Larraine Day star in this well-made and colorful 1947 melodrama about a young engineer trying to build a railroad tunnel through the Andes mountains.

The Double Man (xxx), on 8 at midnight. An entertaining 1967 British-made spy thriller about a CIA agent investigating the mysterious death of his son in the Austrian Alps. Filmed on location with a competent cast that includes Yul Brynner, Anton Differing, Britt Ekland and Clive Revill.

Fireball Forward, on 8 at 2:15. No rating available on this 1972 TV movie that utilizes combat footage from Patton to tell the story of a hard-luck company of soldiers during the Second World War. Cast includes Ben Gazzata and Eddie Albert.

TELEVISION PREMIERE —On Sunday, July 28 at 9 p.m. CBC-TV will present a strange tale of mystery and myth — Paul Almond's highly-acclaimed Journey.

Filmed in Saguenay country, Journey reflects the undercurrent of mysterious fonces that must be reckoned with in that wild, untamed land. Since the beginning of Canadian exploration, the region of Quebec's Saguenay River has been a place of mystery, magic and strange stories. Almond has taken advantage of that age-old reputation to create a tale that goes far beyond the known bounds of normal experience.

This is Almond's third feature-length film. The others were Isabel, which will be seen on this CBC-TV series, Sunday, August 18 and Act of The Heart.

Featured in the cast with Genevieve Bujold and John Veron (above) are Gale Garnett, George Sperdakos and Elton Hayes.

Movies

Les Miserables (xxx), on 13 at noon. A well-produced 1953 film version of Victor Hugo's classic story of an escaped convict and the detective who trails him for a life time, starring Michael Rennie, Robert Newton and Debra Paget.

We Were Strangers (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A powerhouse cast (Jennifer Jones, John Garfield and Pedro Armendariz) highlights this somber 1949 drama about political intrigue and revolution in Cuba during the 1930s, directed by John Houston.

The Tin Star (xxx), on 11 at 1. An expertly made 1957 western combining humor and suspense with a standout performance by Henry Fonda as a wily bounty hunter who helps a young sheriff (Anthony Perkins) clean up a town.

Overnight Haul (xx), on 13 at 1:30. Routine truck driving drama, filmed in 1957 and starring Richard Conte.

Black Orpheus (xxxx), on 5 at 3:30. Excellent Portuguese language film (dubbed into English), based on the Orpheus-Eurydice legend, updated (1959) and played against the colorful background of carnival time in Brazil, complete with dancing, love-making and black witchcraft. The two leads are very attractive and handle their roles as the star-crossed lovers effectively. A hauntingly beautiful score is also an asset.

PETER SELLERS
. . . on 13 at 8 p.m.

Work is a Four Letter Word (xxx), on 7 at 3:30. An entertaining, off-beat 1968 English-made fantasy about an eccentric young man who devotes his life to cultivating giant mushrooms. Cast includes David Warner (star of Morgan) and Cilla Black.

The Wild North (xx), on 12 at 7. Stewart Granger and Wendell Corey star in this 1952 he-man adventure drama about fur trappers and their fight with nature in the Canadian north. Cyd Charisse is wasted as the love interest in a very small role.

Wall of Noise (xx), on 11 at 8. Predictable 1963 horse racing drama with the usual romantic entanglements, starring Suzanne Pleshette, Dorothy Provine and Ty Hardin.

The Magic Christian (xxx), on 13 at 8. A delightful English-made 1969 movie rendering of Terry Southern's satirical novel starring Peter Sellers as the world's richest eccentric and Ringo Starr as his newly adopted son. An excellent supporting cast includes Requel Welch, Laurence Harvey, Yul Brynner and Richard Attenborough.

Hello Down There (xx), on 4 at 9. Tony Randall and Janet Leight star in this mildly amusing 1969 comedy about the misadventures of a Florida family testing an underwater home.

HENRY FONDA
. . . on 11 at 1 p.m.

Intent to Kill, on 13 at 11. No rating available on this 1959 English-made drama about a plot to assassinate a South American president in a Montreal hospital, starring Richard Todd, Betsy Drake and Alexander Knox.

Once the Killing Starts, on 4 at 11:30. A made-for-TV mystery about anonymous letters that threaten to crack the alibi of a college professor who murdered his wife, starring Patrick O'Neal, Patricia Donahue and Angharad Rees.

Home Before Dark (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. Jean Simmons gives a fine performance in this 1958 drama about a young woman who comes home after being hospitalized for a nervous breakdown, only to be faced with a cold husband and a domineering step-mother. Her struggle to pick up the pieces of her broken life is touchingly portrayed but the film loses its initial punch about halfway through and settles into a soap opera. Supporting cast includes Dan O'Herlihy, Rhonda Fleming and Efrem Zimbalist Jr.

House of Usher (xxx), on 7 at 11:45. A stylish 1960 adaptation of Edgar Allan Poe's supernatural classic, starring Vincent Price.

The Sword of Ali Baba (x), on 2 at midnight. A 1965 Arabian Nights tale that uses film footage from the classic 1944 adventure, Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves.

Game Shows Dominate Daytime TV

(First of two articles on the revival of game shows by Peter Funt, a New York Journalist who often writes about television. Next week part 2 looks at the "particular chemistry" that makes each game show a success.)

By PETER FUNT

Beginning this week television viewers who watch Channel 4 on weekdays between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. will be able to watch no fewer than nine straight game shows. That's not a trend, that's a glut.

Game show number nine will enter the program picture when, on July 29, NBC cancels Dinah's Place, an Emmy Award-winning interview and variety program hosted by Dinah Shore, and schedules in its place a new version of the tried-and-true musical quiz, Name That Tune.

Among the networks, NBC is by no means alone in the game show competition. Eighteen months ago, CBS did not have a single game show anywhere on its schedule. Now there are six, CBS having dropped four situation comedy reruns and two soap operas to make room for games. At ABC, the program schedule now includes five game shows, the most recent addition being The $10,000 Pyramid, which replaced reruns of Love American Style at 4 p.m. on weekdays.

In the scramble to get more game shows on the air, strange things have been happening. At one point, forexample, CBS canceled the $10,000 Pyramid. The show was immediately picked up by ABC, dusted off and dropped into ABC's 4 p.m. time slot, where it has scored a resounding success.

The $64,000 question is why? Game shows, after all, had their heyday in the mid-fifties, when a perhaps somewhat less sophisticated viewing audience suddenly found itself boobytrapped by a headline-making "cheating" scandal that virtually wiped out the game show as an entertainment form: Now the games are back, bigger than ever.

Economizing is a major reason. Producers were determined to bring the game shows back to television because they are among the least expensive forms of programing. Studio time, a major cost for any show, can be cut by 80 per cent for the games since five programs — a week's supply — are usually taped in a single day.

Furthermore, the game shows are less costly to produce than one might guess from seeing the lavish prizes awarded — everything from cars to refrigerators and from boats to dinette sets. One of the little-known secrets of the game show business is that producers do not pay the full cost of this stuff, and even the cash awards are raised through behind-the-scenes dealings with manufacturers.

WINNERS ON GAMBIT — One of the little-known secrets of the game show business is that producers do not pay the full cost of the lavish prizes. Above, a couple winning big on CBS's Gambit.

Prizes and prize money are obtained for the game shows in one of three ways:

First, there are the expensive prizes such as cars and dishwashers which are supplied free by the manufacturers in return for one or more plugs (mini-commercials, written by the manufacturer). A dishwasher worth, say, $500 could be obtained for just one plug while a more expensive prize, such as a $3,000 automobile, would be supplied in return for five or six plugs over the course of several shows. (The bigger prizes are usually awarded in some form of "bonus" round, so it is likely that a number of plugs will get aired before the car is actually won.)

Then there are the inexpensive items, ranging from candy bars to dog food, which are given as consolation prizes or are tacked on to a prize package. Why? Because in these cases, the manufacturer pays cash in addition to supplying his product in order to get the plug. These so-called "free items" may bring a cash payment of about $200 — in the case of The New Beat The Clock — or over $1,000 — for Let's Make a Deal — depending on the popularity of the show.

The cash received for fee items is used to purchase the third type of prize — those which simply cannot be obtained free. The money is also used for making cash awards.

An average half-hour game show may have more than two minutes of plugtime in addition to the normal commercial load of six minutes. The number of fee plugs on each show is limited because they are considered to be commercials; having more than five per show — at eight seconds each — would push the total commercial time over the maximum set by the code of the National Association of Broadcasters. But there is no limit on the number of non-fee plugs. Under FCC rules, plugs traded for full-size prizes are not counted as commercials because they are deemed essential to the program itself.

What this complicated situation adds up to is that, "essential" or not, there are more "commercials" on game shows than on any other type of program. The makers of everything from Whirlpool washers to Recipe dog food, and from Pontiac cars to Rice A Roni, find this form of promotion profitable and they actually employ agents known as "prize brokers" to get their products on the air. The prize brokers receive a commission on each prize and a juicy 40 per cent of every fee paid in cash.

Mature Models Now Trend in Advertising

VANCOUVER — Are sedate grandparents replacing freshfaced youths and comely maidens in television commercials?

Alex McCallum, an agent for models and actors, said the trend in advertising is to more realistic personalities, with less emphasis on youth.

"Good performers in the 40-to-50 range have a better chance of getting work than do young people," said Mr. McCallum. His oldest model is Alicia Ammon, 88, of North Vancouver who has filmed in three commercials in four months.

Ramona Beauchamp said her agency has lined up more than 100 mature models, five times more than a year ago.

"But it's strictly part-time work," she said. "While a model might make a pile of money with several commercials in a row, her income will dip from $3,000 one month to $30 for the next few months."

Mrs. Ammon, who has been in theatre since childhood earns about $127 a day for principal roles in beer, airline, telephone and fuel-oil commercials but she has a few complaints:

"They still make me up to look like an elderly lady for some commercials. "And we didn't even get a beer when we filmed a commercial for a brewery."

Mrs. Ammon said she was booked for few commercials until two years ago but more calls now are coming. She earned $1,700 last year from television work.

ALICIA AMMON
. . . a model at 88

Her son Jack, eligible for old-age pension this year, does television commercials as well as roles in feature films and live theatre.

His advice to aspiring models is to get into theatre work, even backstage. Little-theatre groups are the best place to start.

"I think a lot of middle-aged people could find acting to be a good retirement occupation. There's nothing routine about it and it keeps your interest alive."

Mr. Ammon said any actor must have innate ability and a determination to succeed.

A. J. Nicholson, a middle-aged plumbing salesman who started to work as a part-time model five years ago, said: "This business of making commercials requires little or no talent.

Mr. Nicholson said he earns about $2,000 a year doing commercials. He does no fashion shows.

Mr. McCallum said many mature men are embarrassed about starting a career in modelling or acting.

"They have many hangups about it because they've been programmed from childhood to think it's a sissy thing to do, like playing with girls. They think male models are effeminate.

"Sure, that programming is haywire, but it's hard for men over 40 to break away from the old hard masculine concept and take the first step to get into the profession.

"There are not too many women over age 40 who want to take that first step either."

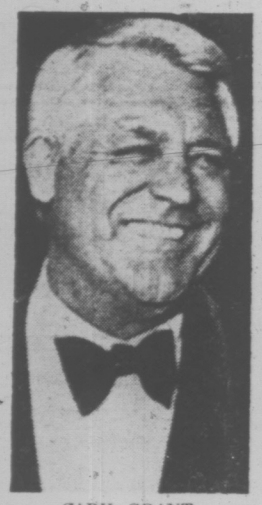
Movies

Sins of Jezebel, on 13 at noon. No rating available on this 1953 Biblical spectacle starring Paulette Goddard as the evil princess who marries the king of Israel and almost destroys his kingdom.

Scudda-Hoo! Scuddy-Hay! (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Lon McCallister and June Haver star in this mild 1948 comedy-drama about a farm boy who gets hold of a pair of mules and trains them to be the best team in the country.

Scandal, Inc. (xx), on 11 at 1. Routine 1956 crime-drama about a film actor victimized by a scandalous magazine article who is accused of murdering the man who wrote it. Cast includes Robert Hutton and Paul Richards.

The Moon and Sixpence (xxx), on 13 at 1:30. A thoughtfully done and tastefully performed 1942 film version of Somerset Maugham's dramatic story of a man with the urge to paint, and how he discards his conventional life to follow his calling, with George Saunders and Herbert Marshall.



CARY GRANT
. . . on 13 at 11 p.m.

ESTELLE PARSONS
. . . on 4 at 8 p.m.

Let's Be Happy (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Vera-Ellen and Tony Martin star in this fairly entertaining 1957 musical about a small-town girl who gets romantically entangled in Scotland.

He Rides Tall (x), on 7 at 3:30. Routine 1964 western about Indians on the warpath who jeopardize a marshall's pursuit of a sadistic outlaw. Dan Duryea stars.

The Hangman (xx), on 11 at 8. A good cast (Robert Taylor, Fess Parker and Tina Louise) highlights this otherwise draggy 1959 western about a marshall torn between duty and humanity. Watch for the Canadian singer Shirley Harmer who made her U.S. film debut (and bombed) in a small role.

The Friday Man, on 13 at 8. No rating available on this 1968 French-made crime-drama about the Paris police trying to track down a vicious gang that commits crimes only on Fridays.

The Gun and the Pulpit (xx), on 4 at 8:30. Evangelist-turned-actor Marjoe Gortner is excellent in this entertaining 1974 comedy-western about a gunslinger who poses as a preacher to escape a pursuing posse. A good supporting cast includes Slim Pickins and Estelle Parsons.

Operation Petticoat (xxxx), on 13 at 11. A well-directed and hilariously funny 1959 comedy highlighted by Cary Grant's ageless appeal and Tony Curtis' energetic performing. It's all about a Second World War submarine, its mad, mad crew and their unbelievable exploits in the South Pacific.

Nightmare Step, on 4 at 11:30. A made-for-TV mystery about a seemingly mild-mannered woman who strives to permanently rid herself of a cruel and domineering husband. A competent cast includes Louise Sorel, John Vernon and Don Stroud.

The Fiend Who Walked the West, on 12 at 11:30. No rating available on this 1958 western starring Hugh O'Brian.

Home Before Dark (xxx), on 7 at 11:45. Jean Simmons

SHIRLEY HARMER
. . . on 11 at 8 p.m.

gives a fine performance in this 1958 drama about a young woman who returns home to a cruel husband and a dominating step-mother after being hospitalized for a nervous breakdown. Her struggle to pick up the pieces of her broken life is touchingly portrayed but the film loses its initial punch about halfway through and settles into soap opera. Supporting cast includes Dan O'Herlihy, Efrem Zimbalist Jr., and Rhonda Fleming.

Morgan the Pirate (x), on 2 at midnight: A 1960 Italian-made adventure starring Steve Reeves.

Walk East on Beacon (xxx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. On-location filming in New England adds atmosphere to this 1952 semi-documentary spy thriller about the FBI on the trail of Russian agents, starring George Murphy and Virginia Gilmore.

The Swimmer (xxxx), on 6 and 8 at 2:05. An excellent cast and fine direction highlights this off-beat 1968 drama about one man's shattering Sunday odyssey through affluent suburbia. Much underrated at the time of its first release, this movie, starring Burt Lancaster, Janice Rule, Kim Hunter and Cornelia Otis Skinner, is well worth staying up for.

MARJOE GORTNER has left the evangelist's trail for acting but he hasn't forgotten how to deliver an impassioned sermon in this scene from, The Gun and the Pulpit, ABC's Tuesday Movie of the Week, to be telecast on Channel 4 at 8:30 p.m. This 1974 comedy-western has Gortner playing a gunman posing as a preacher to escape a posse.

Dial TV By 1980

TORONTO — Ranald Ide of the Ontario communications department says he can foresee the average television viewer dialing his choice of 50,000 programs in a public television library in about five years.

"By 1980 a student preparing for an examination will be able to bone up on advanced mathematics while relaxing in front of television in his living room," he said.

Courses leading to university degrees may be programmed for home viewing.

For the last three years, Mr. Ide has been in charge of Operation Acce and Index, an attempt to set up a computer library of television programs.

The library, still in the design stage, will include National Film board productions, British Broadcasting Corp. material and eventually, programs belonging to the CBC, he said.

"The homeviewer will be able to look up his program in a catalogue, dial the number on his television line and have the program televised on his set," said Mr. Ide.

A keyboard computer attached to the television will transmit the information over the wire.

"The prices will be comparable to the cost of a subscription to cable television," said Mr. Ide.

He predicted that within 10 years viewers will see a worldwide network of computer lines creating an international television library.

CP

PAUL SAND, seen last season on the Carol Burnett Show, stars in Friends and Lovers, a pilot for his own series (to begin this fall) on Tuesday, 9:30, on Channel 7. The Tony-winning actor plays an up-and-coming concert bassist facing a nerve-racking orchestra audition and a reunion with an old flame (Lynn Lipton) who hates classical music.

Streetcar Named Desire* (xxxx), on 8 at midnight. Brilliant acting and superb direction highlights this 1951 film rendering of Tennessee Williams Pulitzer Prize-winning drama, set in the slums of New Orleans. At the heart of the drama is the seething confrontation between coarse, brawling Stanley Kowalski (Marlon Brando in the role that made him a star) and his visiting sister-in-law, Blanche du Bois (flawlessly portrayed by the late Vivien Leigh), a faded Southern belle desperately clinging to memories, illusions and dreams. Oscars were won by Miss Leigh and in supporting roles, by Karl Malden (playing Mitch, a friend of Stanley's who becomes attracted to Blanche) and by Kim Hunter (as Stella, the down-to-earth wife of Stanley). Worth staying up for.

Movies

FBI Girl (xx), on 13 at noon. Routine 1951 crime-drama with the Bureau investigating political crooks, starring George Brent and Audrey Totter.

Seven Guns for the MacGregors (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A lively 1965 Italian-made western about Scottish ranchers battling with Mexican bandits. Cast is half American, half Italian (dubbed into English).

How to Be Very, Very Poplar (xxx), on 11 at 1. Betty Grable, Sheree North and Robert Cummings star in this fast and frantic 1955 comedy about two chorus girls on the run take refuge in a college fraternity whose members hide them from gangsters.

Armored Attack (xx), on 13 at 1:30. A 1943 drama about Russian villagers defending their land when the Nazis invade, starring Dana Andrews and Anne Baxter.

The Busy Body (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Sid Caesar heads an excellent supporting cast in this entertaining 1967 comedy spoof of crime movies, filled with heavy slapstick antics and joke-filled dialogue. Others in the cast include Robert Ryan, Anne Baxter, Kay Medford, Ben Blue, Dom DeLuise and Richard Pryor.

SID CAESAR
. . . on 5 at 3:30 p.m.

VIVIEN LEIGH
. . . on 7 at 9 p.m.

Marnie (xx), on 7 at 3:30 (Part 1). This garbled 1964 drama about a psychopathic young woman addicted to compulsive lying and robbery is definitely not one of Hitchcock's best. It does have some tense moments however, and an attractive cast includes Tippi Hedren, Sean Connery and Diane Baker. (Conclusion tomorrow, same time and channel.)

For Heaven's Sake (xx), on 13 at 9. A whimsical 1950 comedy about a couple of aging angels who come to earth to save a crumbling marriage, highlighted by a great cast that includes Clifton Webb, Edmund Gwenn (as the angels), Joan Bennett, Robert Cummings and Joan Blondell.

A Streetcar Named Desire (xxxx), on 4 at 9. Brilliant acting and superb direction highlight this 1951 film adaptation of Tennessee Williams' Pulitzer Prize-winning play, set in the slums of New Orleans' French Quarter. At the core of the drama is the seething confrontation between coarse, brawling Stanley Kowalski (Marlon Brando in the role that made him a star) and his visiting sister-in-law Blanch du Bois (flawlessly portrayed by the late Vivien Leigh), a faded Southern belle desperately clinging to memories, illusions and dreams. Oscars were won by Miss Leigh and in supporting roles by Karl Malden (as Mitch, a friend of Stanley's who is attracted to Blanche) and Kim Hunter (as Stella, down-to-earth wife of Stanley and sister to Blanche.) Recommended.

No, My Darling Daughter (xx), on 12 at 9. A pleasant, 1961 English-made comedy about a tycoon who tries to help his teen-age tomboy daughter to become a lady. A talented cast (Michael Redgrave, Juliet Mills, Michael Craig and Roger Livesey) are better than the material but they troupe through it capably.

You're My Everything (xxx), on 13 at 11. Dan Dailey and Anne Baxter star in this entertaining 1959 musical saga of a show business family, spanning early vaudeville, silent movies and the talkie era.

The Cracksman (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1963 British-made slapstick comedy about an innocent locksmith who gets mixed up with a gang of crooks, starring Charlie Drake and George Saunders.

The Secret of Blood Island (x), on 2 at midnight. Barbara Shelley and Jack Hedley star in this brutal 1964 drama about the sacrifices made by Second War POWs while hiding a secret agent from the Japanese.

Sirocco (xx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. A slow-moving 1951 melodrama about sinister characters and their shady dealings, starring Humphrey Bogart, Lee J. Cobb and Marta Toren (Not one of Bogie's best.)

Men of the Fighting Lady (xx), on 7 at 12:15. Van Johnson and Walter Pegeon star in this routine 1954 war film about an aircraft carrier and the men assigned to her who fought and died. There the usual cast of stock supporting actors and some exciting actual war footage spliced in.

JULIET MILLS
. . on 12 at 9 pm.

Buchanan Rides Alone (xxx), on 6 and 8 at 2:05. A rugged 1958 western highlighted by a strong plot and good cast (Randolph Scott, Craig Stevens and Jennifer Holden); far more entertaining than the usual western film fare.

National Geographic Special

On Thursday at 7 p.m. on Channel 8, The National Geographic Society presents The Haunted West, a look at what remains of the once fabulous west. Narrated by Canadian actor Leslie Nielsen, The Haunted West profiles three groups of people who still make their livelihood in the American west — cowboys, tramp-miners and the Yaqui Indians. Pictured here are Billy Varga and his wife Melody, two of the few hundred remaining tramp miners, at work on the Varga family's 150-year-old gold mine.

Pay TV Once More Becoming a Reality

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES — Remember the great pay-television controversy of the early 1960s?

Pay TV promoters had an appealing pitch-first-run movies, uncut, uncensored

Pay TV promoters had an appealing pitch: first-run movies, uncut, uncensored, uninterrupted by commercials, brought into your home along with a smattering of sports and special programs.

You might see box-office hits on your television set whenever you wished, "for only pennies daily," they promised, and no parking or babysitting problem.

But movie theatre owners — frightened that pay television would draw off their trade — launched petition drives and scary advertisements that conjured up images of coin boxes on the home tube. Pay television could mean "an end to free TV," was the warning.

California voters banned pay TV in a state referendum that later was declared unconstitutional. Some congressmen threatened legislation to prohibit pay TV.

The controversy and the cost of installation seemed to doom pay TV. Network television also was showing more recent movies. Why pay?

But today pay TV may be staging a resurgence.

In the last year, more than 28 cable television systems have begun piping movies into the home for a fee. About 60,000 homeowners in the U.S. now have pay TV from old and new companies. The majority are in California.

"I think we've got quite a future ahead of us," said John Atwood, president of Theta Cable Television in Los Angeles, which has about 14,000 subscribers for its two-month-old Z Channel.

"We're pleased with the results so far for the most part," says Geoffrey Nathanson, president of Optical Systems Inc. Theta, Optical and other cable operators are counting on pay TV as an attraction to sell cable TV in areas where reception is good.

Most theater owners don't seem to mind now because movie studios are protecting theaters by making films available to pay television only after the theatre run.

Commercial television spokesmen say they doubt that even with millions of subscribers pay TV will ever be able to compete with "free" programming.

Cable operators say viewers are continuing to watch regular TV fare, turning to pay TV movies in the off hours.

A big minus for pay television in the 1960s was the hook-up cost. Pay TV companies charged up to $100 to install devices to pick up their over-the-air broadcasts.

Two years ago, the Federal Communications Commission, in a breakthrough decision, authorized pay television over U.S. cable systems.

The basic installation cost of a cable system usually runs about $15 in a metropolitan area. The monthly fee runs from $7 to $10.

Nathanson says the future of pay television will depend on program offerings beyond motion pictures, such as sports, home-study courses, cultural events, theatrical productions, rock concerts and the like.

Most of these are still in the future, but Channel 100 in San Diego has offered filmed coverage of the Conquistador basketball games, taped sports events, documentaries and special programs purchased here and from BBC.

Movies

Samar (xxx), on 13 at noon. A well-made 1962 that tells an unusual and interesting story about the commandant of an 1870s penal colony who defies his cruel superiors and leads his prisoners through the jungle to freedom. Directed by and starring George Montgomery with Gilbert Roland and Joan O'Brien.

A Degree of Murder (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. An absorbing 1967 German-made study of guilt and responsibility in the face of accidental death, starring Anita Pellenberg and Hans P. Hallwachs.

For the Love of Mike (xx), on 11 at 1. Richard Basehart stars in this sentimental 1960 children's drama about a young Mexican boy (Danny Bravo) and his love for a beautiful horse.

Frontier Marshal (xx), on 13 at 1:30. Randolph Scott stars in this 1939 action-filled western about Wyatt Earp, and how he cleaned up Tombstone.

The Dangerous Days of Kiowa Jones (xx), on 5 at 3:30. A draggy, offbeat character study of an itinerant cowboy deputized to bring in a killer to justice, filmed in 1966 and starring Robert Horton and Sal Mineo.

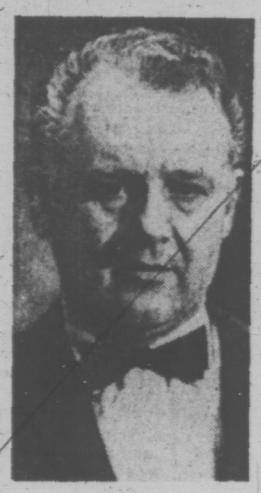
Marnie (xx), on 7 at 3:30. Conclusion of the Alfred Hitchcock thriller begun yesterday, same time and channel. (See Thursday movies for details.)

Six Million Dollar Man (xxx), on 4 at 8. This is the 1973 movie that led to the now-successful series starring Lee Majors as a test pilot mutilated in a plane crash, who is turned into a superman by means of incredibly powerful artificial limbs.

The 300 Spartans (xx), on 11 at 8. On-location filming in Greece and great battle scenes highlights this otherwise sluggish 1962 movie about the battle at Thermopylae, where Spartans tried to defend a narrow pass against Persian troops. A competent cast includes Ralph Richardson, Richard Egan and Diane Baker.

Fighter Squadron (xx), on 13 at 8. Edmond O'Brien and Robert Stack star in this routine 1948 war drama about an English-based U.S. squadron who paves the way for V-E Day.

Houston, We've Got a Problem (xx), on 8 at 8:30. A fictionalized 1974 account of the ill-fated Apollo 13 mission focusing on the traumatic effect that an explosion aboard the spacecraft has on the lives of the earth-bound flight controllers. Cast includes Robert Culp, Gary Collins and Sandra Dee.



ROD STEIGER
. . . on 13 at 11 p.m.

SIMONE SIGNORET
. . . on 12 at 9 p.m.

Kaleidoscope (xx), on 5 at 9. On-location filming in London and the French Riviera highlights this placid 1966 adventure about a playboy who tries a cleverly crooked way to beat the European gambling casinos. An attractive cast includes Warren Beatty and Susannah York.

Shadow on the Land (xx), on 7 at 9. A 1968 made-for-TV pilot for a proposed series (that never materialized) about life in a futuristic totalitarian United States, where Big Military Brother (called in this story the Leader's International Security Force) keeps an eye and ear out for anyone trying to restore freedom to the country. Called "far-fetched" in 1968, it would be interesting to see how film critics and audiences would react today, especially in the face of Watergate. Cast includes John Forsythe, Jackie Cooper, Carol Lynley and Canadian actor Marc Strange.

Room at the Top (xxxx), on 12 at 9. A powerful 1959 British-made drama about an opportunist who stops at nothing to make a position for himself in life. Searing in its intensity, the film offers top-flight direction from Jack Clayton and a flawless Oscar-winning performance by Simone Signoret and an equally fine one by Laurence Harvey. A deeply moving film for adult audiences.

The Pawnbroker (xxxx), on 13 at 11. Rod Steiger gives a brilliant and powerful performance in this 1965 essay on human responsibility centring on a Jewish pawnbroker in Harlem, haunted by memories of concentration-camp horrors. The supporting cast (Géraldine Fitzgerald and Brock Peters) is uniformly fine down to the smallest bit part, but Steiger is quite spectacular in his own beautifully controlled performance. Recommended.

The Violent Ones (xx), on 12 at 11:30. Fernando Lamas directed and stars in this 1967 drama about three drifters victimized by lynch law when they are picked up for a girl's brutal murder. Supporting cast includes Aldo Ray, David Carradine and Tommy Sands.

House of Frankenstein (xx), on 7 at 11:45. Thriller fans may enjoy this 1945 melodrama starring Lon Chaney and John Carradine.

McHale's Navy Joins the Air Force (xx), on 2 at midnight. Ensign Parker (Tim Conway) is mistaken for an Air Force pilot in this 1965 comedy based on the hit TV series. However, this one is minus McHale (Ernest Borgnine).

Houston, We've Got a Problem (xx), on 6 at midnight. (See earlier for details.)

Creature of the Walking Dead (x), on 8 at midnight. Routine 1963 thriller with a cast of unknowns.

Creatures of Destruction (x), on 7 at 1:10. A silly sci-fi all about a killer sea monster.

Rogue River (xxx), on 8 at 1:35. An above-average 1950 melodrama about a state policeman and his ne'er-do-well cousin who become involved in a bank robbery, starring Rory Calhoun and Peter Graves.
